This is the basic issue in the offer made by 14 local suppliers to firm up the Missouri Hydro-electric system, Allen S. King, president of Northern States Power Company, told Kenneth Holum, assistant secretary of the Department of the Interior, in a letter dated Aug. 29. The letter is the latest in an exchange of correspondence between the two.

Referring to Holum's answer to his letter of July 27, King added, "you did not refute my statement that 'power from Basin's proposed plant would cost in excess of 50 per cent more than the price of hydro power that could be firmed under the 14-system proposal.' Why should the preference customer pay this added cost?"

"Everyone is in favor of the maximum use of facilities to prevent duplication and to reduce construction costs," King's letter added. "This is a fundamental principle of power pooling. In your answer, you discuss your concept of a power pool, one that would only be formed after added thermal plants are constructed. This again misses the basic issue. The immediate pooling of the hydro facilities and existing thermal facilities to postpone the need for construction expenditures is the fundamental concept of our proposal. "I believe you should consider the basic issues involved," King told Holum. "I then suggest that you reconsider the proposal in its true light and the benefits that the proposal will provide to all parties."

King's letter suggested that "there are many elements in our proposal which are proper subjects for across-the-table negotiations," and again stated that 14 power suppliers were ready to discuss these matters with Interior officials at any time.

July Traffic Was Above Last Year

An average increase of 3.4 per cent over 1961 was registered by the 31 automatic traffic recording stations operated by the Minnesota Highway department and located at strategic points on rural trunk highways throughout the state.

July, a top month for tourist travel in most of the northern states, has apparently reflected the unseasonably cold summer, that has followed an equally unfavorable winter for extended travel.

Peak July loads were recorded on TH 3, south of Rosemount; U. S. 169, northeast of Chaska; U. S. 52, west of Sauk Centre; U. S. 12, east of St. Paul, and U. S. 75 south of Warren.

Social Security Office Handles Record Requests

631 Numbers Are Issued During June; Duplicate Cards Are Available

Every vacationing student in this area must have been hoping to get a job this summer, according to Walter D. Kistler, district manager at the Grand Forks Social Security office. He stated that his office had issued 631 new social security numbers during June, the largest number of new numbers that has been issued in any one month since the program first went into effect in 1937.

Kistler said that every student who gets a summer job should have a social security card. Employers want to see the cards so they can get the exact number and name from it. Many employers will not hire a person until they have a record of the social security number.

Duplicate cards may be issued to persons who already had social security cards but lost them. Cards may be obtained at the social security office, Grand Forks North Dakota. People living in a town without a social security office can get application blanks at their local post offices.

Minnesota Ranks High in Number Carrying Voluntary Insurance

Thirty-one states have more than two-thirds of their population protected by some form of voluntary health insurance, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

As of the end of 1961 New York State, with a coverage figure of 90.7 per cent based on more than 15.5 million insured residents, led all 50 states, followed by Rhode Island (87.8), Pennsylvania (87.7) Ohio (85.0), Connecticut (84.0), and Illinois (82.9), the Institute declared.

The Institute said other states with more than two-thirds of population covered by health insurance are California, Colorado, Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oklahoma, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. Only 3 states — Alaska, New Mexico, and Mississippi — had less than 50 per cent coverage, with Alaska the lowest at 37.1 per cent.

On a regional basis, the nine Northeast states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine boasted the greatest percentage of population with health insurance, 84.6 per cent based on 38.5 million insured persons in the region's 45.5 million population.

The Midwest followed with 78.7 per cent coverage based on 41.3 million persons with health insurance out of 52.6 million population in the 12 regional states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Kansas. The West ranked third with 67.8 per cent and the South had 64.3 per cent coverage.

Because of their better performance and longer service life, the uses of nickel-containing alloys by industry have increased year by year.

SHARING

Sharing isn't one of those things that come naturally. It takes a fair bit of "character building" before two youngsters get to the point where they're happy to go fifty-fifty on so much as a bottle of pop!

Fred and Marilyn, as it happens, have learned a lot about sharing in church. For, many years ago, Christ clearly demonstrated that man should be neither selfish nor greedy, and that to live successfully he must learn to give not only of himself, but of his possessions.

In a small, childlike, but completely joyous way, Fred and Marilyn are putting these teachings into practice — just as in many more serious ways, they will be putting other teachings of the Church into use, throughout their lives.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Phone Answering Service To Be Offered in City

Mel Opdahl of Grand Forks has been in the city the past week making arrangements to open a telephone answering service in Thief River Falls. He has considerable experience in a similar operation in Grand Forks where there are presently 42 patrons and 13 more to be connected to the service in September.

The answering service would permit businessmen to receive messages which they would normally miss if they leave their places of business and also allow them to be contacted in an emergency. The firm, to be known as Falls Telephone Answering Service, has made arrangements to be located in the Carlson Travel Agency office on LaBree av. N.

Opdahl stated that he hopes to have the service in operation by September 15 and that he needs 15 customers to open the office. Cost of the service would be about 50 cents per day and would be operated on a 10-hour basis to start. The Grand Forks concern is now operated on a 24-hour basis.

A secretary employed by the service will answer a central phone in the name of the business place called and relay information to the party calling or being called. Opdahl has made a number of personal calls on local business places in attempts to sell his service and others interested who have not been contacted may reach him by calling the Carlson Travel Agency.

Klopp is hospitalized at Northwestern hospital in this city with minor bruises and is listed in good condition although he is being held for observation on possible internal injuries. A second passenger, Robert Lawson, Thief River Falls, is listed in fair condition with a lacerated left arm, other cuts and bruises and exhaust burns. The case is under investigation by the state highway patrol.

RAD, ARA Plans Related For Interested Group Mon.

MAKING ROOM The church that has served the Christian Science congregation since 1926 is now being demolished. Located on LaBree Ave. at First st., the property has been acquired by Northwestern Hospital and is being cleared this fall to make possible an early start of construction for the new hospital addition next spring.

Howard Chaney of the Christian Science congregation says they purchased the church from the Trinity Lutheran Church in 1926. Old-timers in the Trinity congregation recall that this property was acquired by them in the mergers that united three congregations in 1917 and 1919.

The addition to Northwestern Hospital will provide 36 beds for chronic, convalescent and nursing care and related services.

Hirem Sorenson Tells Reasons for Government Plan

Facts relating to the Rural Areas Development program and Area Redevelopment Administration were provided by Hiram Sorenson, RAD coordinator, at a meeting held Monday evening in the community room of the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls. Interested persons from Thief River Falls, Goodridge and St. Hilaire attended the session to learn more about the two programs.

Rural Areas Development (RAD) had its origin in 1955 when the U.S. Department of Agriculture attempted the program on a pilot basis in Hubbard, Itasca and Carlton counties, Sorenson said. The program was then known as the Rural Development program and an assistant county agent and fieldman was placed in each of the pilot counties.

In 1961 the program was changed to the present plan and 19 Minnesota counties and about 800 counties nation-wide have adopted the program and become organized. It is the duty of these areas to prepare an Overall Economic Development Program (OEDP) — a locally conceived community or area plan of action for creating new jobs through economic redevelopment.

Responsibility has been placed on the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) to activate a technical panel to work on the program. This panel includes a number of government agency representatives in the local area and its purpose under the RAD program is to develop information needed in the community.

Pennington Qualifies

Since Pennington county has been designated as an area which qualifies under the Area Redevelopment Association (ARA), the county board of commissioners has called a public hearing for Tuesday, September 11, to hear testimony on the proposed program. Futher public information will be provided at that time and ample opportunity to ask questions will be provided.

ARA is statutory, being set up under public law. It will provide funds to designated areas with approved plans for development which will provide employment or for training and retraining workers.

An industry seeking to start or to expand and approved by the ARA, could receive up to 65 per cent from the federal agency, 20 per cent under the Minnesota act and would need only 15 per cent locally. Of the local 15 per cent required, 10 per cent could come from a local development association and only five per cent from the individual business.

For instance, Sorenson cited, an industry to process farm products is approved and needs $100,000 to

Conservation Federation Will Bring Legislators to Marshall County Area Saturday, Sept. 15

Invited members of the Minnesota legislature, including members of the game and fish and public domain committees of both houses, will be guests of the Minnesota Conservation Federation Saturday, September 15, on tour of the Marshall county wildlife areas according to a news release by that organization which states:

More than 33,000 acres of tax-exempt land in that area, which had been held by the state lands and minerals division for years, were transferred some time ago to the section of game of the division of game and fish to be managed for wildlife. An effort was made in the last session to take this land out of control of the game and fish division and release it for sale at $4 to $4.50 an acre for farming. The bill was defeated through the efforts of the Federation and other conservation organizations and the Federation is planning the tour to better acquaint the legislators with the importance of keeping this land for wildlife and its unsuitability for farm land. The state would develop the land under intensive wildlife management.

The party will fly from Minneapolis to Thief River Falls. Members of the group will then be transported to the Agassiz refuge and from there to the Elm Lake and Eckvoll wildlife management areas. They will then be flown in small planes over the area to see the land from the air.

Others from the surrounding community or anywhere in the state interested in the project are invited to be at Thief River Falls that day, but the Federation can supply air transportation only for the legislative members invited. Local sportsmen will take others on the tours either Saturday or Sunday, if they wish to remain over until then.

A wild game dinner will be served buffet style Saturday at the Agassiz refuge.

Officials of Eight N.W. Minnesota Counties Met Here

County Commissioners and a few other officials from eight northwestern Minnesota counties met at the American Legion club rooms here Thursday morning and afternoon. Business pertained mainly to problems of county government that will be referred to the legislative session that will start next January.

Presiding and leading the discussion was Ralph T. Keyes, executive secretary of the State Association of County Connissioners. He reported that a special committee will recomend to the annual meeting of the state organization to be held in November that the scope of the organization be broadened to include all government problems at the county level. The suggested name for the new organization if the recommendation is adopted would be the Minnesota State Association of County Officials.

Road matters were discussed with particular emphasis on the distribution of Federal Aid funds for secondary roads. Mr. Keyes reported that a committee will recommend an increase in the gas tax at the annual meeting as a means of making money available for county roads.

There was a general discussion of tax problems and tax inequalities. An effort probably will be made to eliminate duplication of tax notices.

The trend in recent court decisions to hold the counties liable for the negligence of employees is becoming more of a problem that may require special legislation, the officials were told.

Foil Dropped by Planes May be Harmful to Stock

A number of farmers in this area have found strips of aluminum foil in their fields, generally clustered together in balls, and reports from other areas in the state indicate that these strips, dropped by planes, may be harmful to livestock.

A United Press report from Washington states that Senator Hubert Humphrey has been asked to investigate the possible harmful effects of such metalic foil dropped from Air Force planes in defense exercises. The question was raised by a Carlton County feed processor who stated that such strips in some cases have gotten into livestock feed.

ANNUAL MEETING OF UNITED FUND CALLED

The annual meeting of the Pennington County United Fund will be Wednesday evening, September 5, in the basement of the city auditorium, Sig Sinding, chairman, announces. Requests for funds will be considered at this meeting, he states.

Extra Special Driving Care Is Urged by Police

Extra special care when driving during the first days of school this fall has been requested of drivers by local law enforcement authorities. Youngsters filled by the excitement of rejoining their classmates tend to be careless and drivers must adjust to the volume of youngsters who will be crossing roadways in the city.

Elton Cummings, Thief River Falls police chief, noted that the safety patrol will not be organized until Obert Lillo, safety specialist with the Minnesota highway patrol, has conducted training sessions on September 11 at Washington, Northrop and St. Bernard's schools. This will mean that the patrol, which assists youngsters in crossing busy intersections, will not be functioning during the period between school opening and September 11.

"Although the familiar "STOP" flags will not be shown immediately upon the opening of school," Chief Cummings said, 'we wish to have all drivers alert to the fact that the youngsters will still be crossing busy streets and that extra caution is required when driving.

Eloise Tharaldson Weds Daryl Williamson

Eloise Judith Tharaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Linden Tharalson, Hoople; and Daryl Williamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Williamson, Thief River Falls, Minn. exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony Sunday, August 19. The Reverend James R. Sonnenberg officiated at the 4:30 service in the First Lutheran Church of Hoople.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported silk organza over taffeta with alencon applique trimmed neckline. The bouffant skirt was detailed by lace applique through which extended a velvet ribbon that continued into the chapel length train. A Swedish crown with pearls and Austrian crystals held her fingertip veil. The bride carried a white Bible, gift from the groom, covered with a cluster of white roses.

Following the traditional "something old" the bride carried a white handmade handkerchief made and worn by her maternal grandmother on her wedding day. A blue star sapphire pendant, a gift of the groom, was also worn by the bride.

Carmen Tharalson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Gary Phelps, Grand Forks, another sister was bridesmaid. They wore de-lustered Royal blue sheath dresses with overskirts and headpieces of matching tulle and carried a single long-stemmed white rose.

Best man was Allan Williamson, Neenah, Wisc. and groomsman Bruce Williamson, Mora, Minn., both brothers of the groom.

John Thomas Tharalson, brother of the bride, ushered the parents and bride's grandmother, Mrs. John Tharalson. Ushers were Jim Ronholm, Minneapolis, Minn. and Neil Fedje of Hoople.

Mrs. Kenton Nelson, aunt of the bride, provided the nuptial music. The processional music for the attendants was Largo by Handel and the bride entered to the traditional Bridal Chorus by Wagner. Purcell's Trumpet Voluntary was the recessional for the wedding party.

Solist, M. William Gilbertson of Moorhead, Minn., sang "I Jesu Navn," a traditional Norwegian wedding hymn, before the service. While the wedding party was at the altar, "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us" and "Wedding Prayer" were sung.

The groom's mother chose a dress of Lucerne blue silk while the dress of the bride's mother was sapphire blue. Both mothers wore corsages of red rosettes. The bride's grandmother wore a dress of gray with a corsage of pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlors. The wedding cake featured a miniature bride and groom which had been used by the bride's paternal great-grandparents, the Thomas Neilson's, at their wedding 78 years ago. The cake was cut and served by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Fred Kenney, Canoga Park, Calif. and Mrs. George Williamson, Grand Forks, aunt of the groom.

The groom's cake, baked by Mrs. John Tharalson, was served by Rene Nelson and Ruth Tharalson, cousins of the bride. Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Paul Tharalson and Mrs. Allen Tharalson, Mrs. Orvis Olen, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Sam Fedje, aunts of the couple poured throughout the reception. Music during the reception was provided by Jan Fagerholt. Punch was served by Marjo Johnson, Greenbush, Minn., and Marlene Eid, Ada, Minn. Mrs. Dale Romuld, Grand Forks, was at the guest book. The gift table was arranged by Mrs. Dean Mildboe, Martha Parkins, Becky and Ruth Lerud.

Guests attended from a number of distant cities including: Neenah, and Evansville, Wisc.; Minneapolis and Mora; Bakersfield, Calif.; Los Angeles, Calif.; Canoga Park, Calif; Denver, Colo.; Boca Raton, Fla.; and Chicago, Ill.

The groom's parents were hosts to a bridal dinner at the Westward Ho in Grand Forks following rehearsal Saturday evening, August 18.

For their wedding trip to Canada the bride chose a brown silk sheath with nutmeg accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson are at home at 5035 3rd St. N. E., Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. Williamson, a St. Olaf graduate, is attending Medical School at the University of Minnesota. Mrs. Williamson, a Concordia graduate, will be teaching in the Columbia Heights School System.

Roseau Adopts Mass Polio Prevention

Sabin Oral Polio Vaccine will be made available to people of Roseau county in a mass innoculation program to be held during October and November of this year, according to the Roseau Times Region. The decision was made at a meeting of doctors, nurses, school superintendents and principals where procedures were explained by Wayne Hohn and Mike Shannan, Lederle Company, makers of the vaccine.

The vaccine will give 99.6 per cent protection against all known polio viruses if strains I, II and III are taken at separate times, it was reported. This is a higher average protection than afforded by Salk shots.

Type I vaccine will be given on Friday, October 6th, at high school centers at Warroad, Roseau, Badger and Greenbush.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the kitchen of

MRS. THOMAS O'GORMAN

For a summer salad, one that makes use of left-over meat, here is a suggestion from the mother of a large family, who finds it a welcome addition to the summer menu. However, it need not be restricted to summer. It could solve the problem of using left-over turkey after the holidays, or left-over beef roast or ham at any time. Chicken, veal, corned beef, pork roast, all lend themselves well to making this versatile salad.

MEAT SALAD

1 envelope Knox gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups cold consomme
2 cups cooked, sliced meat
½ cup cooked peas
hard-boiled egg for garnish

Soften gelatine in the cold water. Add the hot consomme and stir until dissolved. Rinse a mold in cold water, into this mold, pour enough of this mixture to make a thin layer. Set in refrigerator. When firm, arrange meat slices, peas, and sliced egg on top. Pour over this the remaining gelatine mixture, which by this time will be somewhat thickened. When firm, unmold on a bed of lettuce or other greens of your choice.

This recipe is ideal as is for persons on bland diets. For un-restricted diets, the meat and gelatine may be spiced with a bay leaf, pepper or sliced onion or onion powder, and the salad served with dressing accompaniment. It is also good served with tartar sauce.

Mrs. O'Gorman's husband is an instructor in architectural drafting at the local area vocational school.

They have nine children, six of them still at home, two married, and one attending school in Crookston.

Sewing is the favorite hobby of this busy mother of a growing family. She likes to experiment with hat-making as well.

She and Mr. O'Gorman are square-dancers, but she says that she does not find much opportunity for this type of recreation of late. They formerly lived near a lake, which resulted in the older children's spending a great deal of time on the water, boating and water-skiing. All but the smaller children enjoy camping with other parents, but our homemaker informs us that the younger ones are just not good campers — yet. She hopes to change the situation when they grow older.

Member of St. Bernard's Catholic church, Mrs. O'Gorman helps with parish activities whenever she can get away. She says that she would like to do more of this kind of thing, and plans on doing so when her home duties permit.

Mrs. Ida Boltman of Phoenix, Ariz., left Friday after spending a few weeks at the Don Houfek home. Mrs. Boltman is Mrs. Houfek's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Houfek and their guest, Mrs. Ida Boltman of Phoenix, Ariz., spent the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Archie Schneider and Mr. and Mrs. John Houfek at Rochester.

Miss Diane Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Wilson of this city, a '62 graduate of Lincoln high school, is now with the FBI in Washington, D. C., holding the position of secretary-clerk in the filing division.

The Jake O'Haras returned last week from Gladstone, Mich., where they attended the recent wedding of their daughter, Mrs. Kathryn Carriere, to Neil F. Sinclair. Accompanying them as far as the Iron Range and back were Mrs. O'Hara's mother, Mrs. Thea Olson.

Weekend visitors at the Anna Bradley home were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. K. O. Yetta (Evelyn Bradley) and family of Benton, Mich. They left for their home on Wednesday, planning to visit enroute at the home of Mrs. Bradley's brother, Joe Bradley, at Beaver Dam, Wisc.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald H. Buen and sons left for Denver, Colo., after spending the past two weeks with their respective parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Buen and Telof B. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. George Paulson and son of Cheyenne, Mrs. Roman Paulson, and Mrs. Marion Mostrom and Jon were supper guests at the Allan Paulson home Monday evening.

Mrs. Alice Clark and daughter, Lenore, of Virginia, Minn., spent the weekend at the home of her sister and mother, Mrs. Joe Reopelle and Mrs. Leose Archambault while enroute to their home in San Jose, Calif.

PFC John G. Reopelle, his wife and baby, spent a week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reoplle, also visiting his brother's and friends' homes while in the city. He is stationed at Arlington Heights, Ill.

School Bells Ring Out . . .

Woman's Point of View on Opening Day of School

By Flora Allison
Times Social Reporter

Another summer has run its course, and once again the school bells are said to be ringing (although, quite frankly, they sound suspiciously like buzzers to me) and mothers everywhere confess to greeting opening day with mixed emotions. Mingled with relief over the fact that the late-summer doldrums have ceased. . . that period of restlessness between swimming and football seasons, when neighborhood fights erupt with the frequency and fury of Old Faithful . . .is the feeling of loss and emptiness.

Suddenly the house is too big, too quiet, especially when the child who has just left his mother's vigilance and protection is her only one, or the first to go. First-timers confess to experiencing a bitter-sweetness upon leaving, with pride, and yet with a sense of loneliness, their "chick" in the seemingly impersonal corridors of the school. Perhaps for the first time they realize an awareness that this small beginning of the child's experiment in standing on his own feet, marks a turning point for both of them: that this is the initial, stirring of the independence he must acquire if the feeble wings that beat so uncertainly now will one day have the confidence to carry him off on a full-fledged solo flight.

And no matter how brave the youngster, he must surely have some of this same feeling — in reverse. As the door of the classroom closes and he sees before him a new face, hears a new voice dominating his day, an unfamiliar master-hand to take the largest share in the shaping of his destiny, he must surely know a sense of bewilderment.

The first day of school is for all parents, I believe, a day of nostalgia, a vague reaching back into childhood's yesterday for a wisp of memory of their own beginnings on the paths of knowledge.

Perhaps they too recall the forebodings in their own small hearts as they regarded the ponderous, impressive, and for them, seemingly impregnable door which suddenly confronted them. It sealed off the comforting, familiar face of their mother, depriving them suddenly of the soft, warm protected feeling of her fingers closed about their own.

Yet, strangely, when night came and they burst through the door with a feeling of having overcome the unknown, the solid satisfaction of having established a bond between themselves and the teacher, they seemed to suddenly have matured with amazing speed. Their mother's eyes might have shown lingering traces of tears, but this, in all probability, they overlooked. It was the first unknotting of the apron strings; it was establishment of contact with the satisfaction of growing up, and the sensation was good; it was gratifying; it was necessary. And inevitable!

Then, before they quite realized it, perhaps before they were ready for it, the situation had reversed itself. Grown now, and parents of a new generation of school-age children, they found themselves faced with an opening day, and the necessity of piloting their own reluctant, half-frightened youngsters down the halls of learning.

It was their own home which now echoed with a profound, unnatural stillness. It was THEIR time for looking back, and yet a time for looking forward, a time for watching the clock, for noting the ponderous slowness with which the hands crept around its face until the magic hour of four, when the door suddenly flew open, the quiet exploded resoundingly, and the well-known, "What's good to eat, Mom?" greeted their ears.

With the years, habit dulls the edges of the loneliness created by each annual opening day of school, but each year there still remain fragments of things you want to—have to because you can't help it—remember. And then there is that final one, that opening day when your progeny does not go merely down the street or across the alley, but down the road that leads to anywhere. . .that with certainty leads away. . . away from home, from the familiar things and places, and into the unknown.

The fledgeling has developed pinions and they must be given opportunity to function, to grow powerful, and confident.

This is the reason behind that first opening day: this is the motivation for the dreams, the plans, the sacrifices you have made so willingly during his growth years. To this end you have reared him.

And still, when the familiar, well-loved figure loses itself around the bend in the road, you know a vast emptiness surpassing anything you have ever known before, or shall perhaps ever experience again. Opening day . . his flinging wide the doors to adulthood. This is the occasion of the most exquisitely painful nostalgia for you, yet paradoxically, the most thrilling, the most eagerly-awaited hour that he has ever known.

It is his opening day in the school called LIFE.

Edward L. Wagner Rites Held At Middle River

Edward L. Wagner, who had been in failing health for several months, died at University Hospital in Minneapolis on Sunday morning, August 26, at the age of 61.

RAD-ARA Plans Explained Monday At Group Meet

get into operation. This industry could receive $65,000 in federal funds, $20,000 from Minnesota, $10,000 from a local agency and provide only $5,000 of personal capital. For training and retraining of workers, grants and subsistence payments are available.

What Is Needed

To become operational, the program would need appointment, by the county board of commissioners, of a committee including representatives from banking, labor, agriculture, education and business. The county agricultural agent would serve as an ex-officio member of the commission in an advisory capacity.

A recent attorney general's ruling states that county boards can levy for funds to set up an Overall Economic Development Program. This could furnish money for survey work and technical assistance. Projects recommended for approval would go through the fieldman to the Department of Business Development to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and then to one of seven agencies which could offer assistance.

Congress has required that before a community in a redevelopment area can qualify for any of the loans, grants and other help provided by ARA, it must prepare an OEDP and have it approved by the ARA administrator. Therefore, preparation of the OEDP is the first step toward securing results from the program.

Local Initiative

Congress made this requirement to encourage communities to take the initiative in economic redevelopment. OEDP provides assurance that the community has carefully studied its problems and that it has a well-thought-out plan—based on available and potential financial, manpower and technical resources—for creating new employment that will contribute to a permanent solution of these problems.

The plan covers a description of the representative local organization responsible for the OEDP, a background picture of the redevelopment area as a place in which to live and work, an assessment of the labor skills, natural resources, physical facilities, transportation networks and available markets, an analysis of roadblocks impeding progress and a program of action for creating new employment opportunities.

The OEDP should be a "living" document, providing the local organization with a sense of direction, purpose and progress. An effective-redevelopment effort will require a continuous process of revising and updating the OEDP to keep abreast of changes in the economic situation and new methods of solving unemployment problems.

Women Invited To Participate In Home Program

275 Currently Enrolled In Pennington County's 19 Homemaker Groups

Schoolbells are ringing for the youngsters this month, but they're ringing also for their mothers. More and more women are becoming interested in continuing education for themselves. The challenge is probably greater than it has ever been to keep up with world happenings, the rapid advances in technology, with changes in home and family living.

The Pennington county extension for women, with emphasis on their development as more efficient homemakers, more understanding mothers and better citizens, according to Home Agent Laura Duerst.

The extension home program is a nationwide educational activity planned by local women and conducted cooperatively by the Agricultural Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the University of Minnesota and home economics program offers a phase of continuing education the county. In Minnesota more than 48,000 women are members of the organized groups in the extension home program. In Pennington county, present enrollment is 275 in 19 groups.

Subject matter is drawn from home economics and related fields which are helpful to individuals and families in identifying and solving their problems as managers of the resources of time, energy, money and material goods; as parents and family workers; as consumers and as citizens in the community.

The extension home program of study planned for this year includes low calorie desserts, buffet meals, Christmas decorations, "Make Yourself a Dress" workshops, winter and spring centerpieces and landscaping using native materials. First meetings planned will be in October in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

If you are not a member of a homemaking group, call the county extension office or see Home Agent Laura Duerst about participating in the program.

HAPPY HOMEMAKING

by Laura Duerst

PENNINGTON COUNTY HOME AGENT

As the children go back to school, the homemaker's program in the county begins again for another year. At the county fair a few women showed interest in joining a group. Anyone else still wishing to become a member can contact the extension office and I will either inform you of a local group or we will form a new group.

I wish to share a little information about the homemakers program.

The size of a group, as a rule, is small, about 8 to 15 members. The reason for the groups being small is that the meetings are held in the members' homes and not many homes can accommodate larger groups.

Any women may join if they are: 1. Interested in the program. 2. Attend meetings regularly. 3. Adopt recommendations when practical. 4. Make reports as requested. 5. Help select leaders and serve when selected. 6. Are helpful to leaders and other members.

Each local group elects a group chairman or president and any other officers it may need. Also, a home councilor is elected. The councilor attends six council meetings and serves as club representative to the county council. This council makes plans for the yearly work and activities.

The program for the year of 1962-63 is of variety. There will be two lessons in foods and nutrition — low calorie desserts and buffet meals; two sessions on decorations — Christmas decorations and centerpieces for winter and spring; an open meeting on landscaping by using native materials; and a workshop in clothing — "Make Yourself a Dress". For lessons like that the chairman contacts the extension office to obtain the material.

This past year Pennington county had 275 members. For the coming year it is hoped to aim closer to 300 or more. If any homemakers want any more information they can contact the extension office or talk to other homemakers already members of a homemaker's group.

Ag Short Courses are Well Attended

Some 11,030 persons attended short courses conducted by the University of Minnesota's Department of Agriculture Short Courses during the academic year 1961-62, according to the department's annual report.

T. H. Fenske, associate dean of the University's Institute of Agriculture, says the department last year sponsored 50 courses and conferences ranging from one day to a week in length for farmers, homemakers and others closely allied with agriculture.

Some were held off campus. Other courses varied in character from a one-day course for aircraft sprayers, a graduate Veterinarians Conference and an Editors Short Course, to Farm and Home Week, which offered many sessions each day of interest to everyone connected with agriculture.

Attendance ranged from 2,300 at the three-day Future Farmers of America Short Course to 18 at a short course in milk judging.

First Recognition at Middle River

The choice of Kathleen Hjelle to reign as Princess Kay of the Milky Way, elated dairy producers of Marshall County and Middle River especially, for it was here she took her first step up the ladder to the stars, the Middle River Record points out.

Kathy entered the Marshall County Dairy Day Contest at Middle River in 1961, was chosen one of the top three winners here, then went on to place second in the contest at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls for Regional Princess. After again winning in the Marshall County Contest at Middle River in 1962, she was chosen Northwest Dairy Princess at the Dairy Day contest in Thief River Falls.

By using nickel stainless steel bolts and nuts for fastening license plates to your car, the need for hacksawing rusty fasteners off each year is eliminated.

"Men of principle are always bold, but those who are bold are not always men of principle."

—Confucius

"Pride may be allowed to this or that degree, else a man cannot keep up his dignity. In gluttony there must be eating, in drunkenness there must be drinking; 'tis not the eating, nor 'tis not the drinking that is to be blamed, but the excess. So in pride."

—John Selden

Sound Judgment

In a recent speech former president Herbert Hoover urged a closer union of the free nations of the world. He charged that "— United Nations has failed to give us even a remote hope of lasting peace. Instead it adds to the dangers of wars which now surround us."

He attributed the failure of the United Nations organization to the Communists, and stated:

> "The time is here when, if the free nations are to survive, they must have a new and stronger world-wide organization."

We think the aged Hoover is still a man of sound judgment.

Regulating Drugs

It is understandable why the public should be alarmed over the thalidomide-connected birth deformities. They were the result of an error, a failure to check adequately the effects of a new drug.

The politicians have come up with solutions for this kind of a problem by more rigid regulations. More rigid regulations may be desireable. But, in the final analysis, we will have to look to the drug industry itself for the kind of regulation that will require more thorough testing without curbing progress.

In our zeal to guard against future mistakes, let's recognize the fact that we have made remarkable progress largely, perhaps, because our experimenters have not been confined to a point of inaction by regulations that discourage experiment.

We are satisfied that the drug industry recognizes fully its responsibilities in the experimental field. The unfortunate consequences of the thalidomide capsule has been in itself the most effective restraining influence that could be imposed upon the drug industry.

Dealing With Our Friends

The Soviet Union builds remarkable space ships, they tell us, but it seems that they are so busy building space ships that they do not have time to build the ships they need to sail the oceans of our own earth. That might be a justifiable conclusion after trying to figure out why the Russians have now placed a record sized order with the Japanese for tankers and other vessels numbering at least 45 and costing the equivalent of $96,060,000.

Until this year Britain has been the world's leader in ships under construction. Japanese shipyards are now assured of the No. 1 position.

Maybe there is no good reason why our friends, the Japanese, should not build ships for the power that promises to plow us under. Reports from Japan indicate that the Russians will have six years to pay for the ships they now have contracted for. Maybe the Russians figure that by the time six years have passed they won't have to pay.

It appears that our government has now withdrawn its objections to India's buying a fleet of Russian MIG jet fighters. According to a New York Times Service report our government was bitterly opposed to such a deal, stating:

> "India's negotiations with the Soviet Union for purchase and manufacture of supersonic jet fighters had been a cause of considerable friction between India and the U.S. American disapproval of India's military dealings with the Soviet Union had been taken as an interference with her independent policy.
> "Behind the defiance in forging the deal to establish their right to purchase "anything from anywhere," Indians contend there has been a real need for military equipment, especially from the Soviet Union. Indians hold that Russian help militarily would be a tremendous advantage in her serious dispute with Communist China over 56,000 square miles of border territory."

Prime Minister Nehru had some plausible reasons why the MIGs were desirable. Nevertheless Nehru was a little disturbed by the attitude of our government. As the Times Service explained it:

> "U.S. reaction to the deal was more vehement than was expected by the Indians. Naturally there has been apprehension that when the MIG deal materialized it would cost U.S. goodwill and aid.
> "These fears have been dispelled by President Kennedy's pronouncement. The New Delhi Hindustan Times noted with satisfaction that President Kennedy had made it clear that a country does not become less sovereign in the conduct of its external or internal affairs merely because it happens to need the enlightened co-operation, of other members of the world community."

It is comforting to know that we have not offended our Indian friends. They probably will forgive us for questioning their conduct and accept our financial assistance from now on providing we do not try to tell them what to do in their deals with our enemy.

Maybe it is high time that we quit trying to play things cute and start to realize that we are losing prestige.

One obesrver, commenting on our approach to international problems, has put it this way. He said our government takes a firm stand on every question. We come out shaking our fist. As we run into opposition we start shaking our finger, and we wind up nodding our head.

Strikes Outlawed?

One of the key men in our government during the last years of the Roosevelt administration and the first part of the Truman administration, testified before the Senate-House Economic Committee recently and recommended the outlawing of strikes. It was Marriner S. Eccles who expressed this view, saying in effect that when the Government permits too much power to be accumulated in any area of our society, there com*es a time when it is faced with the necessity* of taking drastic action.

Mr. Eccles has come to the conclusion that organized labor has acquired monopoly power to such an extent that it can and does bring about economic paralysis on a nationwide scale. The abuse of this power, he said, has resulted in huge losses in production and wages that have not been regained. The resulting dislocations can effect everyone adversely.

The Wall Street Journal sees the present pro-union Government edging closer and closer to anti-union action but doubts that the outlawing of strikes will be the result at this time. It points out that:

> "The Government persistently refuses to recognize that long step forward toward correcting this power imbalance which could be made if the anti-trust immunities and other special privileges granted to organized labor over the years, through legislation and favoritism, were removed. No other groups in our society enjoy similar freedom to engage in irresponsible behavior.
> "So there are ample evidences of an inevitable progression to the point at which Government, to protect the nation against the exercise of an excess of power by organized labor, will be driven to take the sort of extreme action Mr. Eccles already is recommending.
> "The unions should be the last to want that to happen, and yet their behavior is helping to bring it about."

Minnesota Was First

It pleased us mightily to read in the New York Times that the voluntary action of Minnesota dairy farmers to dry-feed their grade A milk cows, to reduce the amount of radioactive iodine 131 that nuclear testing puts into food, placed our state first in the nation in taking such a precautionary program. As reported by the Times:

> "The Minnesota program calls for shifting milk cows from pasture to dry hay and other feed that has been aged at least twenty-one days. Iodine 131 decays rapidly enough to lose its radiation punch in this length of time.
> "Levels of iodine 131 in milk here are not at danger levels. The new program is precautionary. State officials do not want to take a chance on any sharp rise in radioactivity levels as a result of Soviet testing that was resumed this month.
> "To check the effectiveness of the aged-feed program, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture is beginning a daily collection of milk samples from both participants and nonparticipants. The samples will be analyzed by the State Department of Health.
> "In case of danger, the unprotected milk would be held off the market or blended with the "clean" milk to reduce its iodine 131 content to a harmless level.
> "The program will continue until further notice. This probably will be late October, when cows in this area are normally taken off pasture and put in barns for the winter.
> "Stand-by programs such as Minnesota's are being considered in other states. So is another approach—to divert to such manufactured dairy products as butter and cheese the milk from any area within a state that is hard hit by fallout.
> "Iodine 131 loses much of its radioactivity by the time butter and cheese reacha the consumer."

Some well informed people tell us that there is no cause for alarm, and certainly no cause for hysteria, because of the fallout danger. The human race, we are assured, has survived many centuries of radioactive fallout from natural causes, long before the man-made poison was developed.

It is well, certainly, that scientists are alert to the possibilities of danger. The fact that they are alert gives us assurance that if and when a dangerous condition should develop we will be warned in due time and instructed how to protect ourselves. It is comforting to know that the dairy industry of Minnesota recognes fully its responsibility to the consumers of dairy products.

Interesting Opinions

"In the books and sayings of the wise ones there is wisdom and to spare for all mankind, but until you can say of a "truth" or principle: 'This I have found to be true,' so far as you are concerned it is not yet true; it is only reported to be true."

—Christmas Humphreys

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

An old gentleman was passing a drug store when a young man dashed out, took a flying leap and fell in a heap in the gutter. The older man, mystified, hurried over to him. "Are you hurt?" he asked.

"No," was the sharp reply, "but I'd like to meet the guy who moved my motorcycle."

August Weather Near Par With Past Years

If August is to be any indication, 1962 is settling down into a near average year after a spring season the likes of which has never been seen in this area. Temperatures were nearly as warm as last year's drought during August of this year and rain which fell on only eight days of the month totaled 4.66 inches at the Thief River Falls municipal airport.

High temperatures during the month this year averaged 80.57 degrees with low readings averaging 55 degrees. This compares with average highs of 82.42 in 1961, 79.68 in 1960 and 79.60 degrees in 1959 and average lows of 55.90 in 1961, 57.09 in 1960 and 56.60 degrees in 1959.

Highest reading of the month was 90 degrees on August 27 while the lowest mark was 43 degrees on August 17. In preceding years the high was 85 degrees in 1961, 92 in 1960, 90 in 1959 and 95 in 1958 and the low was 41 in 1961, 43 in 1960, 46 (three times) in 1959 and a chilly 38 in 1958. Lowest high this year was 69 degrees on August 16 while the highest low was 67 degrees on August 15 and 22.

Only seven days in August had high readings above 85 degrees while 11 days had low readings below 55 degrees. Eight days had low readings of 60 degrees or higher while only one day had a high reading below 70 degrees.

Greatest precipitation was 1.38 inches on August 11 with the second greatest being 1.10 inches on August 4. Two days was the most prolonged period of precipitation, this occurring three times at scattered points during the month.

Daily high and low temperatures and precipitation for August of 1962 is as follows:

Autumn Color in Minnesota

The grandeur and color of many trees and shrubs native to Minnesota are spectacular during autumn. The cool nights and balmy days during late August in Minnesota and through September help bring on the fine show of color.

The Staghorn sumac is among the first of the shrubs to show autumn color. First it turns a bronzy red, later a brilliant scarlet. Watch the sumac as a signal for the beginning of the blaze of color that marks a Minnesota fall.

The poplar, birch, bittersweet vine, larch, mountain ash, elm, basswood and silver maple put on a show of brilliant yellow. The red maple, sugar maple, oak and high bush cranberry give the display of red-orange and scarlet that is an especially thrilling sight.

A trip to almost any section of Minnesota will provide a good opportunity to see autumn color this fall. Especially beautiful in fall are the North Shore of Lake Superior, the River Road in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and the areas around Bemidji, Taylors Falls, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Grand Rapids, Duluth and Lake Minnetonka.

There's an old idea that the blaze of color in foliage is the result of frost. The real cause of the autumn show is the disappearance of the green pigment in the leaf, revealing other pigments that have been there during the growing season. Cool nights and sunny days help to intensify the red and yellow pigments.

ON DISPLAY Tuesday and Wednesday in Thief River Falls will be the "Telerama Tour" trailer, a 37-foot demonstration on wheels, which will be parked near the post office on Second street near LaBree av. N. A portion of the interior of the trailer is shown in the above photo. Featured are a display of phones of the future and an exact replica of the Vanguard satellite in the background. On the left is an exhibit of the phone company's new farm interphone, and on the right is information about research in the telephone industry. All persons in the Thief River Falls area are invited to visit the trailer, according to J. M. Wilson, local company manager.

Farmers Union Asks Legislation To Allow Fallout Determination

Support of legislation which would more clearly delegate the responsibility for determining if and when measures are needed to counteract the danger of pollution of food by radioactive fallout was adopted by the Minnesota Farmers Union board of directors last week. Attending the board meeting as the representative of Pennington county was Ole Selmanson, county Farmers Union chairman.

Discussion at the meeting suggested that the dry-lot feeding programs had not been conclusively shown to be necessary, but had become advisable after it became apparent that widespread publicity about Iodine 131 contamination had shaken public confidence in the wholesomeness of milk.

In the Twin Cities area it had been announced that farmers would be paid a premium of 45 cents per hundredweight (about one cent per quart) for milk produced by cows removed from pasture feeding. A one-cent retail price increase has gone into effect. In Duluth-Superior a premium of 20 cents per hundredweight will be offered and no retail price increase is contemplated.

The statement as adopted by the state organization is as follows:

Widespread publicity given to the radioactive fall-out danger of milk supplies has resulted, whether justified or not, in a decision to require farmers to feed cows producing for bottled milk to be fed on stored feed.

While it has not been conclusively determined that the danger is imminent and serious, the public discussion has undermined confidence to the extent that the emergency measures of dry-lot feeding were necessary because of the substantial reduction in consumer buying of fluid milk.

We do not believe that farmers or consumers should bear the cost of this precautionary program of dry-lot feeding.

The danger, whether real or not, is the responsibility of the federal government and the federal government therefore should assume the responsibility of reimbursing farmers for the expense or loss they have had in connection with the feeding program. The reimbursement should be adequate to cover the extra cost of feed and labor.

We recommend that until such time as the government can officially certify that danger no longer exists, that payments to farmers be authorized to compensate them for feed and labor costs.

We further recommend that, in order to avoid public confusion and doubt of this kind in the future, that the Congress adopt a bill setting forth an orderly procedure for the setting of standards for radioactive fall-out dangers, designating the officials to make the official findings and to determine the countermeasures, and to authorize payments or indemnities to producers for carrying out countermeasures.

THE ANDERSEN LETTER

Gov. Elmer L. Andersen

Employment continues to increase.

From January of 1961 to July of 1962 employment in Minnesota increased by 265,000 jobs. This is an enormous increase of 21.2 per cent, nearly three times the national increase of 7.7 per cent for the same period.

Unemployment in Minnesota is down to 3.8 per cent which is below the 4 per cent goal the President has set for the country. Nationally unemployment is still at a rate of 53 per cent.

The Minnesota situation is more remarkable considering the fact that there is still serious unemployment in northeastern Minnesota.

That situation will take time to correct unless we get dramatic action on taconite plants. I still believe the taconite amendment is one of the keys to solution of northeastern Minnesota's unemployment problem. I feel strongly that it is shameful that the people of our state cannot have an opportunity to vote on a matter that is so significant to our economy and which polls indicate the people favor overwhelmingly. The rank and file of the people of northeastern Minnesota favor the amendment, just as they do everywhere else in the state.

In the statewide picture, what pleases me as much as the increase in jobs itself is the increase in per capita personal income relative to the national average. We are not only gaining in jobs but we are gaining on the national average per capita income. In other words, we have more people working for more money indicating that the kind of industry opening up is higher than average pay industry. This is what we want, not low wage industry but plants that are looking for superior people and are willing to pay higher than average pay.

As you have read, conditions in many parts of the country are unsettled, originating with the steel price dispute. Minnesota has been bucking this trend, and continuing to make gains.

That Little Ol'World's Fair.

One of the interesting facts causing comment around the State Fair was the announcement that the entire Seattle World's Fair could be put on Machinery Hill at our own Minnesota State Fair, and there would be ten acres to spare! The Machinery Hill exhibit at our State Fair occupies 80 acres, the Seattle World's Fair 70 acres If you want a little more to be proud of in reference to our Fair, its average daily attendance is about double that of the Seattle World's Fair, and has the largest average daily attendance of any state fair in the country.

There is no question that the machinery exhibit at our State Fair is the biggest of its kind anywhere. One of the big exhibitors told me that they have given up exhibiting at all other state fairs in the country, so as to concentrate on the Minnesota State Fair.

Northing pleases me more than to see Minnesota leading the Nation, in one field after another.

Beet Acreage Reserve Hearing September 25

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced an informal public hearing, at which requests for acreage from the sugarbeet acreage reserve, as provided under recent admendments to the Sugar Act, will be received with respect to the current and the 1963, 1964, and 1965 crops. The hearing will also afford interested persons the opportunity of submitting data, views, and arguments with respect to such requests.

The Sugar Act, as amended this year, directs the Secretary of Agriculture to reserve annually for expansion of the domestic sugarbeet industry enough acreage to produce 65,000 tons of sugar. This reserve, which may be accumulated from year to year if not used, is to be taken out of the acreage required for producing the sugarbeet area's sugar quota. It is to be used primarily to permit new growers to enter the industry, and its allocation is to be preceded by the Department.

To allow sufficient lead-time for growers and the sugarbeet processing industry to plan for the erection of new processing facilities or expansion of existing facilities, the Department is asking that applications for acreage from the reserve submitted at the Sept. 25 hearing, and argument in support of the applications be based on use of the cumulative acreage to be reserved for the 1962-65 crop years.

Notice of the hearing, which is scheduled to appear in the Federal Register on Aug. 31, sets forth the items of information that should be submitted with requests for acreage. These include:

1. The location of the processing facility to be expanded or built;
2. The acreage being requested and the sugar equivalent;
3. The Crop year for which the acreage is being requested;
4. The daily slicing capacity of the new facility or the extent of expansion of the existing facility;
5. A description of the arrangements made for financing;
6. Proof of suitability of the area for producing sugarbeets;
7. The need for a cash crop or a replacement crop in the area;
8. The accessibility of the facility to sugar markets; and
9. Breakdowns of acreages that would be supplied to the facility by specified categories of growers.

The notice also contains the applicable provisions of the Sugar Act and pertinent excerpts of legislative history.

Provision for submitting additional written arguments and briefs relating to requests for acreage from the reserve will be announced at the hearing.

Meet Sen. Murray

State Senator Louis A. Murray of East Grand Forks has represented the 66th Legislative District for the past 12 years. This district included only Polk County but because of the legislative redistricting act now in effect, the district will now include the counties of Pennington Polk and Red Lake.

Senator Murray is anxious to personally meet as many people as possible in the new district between now and election day.

EXPERIENCE

A former Municipal Judge and City Councilman in East Grand Forks where he was born and raised, Senator Murray has successfully been elected to every public office for which he campaigned.

WAR VETERAN

An overseas veteran, Murray served in the Southwest Pacific for four years with the army engineers. He is the only war veteran seeking this office. He is an active member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legon.

OCCUPATION

Senator Murray is employed as a freight conductor and brakeman with the Northern Pacific Railway Company since 1938.

FAMILY MAN

The Senator is married and lives with his wife and six children in East Grand Forks. (They're expecting their seventh).

EDUCATION

Senator Murray attended Northern State Teachers College at Aberdeen, South Dakota, and the University of North Dakota.

ORGANIZATIONS

Member of Fraternal Order of Eagles, Elks, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Rod and Gun Club, and Chamber of Commerce.

COMMITTEES

Senator Murray serves on five very important committees and two interim study commissions. His seniority entitles him to serve on the following committees: Taxes and Tax Laws, Civil Adminstration, Liquor Control, Public Welfare, and General Legislation. He serves on the Iron Ore Taxation Study Commission and also the Commission on Metropolitan Sanitation.

POLITICAL AFFILIATION

Senator Murray is a lifelong Democrat. He was a delegate to the 1955 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. He was Polk County D. F. L. Chairman for 10 years and Secy.-Treas. of the 9th District Committee. He has caucused with the Senate Liberals for 12 years. He received the D. F. L. endorsement from Polk, Pennington and Red Lake County Committees. The Minnesota Legislature is supposedly non-partisan but when the legislature convenes a member must join either the Conservative or Liberal group. It is common knowledge that the Liberals are Democrats and the Conservatives are Republicans. My two opponents in this Primary Election have caucused Conservative in the past.

Prepared, circulated, and paid for by Murray for Senator Volunteer Committee, Irving Beyer, Red Lake Falls, Sec'y.

WHAT PRICE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT? This is a good question to consider at the present time when Rural Areas Development and Area Redevelopment Administration talk is going the rounds in local political circles. A hearing on the related programs will be held Tuesday, September 11, at the Pennington county courthouse upon the call of the county board of commissioners.

The question could boil down to the basis of whether or not an individual believes that government agencies can provide the needed incentive for local groups to help themselves. At least it can be said that the thought behind the plan is basically good — the idea that communities should help themselves.

There is, however, something in the tone of the programs which sounds directly opposed to the American free enterprise system — a system where, if you will, the law is that of survival of the fittest. This has the appearance of a leveling program which will bring, if completely successful, the supposed underpriviledged areas to a par with more successful areas. This will require, of course, government assistance, both technical and financial.

I can see in the program an opportunity for communities grasping in the dark to find a wall to lean on. I can also see a danger of a federal program getting started on a small level, compounding itself in the varied aspects which may be presented, costing much more than anticipated and benefitting areas which really have been and could continue to be making progress without it.

Perhaps the September 11 meeting will shed more light on the subject whic has been both dim and confused. It should bear most careful consideration and should definitely not be considered "just what the doctor ordered" as a "cure-all" for all economic problems of a rural area. Just as projects, expensive and out of line with the original thought, came in for severe criticism under urban renewal plans, this program could go much the same way. Government has a way of getting a tiger by the tail and finding itself in a position of being afraid to let go yet unable to control its subject.

On the surface it seems like the program is designed to create an agency which channels information into other existing agencies. This appears to be duplication of duty and expense. Work required by the programs should be accomplished by any progressive community with or without government incentive, organization or control.

Under any condition except dire emergency, I believe the federal government should keep its lengthy nose out of local problems. I don't believe that Pennington county is in a state of dire emergency — or that most of the other 800 communities now organized under RAD-ARA are either. It would be well to carefully weigh the expense against the anticipated benefits before jumping into the program with both feet. The promised land of federal assistance has often proved to be nothing but quicksand.

Speaking of efficiency, the story is told of an efficiency expert asked to examine a business. "What do you do here?" he asked the first employee. "Nothing," was the unhesitant reply. "What about you?" he asked the next. "Nothing," the man answered. In his black book the expert noted, "Duplication of Duty."

Community prestige and status—what's it worth??? Ever stop to think about it? Perhaps we should just a little more often than we do. It may mean more than we think.

Only last week our community received the attention of every citizen in the state that reads a newspaper or watches TV or listens to the radio. Not only was our Northwestern Dairy Princess named Princess Kay of the Milky Way which is quite an honor in itself, but our TRF Thieves won their way into the Minnesota Class "B" state baseball tournament.

We have reason to believe that community prestige and status carry a lot of weight in the field of trade area development, industrial development, ect. It is one of the most appealing types of advertising for a community just to stand out a little bit better than most. Yet, for this to happen we must talk about community pride and the pursuit of excellence.

No community on it's own volition will stand out unless it is proud of itself and truly works at the pursuit for excellence. Without desire our Princess wouldn't have become Princess Kay. Without desire our baseball team wouldn't have gone to the state baseball tournament. Without desire we can accomplish nothing. So, we feel that the pursuit of excellence is something worthy of conversation and our efforts.

As we look back over the past couple of years we see a library that didn't get built, a school that didn't get built, a river that wasn't dredged, and perhaps there are other things that didn't get done—mainly because a large number of folks in the Thief River Falls community have almost no pride and certainly won't go out of their way in the pursuit of excellence.

We hear comments all during the year from some of the foghorns in the community about why there haven't been more industries brought to Thief River, why we haven't got a junior college, why this and why that. There are several ways to answer those questions but the fact remains that maybe we would have some of those things if efforts had been concentrated and intensified in that direction. Maybe we've got too many who seem to enjoy voting "No" rather than "Yes", when our very progress depends on the results of a "showdown".

In any event, think of this as "your home town" as you Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minneasota, Thief River Falls.

"Pride may be allowed to this or that degree, else a man cannot keep up his dignity. In gluttony there must be eating, in drunkenness there must be drinking; 'tis not the eating, nor 'tis not the drinking that is to be blamed, but the excess. So in pride."

Sound Judgment

In a recent speech former president Herbert Hoover urged a closer union of the free nations of the world. He charged that "— United Nations has failed to give us even a remote hope of lasting peace. Instead it adds to the dangers of wars which now surround us."

He attributed the failure of the United Nations organization to the Communists, and stated:

> "The time is here when, if the free nations are to survive, they must have a new and stronger world-wide organization."

We think the aged Hoover is still a man of sound judgment.

Regulating Drugs

It is understandable why the public should be alarmed over the thalidomide-connected birth deformities. They were the result of an error, a failure to check adequately the effects of a new drug.

The politicians have come up with solutions for this kind of a problem by more rigid regulations. More rigid regulations may be desireable. But, in the final analysis, we will have to look to the drug industry itself for the kind of regulation that will require more thorough testing without curbing progress.

In our zeal to guard against future mistakes, let's recognize the fact that we have made remarkable progress largely, perhaps, because our experimenters have not been confined to a point of inaction by regulations that discourage experiment.

We are satisfied that the drug industry recognizes fully its responsibilities in the experimental field. The unfortunate consequences of the thalidomide capsule has been in itself the most effective restraining influence that could be imposed upon the drug industry.

Dealing With Our Friends

The Soviet Union builds remarkable space ships, they tell us, but it seems that they are so busy building space ships that they do not have time to build the ships they need to sail the oceans of our own earth. That might be a justifiable conclusion after trying to figure out why the Russians have now placed a record sized order with the Japanese for tankers and other vessels numbering at least 45 and costing the equivalent of $96,060,000.

Until this year Britain has been the world's leader in ships under construction. Japanese shipyards are now assured of the No. 1 position.

Maybe there is no good reason why our friends, the Japanese, should not build ships for the power that promises to plow us under. Reports from Japan indicate that the Russians will have six years to pay for the ships they now have contracted for. Maybe the Russians figure that by the time six years have passed they won't have to pay.

It appears that our government has now withdrawn its objections to India's buying a fleet of Russian MIG jet fighters. According to a New York Times Service report our government was bitterly opposed to such a deal, stating:

> "India's negotiations with the Soviet Union for purchase and manufacture of supersonic jet fighters had been a cause of considerable friction between India and the U.S. American disapproval of India's military dealings with the Soviet Union had been taken as an interference with her independent policy.
> "Behind the defiance in forging the deal to establish their right to purchase "anything from anywhere," Indians contend there has been a real need for military equipment, especially from the Soviet Union. Indians hold that Russian help militarily would be a tremendous advantage in her serious dispute with Communist China over 56,000 square miles of border territory."

Prime Minister Nehru had some plausible reasons why the MIGs were desirable. Nevertheless Nehru was a little disturbed by the attitude of our government. As the Times Service explained it:

> "U.S. reaction to the deal was more vehement than was expected by the Indians. Naturally there has been apprehension that when the MIG deal materialized it would cost U.S. goodwill and aid.
> "These fears have been dispelled by President Kennedy's pronouncement. The New Delhi Hindustan Times noted with satisfaction that President Kennedy had made it clear that a country does not become less sovereign in the conduct of its external or internal affairs merely because it happens to need the enlightened co-operation of other members of the world community."

It is comforting to know that we have not offended our Indian friends. They probably will forgive us for questioning their conduct and accept our financial assistance from now on providing we do not try to tell them what to do in their deals with our enemy.

Maybe it is high time that we quit trying to play things cute and start to realize that we are losing prestige.

One obesrver, commenting on our approach to international problems, has put it this way. He said our government takes a firm stand on every question. We come out shaking our fist. As we run into opposition we start shaking our finger, and we wind up nodding our head.

Strikes Outlawed?

One of the key men in our government during the last years of the Roosevelt administration and the first part of the Truman administration, testified before the Senate-House Economic Committee recently and recommended the outlawing of strikes. It was Marriner S. Eccles who expressed this view, saying in effect that when the Government permits too much power to be accumulated in any area of our society, there comes a time when it is faced with the necessity of taking drastic action.

Mr. Eccles has come to the conclusion that organized labor has acquired monopoly power to such an extent that it can and does bring about economic paralysis on a nation-wide scale. The abuse of this power, he said, has resulted in huge losses in production and wages that have not been regained. The resulting dislocations can effect everyone adversely.

The Wall Street Journal sees the present pro-union Government edging closer and closer to anti-union action but doubts that the outlawing of strikes will be the result at this time. It points out that:

> "The Government persistently refuses to recognize that long step forward toward correcting this power imbalance which could be made if the anti-trust immunities and other special privileges granted to organized labor over the years, through legislation and favoritism, were removed. No other groups in our society enjoy similar freedom to engage in irresponsible behavior.
> "So there are ample evidences of an inevitable progression to the point at which Government, to protect the nation against the exercise of an excess of power by organized labor, will be driven to take the sort of extreme action Mr. Eccles already is recommending.
> "The unions should be the last to want that to happen, and yet their behavior is helping to bring it about."

Minnesota Was First

It pleased us mightily to read in the New York Times that the voluntary action of Minnesota dairy farmers to dry-feed their grade A milk cows, to reduce the amount of radioactive iodine 131 that nuclear testing puts into food, placed our state first in the nation in taking such a precautionary program. As reported by the Times:

> "The Minnesota program calls for shifting milk cows from pasture to dry hay and other feed that has been aged at least twenty-one days. Iodine 131 decays rapidly enough to lose its radiation punch in this length of time.
> "Levels of iodine 131 in milk here are not at danger levels. The new program is precautionary. State officials do not want to take a chance on any sharp rise in radioactivity levels as a result of Soviet testing that was resumed this month.
> "To check the effectiveness of the aged-feed program, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture is beginning a daily collection of milk samples from both participants and nonparticipants. The samples will be analyzed by the State Department of Health.
> "In case of danger, the unprotected milk would be held off the market or blended with the "clean" milk to reduce its iodine 131 content to a harmless level.
> "The program will continue until further notice. This probably will be late October, when cows in this area are normally taken off pasture and put in barns for the winter.
> "Stand-by programs such as Minnesota's are being considered in other states. So is another approach—to divert to such manufactured dairy products as butter and cheese the milk from any area within a state that is hard hit by fallout.
> "Iodine 131 loses much of its radioactivity by the time butter and cheese reacha the consumer."

Some well informed people tell us that there is no cause for alarm, and certainly no cause for hysteria, because of the fallout danger. The human race, we are assured, has survived many centuries of radioactive fallout from natural causes, long before the man-made poison was developed.

It is well, certainly, that scientists are alert to the possibilities of danger. The fact that they are alert gives us assurance that if and when a dangerous condition should develop we will be warned in due time and instructed how to protect ourselves. It is comforting to know that the dairy industry of Minnesota recognes fully its responsibility to the consumers of dairy products.

Interesting Opinions

"In the books and sayings of the wise ones there is wisdom and to spare for all mankind, but until you can say of a "truth" or principle: 'This I have found to be true,' so far as you are concerned it is not yet true; it is only reported to be true."
—Christmas Humphreys

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

An old gentleman was passing a drug store when a young man dashed out, took a flying leap and fell in a heap in the gutter. The older man, mystified, hurried over to him. "Are you hurt?" he asked.

"No," was the sharp reply, "but I'd like to meet the guy who moved my motorcycle."

1962 Settles Down . . .

August Weather Near Par With Past Years

If August is to be any indication, 1962 is settling down into a near average year after a spring season the likes of which has never been seen in this area. Temperatures were nearly as warm as last year's drought during August of this year and rain which fell on only eight days of the month totaled 4.66 inches at the Thief River Falls municipal airport.

High temperatures during the month this year averaged 80.57 degrees with low readings averaging 55 degrees. This compares with average highs of 82.42 in 1961, 79.68 in 1960 and 79.60 degrees in 1959 and average lows of 55.90 in 1961, 57.09 in 1960 and 56.60 degrees in 1959.

Highest reading of the month was 90 degrees on August 27 while the lowest mark was 43 degrees on August 17. In preceding years the high was 95 degrees in 1961, 92 in 1960, 90 in 1959 and 95 in 1958 and the low was 41 in 1961, 43 in 1960, 46 (three times) in 1959 and a chilly 38 in 1958. Lowest high this year was 69 degrees on August 16 while the highest low was 67 degrees on August 15 and 22.

Only seven days in August had high readings above 85 degrees while 11 days had low readings below 55 degrees. Eight days had low readings of 60 degrees or higher while only one day had a high reading below 70 degrees.

Greatest precipitation was 1.38 inches on August 11 with the second greatest being 1.10 inches on August 4. Two days was the most prolonged period of precipitation, this occurring three times at scattered points during the month.

Daily high and low temperatures and precipitation for August of 1962 is as follows:

Autumn Color in Minnesota

The grandeur and color of many trees and shrubs native to Minnesota are spectacular during autumn. The cool nights and balmy days during late August in Minnesota and through September help bring on the fine show of color.

The Staghorn sumac is among the first of the shrubs to show autumn color. First it turns a bronzy red, later a brilliant scarlet. Watch the sumac as a signal for the beginning of the blaze of color that marks a Minnesota fall.

The poplar, birch, bittersweet vine, larch, mountain ash, elm, basswood and silver maple put on a show of brilliant yellow. The red maple, sugar maple, oak and high bush cranberry give the display of red-orange and scarlet that is an expecially thrilling sight.

A trip to almost any section of Minnesota will provide a good opportunity to see autumn color this fall. Especially beautiful in fall are the North Shore of Lake Superior, the River Road in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and the areas around Bemidji, Taylors Falls, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Grand Rapids, Duluth and Lake Minnetonka.

There's an old idea that the blaze of color in foliage is the result of frost. The real cause of the autumn show is the disappearance of the green pigment in the leaf, revealing other pigments that have been there during the growing season. Cool nights and sunny days help to intensify the red and yellow pigments.

Farmers Union Asks Legislation To Allow Fallout Determination

Support of legislation which would more clearly delegate the responsibility for determining if and when measures are needed to counteract the danger of pollution of food by radioactive fallout was adopted by the Minnesota Farmers Union board of directors last week. Attending the board meeting as the representative of Pennington county was Ole Selmanson, county Farmers Union chairman.

Discussion at the meeting suggested that the dry-lot feeding programs had not been conclusively shown to be necessary, but had become advisable after it became apparent that widespread publicity about Iodine 131 contamination had shaken public confidence in the wholesomeness of milk.

In the Twin Cities area it had been announced that farmers would be paid a premium of 45 cents per hundredweight (about one cent per quart) for milk produced by cows removed from pasture feeding. A one-cent retail price increase has gone into effect. In Duluth-Superior a premium of 20 cents per hundredweight will be offered and no retail price increase is contemplated.

The statement as adopted by the state organization is as follows:

Widespread publicity given to the radioactive fall-out danger of milk supplies has resulted, whether justified or not, in a decision to require farmers to feed cows producing for bottled milk to be fed on stored feed.

While it has not been conclusively determined that the danger is imminent and serious, the public discussion has undermined con fidence to the extent that th emergency measures of dry-lo feeding were necessary because o the substantial reduction in co sumer buying of fluid milk.

We do not believe that farmer or consumers should bear th cost of this precautionary pr gram of dry-lot feeding.

The danger, whether real c not, is the responsibility of th federal government and the fe eral government therefore shou assume the responsibility of r imbursing farmers for the expen or loss they have had in connec ion with the feeding program. T reimbursement should be adequa to cover the extra cost of fe and labor.

We recommend that until su time as the government can ficially certify that danger longer exists, that payments farmers be authorized to comp sate them for feed and labor co

We further recommend that, order to avoid public confus and doubt of this kind in the ture, that the Congress adopt bill setting forth an orderly p cedure for the setting of sta ards for radioactive fall-out da ers, designating the officials make the official findings and determine the countermeasu and to authorize payments or indemnities to producers for carrying out countermeasures.

Gov. Elmer L. Andersen

Employment continues to increase.

From January of 1961 to July of 1962 employment in Minnesota increased by 265,000 jobs. This is an enormous increase of 21.2 per cent, nearly three times the national increase of 7.7 per cent for the same period.

Unemployment in Minnesota is down to 3.8 per cent which is below the 4 per cent goal the President has set for the country. Nationally unemployment is still at a rate of 5.3 per cent.

The Minnesota situation is more remarkable considering the fact that there is still serious unemployment in northeastern Minnesota.

That situation will take time to correct unless we get dramatic action on taconite plants. I still believe the taconite amendment is one of the keys to solution of northeastern Minnesota's unemployment problem. I feel strongly that it is shameful that the people of our state cannot have an opportunity to vote on a matter that is so significant to our economy and which polls indicate the people favor overwhelmingly. The rank and file of the people of northeastern Minnesota favor the amendment, just as they do everywhere else in the state.

In the statewide picture, what pleases me as much as the increase in jobs itself is the increase in per capita personal income relative to the national average. We are not only gaining in jobs but we are gaining on the national average per capita income. In other words, we have more people working for more money indicating that the kind of industry opening up is higher than average pay industry. This is what we want, not low wage industry but plants that are looking for superior people and are willing to pay higher than average pay.

As you have read, conditions in many parts of the country are unsettled, originating with the steel price dispute. Minnesota has been bucking this trend, and continuing to make gains.

That Little Ol'World's Fair.

One of the interesting facts causing comment around the State Fair was the announcement that the entire Seattle World's Fair could be put on Machinery Hill at our own Minnesota State Fair, and there would be ten acres to spare! The Machinery Hill exhibit at our State Fair occupies 80 acres, the Seattle World's Fair 70 acres If you want a little more to be proud of in reference to our Fair, its average daily attendance is about double that of the Seattle World's Fair, and has the largest average daily attendance of any state fair in the country.

There is no question that the

Beet Acreage Reserve Hearing September 25

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced an informal public hearing, at which requests for acreage from the sugarbeet acreage reserve, as provided under recent admendments to the Sugar Act, will be received with respect to the current and the 1963, 1964, and 1965 crops. The hearing will also afford interested persons the opportunity of submitting data, views, and arguments with respect to such requests.

The Sugar Act, as amended this year, directs the Secretary of Agriculture to reserve annually for expansion of the domestic sugarbeet industry enough acreage to produce 65,000 tons of sugar. This reserve, which may be accumulated from year to year if not used, is to be taken out of the acreage required for producing the sugarbeet area's sugar quota. It is to be used primarily to permit new specified categories of growers.

The notice also contains the applicable provisions of the Sugar Act and pertinent excerpts of legislative history.

Provision for submitting additional written arguments and briefs relating to requests for acreage from the reserve will be announced at the hearing.

A former Municipal Judge and City Councilman in East Grand Forks where he was born and raised, Senator Murray has success fully been elected to every public office for which he campaigned.

WAR VETERAN
An overseas veteran, Murray served in the Southwest Pacific for four years with the army engineers. He is the only war veteran seeking this office. He is an active member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legon.

OCCUPATION
Senator Murray is employed as a freight conductor and brakeman with the Northern Pacific Railway Company since 1938.

FAMILY MAN
The Senator is married and lives with his wife and six children in East Grand Forks. (They're expecting their seventh).

EDUCATION
Senator Murray attended Northern State Teachers College at Aberdeen, South Dakota, and the University of North Dakota.

ORGANIZATIONS
Member of Fraternal Order of Eagles, Elks, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Rod and Gun Club, and Chamber of Commerce.

COMMITTEES
Senator Murray serves on five very important committees and two interim study commissions. His seniority entitles him to serve on the following committees: Taxes and Tax Laws, Civil Adminstration, Liquor Control, Public Welfare, and General Legislation. He serves on the Iron Ore Taxation Study Commission and also the Commission on Metropolitan Sanitation.

POLITICAL AFFILIATION
Senator Murray is a lifelong Democrat. He was a delegate to the 1955 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. He was Polk County D. F. L. Chairman for 10 years and Secy.-Treas. of the 9th District Committee. He has caucused with the Senate Liberals for 12 years. He received the D. F. L. endorsement from Polk, Pennington and Red Lake County Committees. The Minnesota Legislature is supposedly non-partisan but when the legislature convenes a member must join either the Conservative or Liberal group. It is common knowledge that the Liberals are Democrats and the Conservatives are Republicans. My two opponents in this Primary Election have caucused Conservative in the past.

WHAT PRICE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT? This is a good question to consider at the present time when Rural Areas Development and Area Redevelopment Administration talk is going the rounds in local political circles. A hearing on the related programs will be held Tuesday, September 11, at the Pennington county courthouse upon the call of the county board of commissioners.

The question could boil down to the basis of whether or not an individual believes that government agencies can provide the needed incentive for local groups to help themselves. At least it can be said that the thought behind the plan is basically good — the idea that communities should help themselves.

There is, however, something in the tone of the programs which sounds directly opposed to the American free enterprise system — a system where, if you will, the law is that of survival of the fittest. This has the appearance of a leveling program which will bring, if completely successful, the supposed underprivilledged areas to a par with more successful areas. This will require, of course, government assistance, both technical and financial.

I can see in the program an opportunity for communities grasping in the dark to find a wall to lean on. I can also see a danger of a federal program getting started on a small level, compounding itself in the varied aspects which may be presented, costing much more than anticipated and benefitting areas which really have been and could continue to be making progress without it.

Perhaps the September 11 meeting will shed more light on the subject whic has been both dim and confused. It should bear most careful consideration and should definitely not be considered "just what the doctor ordered" as a "cure-all" for all economic problems of a rural area. Just as projects, expensive and out of line with the original thought, came in for severe criticism under urban renewal plans, this program could go much the same way. Government has a way of getting a tiger by the tail and finding itself in a position of being afraid to let go yet unable to control its subject.

On the surface it seems like the program is designed to create an agency which channels information into other existing agencies. This appears to be duplication of duty and expense. Work required by the programs should be accomplished by any progressive community with or without government incentive, organization or control.

Under any condition except dire emergency, I believe the federal government should keep its lengthy nose out of local problems. I don't believe that Pennington county is in a state of dire emergency — or that most of the other 800 communities now organized under RAD-ARA are either. It would be well to carefully weigh the expense against the anticipated benefits before jumping into the program with both feet. The promised land of federal assistance has often proved to be nothing but quicksand.

Speaking of efficiency, the story is told of an efficiency expert asked to examine a business. "What do you do here?" he asked the first employee. "Nothing," was the unhesitant reply. "What about you?" he asked the next. "Nothing," the man answered. In his black book the expert noted, "Duplication of Duty."

Hats off collectively from the sports fans in the community to the Thief River Falls Thieves for their sterling tournament performances. This is a group of athletes, serving without compensation, which has brought state-wide recognition to the community and exhibited what can be accomplished through teamwork and determination.

School has now started and information is being provided to inquiring minds. "The offspring of a single rat may number several hundred," remarked an instructor in a local biology class. "Wow," exclaimed a wide-eyed student, "just think what the offspring of a married rat might be!"

MINNESOTA, HAIL TO THEE

Hail the Minnesota Twins,
May their record in League wins
Qualify this state's own Dearies
To compete in World Series.

While bats ring out through sky blue air,
This shall be our fervent prayer:

May Vic and Earl keep good health,
May cousin Cal know ticket wealth,
May winning ways be prone to last,
May hitting slumps be in the past,
May pitching opposition smother,
(May Kralick even pitch another)
May sun shine on "The Met" each day—
And may the Twins go all the way."

Community prestige and status—what's it worth??? Ever stop to think about it? Perhaps we should just a little more often than we do. It may mean more than we think.

Only last week our community received the attention of every citizen in the state that reads a newspaper or watches TV or listens to the radio. Not only was our Northwestern Dairy Princess named Princess Kay of the Milky Way which is quite an honor in itself, but our TRF Thieves won their way into the Minnesota Class "B" state baseball tournament.

We have reason to believe that community prestige and status carry a lot of weight in the field of trade area development, industrial development, ect. It is one of the most appealing types of advertising for a community just to stand out a little bit better than most. Yet, for this to happen we must talk about community pride and the pursuit of excellence.

No community on it's own volition will stand out unless it is proud of itself and truly works at the pursuit for excellence. Without desire our Princess wouldn't have become Princess Kay. Without desire our baseball team wouldn't have gone to the state baseball tournament. Without desire we can accomplish nothing. So, we feel that the pursuit of excellence is something worthy of conversation and our efforts.

As we look back over the past couple of years we see a library that didn't get built, a school that didn't get built, a river that wasn't dredged, and perhaps there are other things that didn't get done—mainly because a large number of folks in the Thief River Falls community have almost no pride and certainly won't go out of their way in the pursuit of excellence.

We hear comments all during the year from some of the foghorns in the community about why there haven't been more industries brought to Thief River, why we haven't got a junior college, why this and why that. There are several ways to answer those questions but the fact remains that maybe we would have some of those things if efforts had been concentrated and intensified in that direction. Maybe we've got too many who seem to enjoy voting "No" rather than "Yes", when our very progress depends on the results of a "showdown".

In any event, think of this as "your home town" as you Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minneasota, Thief River Falls.

"Men of principle are always bold, but those who are bold are not always men of principle."

"Pride may be allowed to this or that degree, else a man cannot keep up his dignity. In gluttony there must be eating, in drunkenness there must be drinking; 'tis not the eating, nor 'tis not the drinking that is to be blamed, but the excess. So in pride."

—John Selden

Sound Judgment

In a recent speech former president Herbert Hoover urged a closer union of the free nations of the world. He charged that "— United Nations has failed to give us even a remote hope of lasting peace. Instead it adds to the dangers of wars which now surround us."

He attributed the failure of the United Nations organization to the Communists, and stated:

> "The time is here when, if the free nations are to survive, they must have a new and stronger world-wide organization."

We think the aged Hoover is still a man of sound judgment.

Regulating Drugs

It is understandable why the public should be alarmed over the thalidomide-connected birth deformities. They were the result of an error, a failure to check adequately the effects of a new drug.

The politicians have come up with solutions for this kind of a problem by more rigid regulations. More rigid regulations may be desireable. But, in the final analysis, we will have to look to the drug industry itself for the kind of regulation that will require more thorough testing without curbing progress.

In our zeal to guard against future mistakes, let's recognize the fact that we have made remarkable progress largely, perhaps, because our experimenters have not been confined to a point of inaction by regulations that discourage experiment.

We are satisfied that the drug industry recognizes fully its responsibilities in the experimental field. The unfortunate consequences of the thalidomide capsule has been in itself the most effective restraining influence that could be imposed upon the drug industry.

Dealing With Our Friends

The Soviet Union builds remarkable space ships, they tell us, but it seems that they are so busy building space ships that they do not have time to build the ships they need to sail the oceans of our own earth. That might be a justifiable conclusion after trying to figure out why the Russians have now placed a record sized order with the Japanese for tankers and other vessels numbering at least 45 and costing the equivalent of $96,060,000.

Until this year Britain has been the world's leader in ships under construction. Japanese shipyards are now assured of the No. 1 position.

Maybe there is no good reason why our friends, the Japanese, should not build ships for the power that promises to plow us under. Reports from Japan indicate that the Russians will have six years to pay for the ships they now have contracted for. Maybe the Russians figure that by the time six years have passed they won't have to pay.

It appears that our government has now withdrawn its objections to India's buying a fleet of Russian MIG jet fighters. According to a New York Times Service report our government was bitterly opposed to such a deal, stating:

> "India's negotiations with the Soviet Union for purchase and manufacture of supersonic jet fighters had been a cause of considerable friction between India and the U.S. American disapproval of India's military dealings with the Soviet Union had been taken as an interference with her independent policy.
> "Behind the defiance in forging the deal to establish their right to purchase "anything from anywhere," Indians contend there has been a real need for military equipment, especially from the Soviet Union. Indians hold that Russian help militarily would be a tremendous advantage in her serious dispute with Communist China over 56,000 square miles of border territory."

Prime Minister Nehru had some plausible reasons why the MIGs were desirable. Nevertheless Nehru was a little disturbed by the attitude of our government. As the Times Service explained it:

> "U.S. reaction to the deal was more vehement than was expected by the Indians. Naturally there has been apprehension that when the MIG deal materialized it would cost U.S. goodwill and aid.
> "These fears have been dispelled by President Kennedy's pronouncement. The New Delhi Hindustan Times noted with satisfaction that President Kennedy had made it clear that a country does not become less sovereign in the conduct of its external or internal affairs merely because it happens to need the enlightened co-operation of other members of the world community."

It is comforting to know that we have not offended our Indian friends. They probably will forgive us for questioning their conduct and accept our financial assistance from now on providing we do not try to tell them what to do in their deals with our enemy.

Maybe it is high time that we quit trying to play things cute and start to realize that we are losing prestige.

One obesrver, commenting on our approach to international problems, has put it this way. He said our government takes a firm stand on every question. We come out shaking our fist. As we run into opposition we start shaking our finger, and we wind up nodding our head.

Strikes Outlawed?

One of the key men in our government during the last years of the Roosevelt administration and the first part of the Truman administration, testified before the Senate-House Economic Committee recently and recommended the outlawing of strikes. It was Marriner S. Eccles who expressed this view, saying in effect that when the Government permits too much power to be accumulated in any area of our society, there comes a time when it is faced with the necessity of taking drastic action.

Mr. Eccles has come to the conclusion that organized labor has acquired monopoly power to such an extent that it can and does bring about economic paralysis on a nation-wide scale. The abuse of this power, he said, has resulted in huge losses in production and wages that have not been regained. The resulting dislocations can effect everyone adversely.

The Wall Street Journal sees the present pro-union Government edging closer and closer to anti-union action but doubts that the outlawing of strikes will be the result at this time. It points out that:

> "The Government persistently refuses to recognize that long step forward toward correcting this power imbalance which could be made if the anti-trust immunities and other special privileges granted to organized labor over the years, through legislation and favoritism, were removed: No other groups in our society enjoy similar freedom to engage in irresponsible behavior.
> "So there are ample evidences of an inevitable progression to the point at which Government, to protect the nation against the exercise of an excess of power by organized labor, will be driven to take the sort of extreme action Mr. Eccles already is recommending.
> "The unions should be the last to want that to happen, and yet their behavior is helping to bring it about."

Minnesota Was First

It pleased us mightily to read in the New York Times that the voluntary action of Minnesota dairy farmers to dry-feed their grade A milk cows, to reduce the amount of radioactive iodine 131 that nuclear testing puts into food, placed our state first in the nation in taking such a precautionary program. As reported by the Times:

> "The Minnesota program calls for shifting milk cows from pasture to dry hay and other feed that has been aged at least twenty-one days. Iodine 131 decays rapidly enough to lose its radiation punch in this length of time.
> "Levels of iodine 131 in milk here are not at danger levels. The new program is precautionary. State officials do not want to take a chance on any sharp rise in radioactivity levels as a result of Soviet testing that was resumed this month.
> "To check the effectiveness of the aged-feed program, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture is beginning a daily collection of milk samples from both participants and nonparticipants. The samples will be analyzed by the State Department of Health.
> "In case of danger, the unprotected milk would be held off the market or blended with the "clean" milk to reduce its iodine 131 content to a harmless level.
> "The program will continue until further notice. This probably will be late October, when cows in this area are normally taken off pasture and put in barns for the winter.
> "Stand-by programs such as Minnesota's are being considered in other states. So is another approach—to divert to such manufactured dairy products as butter and cheese the milk from any area within a state that is hard hit by fallout.
> "Iodine 131 loses much of its radioactivity by the time butter and cheese reacha the consumer."

Some well informed people tell us that there is no cause for alarm, and certainly no cause for hysteria, because of the fallout danger. The human race, we are assured, has survived many centuries of radioactive fallout from natural causes, long before the man-made poison was developed.

It is well, certainly, that scientists are alert to the possibilities of danger. The fact that they are alert gives us assurance that if and when a dangerous condition should develop we will be warned in due time and instructed how to protect ourselves. It is comforting to know that the dairy industry of Minnesota recognes fully its responsibility to the consumers of dairy products.

Interesting Opinions

"In the books and sayings of the wise ones there is wisdom and to spare for all mankind, but until you can say of a "truth" or principle: 'This I have found to be true,' so far as you are concerned it is not yet true; it is only reported to be true."

—Christmas Humphreys

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

An old gentleman was passing a drug store when a young man dashed out, took a flying leap and fell in a heap in the gutter. The older man, mystified, hurried over to him. "Are you hurt?" he asked.

"No," was the sharp reply, "but I'd like to meet the guy who moved my motorcycle."

1962 Settles Down . . .

August Weather Near Par With Past Years

If August is to be any indication, 1962 is settling down into a near average year after a spring season the likes of which has never been seen in this area. Temperatures were nearly as warm as last year's drought during August of this year and rain which fell on only eight days of the month totaled 4.66 inches at the Thief River Falls municipal airport.

High temperatures during the month this year averaged 80.57 degrees with low readings averaging 55 degrees. This compares with average highs of 82.42 in 1961, 79.68 in 1960 and 79.60 degrees in 1959 and average lows of 55.90 in 1961, 57.09 in 1960 and 56.60 degrees in 1959.

Highest reading of the month was 90 degrees on August 27 while the lowest mark was 43 degrees on August 17. In preceding years the high was 95 degrees in 1961, 92 in 1960, 90 in 1959 and 95 in 1958 and the low was 41 in 1961, 43 in 1960, 46 (three times) in 1959 and a chilly 38 in 1958. Lowest high this year was 69 degrees on August 16 while the highest low was 67 degrees on August 15 and 22.

Only seven days in August had high readings above 85 degrees while 11 days had low readings below 55 degrees. Eight days had low readings of 60 degrees or higher while only one day had a high reading below 70 degrees.

Greatest precipitation was 1.38 inches on August 11 with the second greatest being 1.10 inches on August 4. Two days was the most prolonged period of precipitation, this occurring three times at scattered points during the month.

Daily high and low temperatures and precipitation for August of 1962 is as follows:

Autumn Color In Minnesota

The grandeur and color of many trees and shrubs native to Minnesota are spectacular during autumn. The cool nights and balmy days during late August in Minnesota and through September help bring on the fine show of color.

The Staghorn sumac is among the first of the shrubs to show autumn color. First it turns a bronzy red, later a brilliant scarlet. Watch the sumac as a signal for the beginning of the blaze of color that marks a Minnesota fall.

The poplar, birch, bittersweet vine, larch, mountain ash, elm, basswood and silver maple put on a show of brilliant yellow. The red maple, sugar maple, oak and high bush cranberry give the display of red-orange and scarlet that is an especially thrilling sight.

A trip to almost any section of Minnesota will provide a good opportunity to see autumn color this fall. Especially beautiful in fall are the North Shore of Lake Superior, the River Road in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and the areas around Bemidji, Taylors Falls, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Grand Rapids, Duluth and Lake Minnetonka.

There's an old idea that the blaze of color in foliage is the result of frost. The real cause of the autumn show is the disappearance of the green pigment in the leaf, revealing other pigments that have been there during the growing season. Cool nights and sunny days help to intensify the red and yellow pigments.

ON DISPLAY Tuesday and Wednesday in Thief River Falls will be the "Telerama Tour" trailer, a 37-foot demonstration on wheels, which will be parked near the post office on Second street near LaBree av. N. A portion of the interior of the trailer is shown in the above photo. Featured are a display of phones of the future and an exact replica of the Vanguard satellite in the background. On the left is an exhibit of the phone company's new farm interphone, and on the right is information about research in the telephone industry. All persons in the Thief River Falls area are invited to visit the trailer, according to J. M. Wilson, local company manager.

Farmers Union Asks Legislation To Allow Fallout Determination

Support of legislation which would more clearly delegate the responsibility for determining if and when measures are needed to counteract the danger of pollution of food by radioactive fallout was adopted by the Minnesota Farmers Union board of directors last week. Attending the board meeting as the representative of Pennington county was Ole Selmanson, county Farmers Union chairman.

Discussion at the meeting suggested that the dry-lot feeding programs had not been conclusively shown to be necessary, but had become advisable after it became apparent that widespread publicity about Iodine 131 contamination had shaken public confidence in the wholesomeness of milk.

In the Twin Cities area it had been announced that farmers would be paid a premium of 45 cents per hundredweight (about one cent per quart) for milk produced by cows removed from pasture feeding. A one-cent retail price increase has gone into effect. In Duluth-Superior a premium of 20 cents per hundredweight will be offered and no retail price increase is contemplated.

The statement as adopted by the state organization is as follows:

Widespread publicity given to the radioactive fall-out danger of milk supplies has resulted, whether justified or not, in a decision to require farmers to feed cows producing for bottled milk to be fed on stored feed.

While it has not been conclusively determined that the danger is imminent and serious, the public discussion has undermined confidence to the extent that the emergency measures of dry-lot feeding were necessary because of the substantial reduction in consumer buying of fluid milk.

We do not believe that farmers or consumers should bear the cost of this precautionary program of dry-lot feeding.

The danger, whether real or not, is the responsibility of the federal government and the federal government therefore should assume the responsibility of reimbursing farmers for the expense or loss they have had in connection with the feeding program. The reimbursement should be adequate to cover the extra cost of feed and labor.

We recommend that until such time as the government can officially certify that danger no longer exists, that payments to farmers be authorized to compensate them for feed and labor costs.

We further recommend that, in order to avoid public confusion and doubt of this kind in the future, that the Congress adopt a bill setting forth an orderly procedure for the setting of standards for radioactive fall-out dangers, designating the officials to make the official findings and to determine the countermeasures, and to authorize payments or indemnities to producers for carrying out countermeasures.

Gov. Elmer L. Andersen

Employment continues to increase.

From January of 1961 to July of 1962 employment in Minnesota increased by 265,000 jobs. This is an enormous increase of 21.2 per cent, nearly three times the national increase of 7.7 per cent for the same period.

Unemployment in Minnesota is down to 3.8 per cent which is below the 4 per cent goal the President has set for the country. Nationally unemployment is still at a rate of 53 per cent.

The Minnesota situation is more remarkable considering the fact that there is still serious unemployment in northeastern Minnesota.

That situation will take time to correct unless we get dramatic action on taconite plants. I still believe the taconite amendment is one of the keys to solution of northeastern Minnesota's unemployment problem. I feel strongly that it is shameful that the people of our state cannot have an opportunity to vote on a matter that is so significant to our economy and which polls indicate the people favor overwhelmingly. The rank and file of the people of northeastern Minnesota favor the amendment, just as they do everywhere else in the state.

In the statewide picture, what pleases me as much as the increase in jobs itself is the increase in per capita personal income relative to the national average. We are not only gaining in jobs but we are gaining on the national average per capita income. In other words, we have more people working for more money indicating that the kind of industry opening up is higher than average pay industry. This is what we want, not low wage industry but plants that are looking for superior people and are willing to pay higher than average pay.

As you have read, conditions in many parts of the country are unsettled, originating with the steel price dispute. Minnesota has been bucking this trend, and continuing to make gains.

That Little Ol'World's Fair.

One of the interesting facts causing comment around the State Fair was the announcement that the entire Seattle World's Fair could be put on Machinery Hill at our own Minnesota State Fair, and there would be ten acres to spare! The Machinery Hill exhibit at our State Fair occupies 80 acres, the Seattle World's Fair 70 acres If you want a little more to be proud of in reference to our Fair, its average daily attendance is about double that of the Seattle World's Fair, and has the largest average daily attendance of any state fair in the country.

There is no question that the machinery exhibit at our State Fair is the biggest of its kind anywhere. One of the big exhibitors told me that they have given up exhibiting at all other state fairs in the country, so as to concentrate on the Minnesota State Fair.

Northing pleases me more than to see Minnesota leading the Nation, in one field after another.

Beet Acreage Reserve Hearing September 25

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced an informal public hearing, at which requests for acreage from the sugarbeet acreage reserve, as provided under recent admendments to the Sugar Act, will be received with respect to the current and the 1963, 1964, and 1965 crops. The hearing will also afford interested persons the opportunity of submitting data, views, and arguments with respect to such requests.

The Sugar Act, as amended this year, directs the Secretary of Agriculture to reserve annually for expansion of the domestic sugarbeet industry enough acreage to produce 65,000 tons of sugar. This reserve, which may be accumulated from year to year if not used, is to be taken out of the acreage required for producing the sugarbeet area's sugar quota. It is to be used primarily to permit new growers to enter the industry, and its allocation is to be preceded by the Department.

To allow sufficient lead-time for growers and the sugarbeet processing industry to plan for the erection of new processing facilities or expansion of existing facilities, the Department is asking that applications for acreage from the reserve submitted at the Sept. 25 hearing, and argument in support of the applications be based on use of the cumulative acreage to be reserved for the 1962-65 crop years.

Notice of the hearing, which is scheduled to appear in the Federal Register on Aug. 31, sets forth the items of information that should be submitted with requests for acreage. These include:

1. The location of the processing facility to be expanded or built;
2. The acreage being requested and the sugar equivalent;
3. The Crop year for which the acreage is being requested;
4. The daily slicing capacity of the new facility or the extent of expansion of the existing facility;
5. A description of the arrangements made for financing;
6. Proof of suitability of the area for producing sugarbeets;
7. The need for a cash crop or a replacement crop in the area;
8. The accessibility of the facility to sugar markets; and
9. Breakdowns of acreages that would be supplied to the facility by specified categories of growers.

The notice also contains the applicable provisions of the Sugar Act and pertinent excerpts of legislative history.

Provision for submitting additional written arguments and briefs relating to requests for acreage from the reserve will be announced at the hearing.

Meet Sen. Murray
State Senator Louis A. Murray of East Grand Forks has represented the 66th Legislative District for the past 12 years. This district included only Polk County but because of the legislative redistricting act now in effect, the district will now include the counties of Pennington Polk and Red Lake.
Senator Murray is anxious to personally meet as many people as possible in the new district between now and election day.
EXPERIENCE
A former Municipal Judge and City Councilman in East Grand Forks where he was born and raised, Senator Murray has successfully been elected to every public office for which he campaigned.
WAR VETERAN
An overseas veteran, Murray served in the Southwest Pacific for four years with the army engineers. He is the only war veteran seeking this office. He is an active member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legon.
OCCUPATION
Senator Murray is employed as a freight conductor and brakeman with the Northern Pacific Railway Company since 1938.
FAMILY MAN
The Senator is married and lives with his wife and six children in East Grand Forks. (They're expecting their seventh).
EDUCATION
Senator Murray attended Northern State Teachers College at Aberdeen, South Dakota, and the University of North Dakota.
ORGANIZATIONS
Member of Fraternal Order of Eagles, Elks, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Rod and Gun Club, and Chamber of Commerce.
COMMITTEES
Senator Murray serves on five very important committees and two interim study commissions. His seniority entitles him to serve on the following committees: Taxes and Tax Laws, Civil Adminstration, Liquor Control, Public Welfare, and General Legislation. He serves on the Iron Ore Taxation Study Commission and also the Commission on Metropolitan Sanitation.
POLITICAL AFFILIATION
Senator Murray is a lifelong Democrat. He was a delegate to the 1955 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. He was Polk County D. F. L. Chairman for 10 years and Secy.-Treas. of the 9th District Committee. He has caucused with the Senate Liberals for 12 years. He received the D. F. L. endorsement from Polk, Pennington and Red Lake County Committees. The Minnesota Legislature is supposedly non-partisan but when the legislature convenes a member must join either the Conservative or Liberal group. It is common knowledge that the Liberals are Democrats and the Conservatives are Republicans. My two opponents in this Primary Election have caucused Conservative in the past.
Prepared, circulated, and paid for by Murray for Senator Volunteer Committee, Irving Beyer, Red Lake Falls, Sec'y.

WHAT PRICE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT? This is a good question to consider at the present time when Rural Areas Development and Area Redevelopment Administration talk is going the rounds in local political circles. A hearing on the related programs will be held Tuesday, September 11, at the Pennington county courthouse upon the call of the county board of commissioners.

The question could boil down to the basis of whether or not an individual believes that government agencies can provide the needed incentive for local groups to help themselves. At least it can be said that the thought behind the plan is basically good — the idea that communities should help themselves.

There is, however, something in the tone of the programs which sounds directly opposed to the American free enterprise system — a system where, if you will, the law is that of survival of the fittest. This has the appearance of a leveling program which will bring, if completely successful, the supposed underpriviledged areas to a par with more successful areas. This will require, of course, government assistance, both technical and financial.

I can see in the program an opportunity for communities grasping in the dark to find a wall to lean on. I can also see a danger of a federal program getting started on a small level, compounding itself in the varied aspects which may be presented, costing much more than anticipated and benefitting areas which really have been and could continue to be making progress without it.

Perhaps the September 11 meeting will shed more light on the subject whic has been both dim and confused. It should bear most careful consideration and should definitely not be considered "just what the doctor ordered" as a "cure-all" for all economic problems of a rural area. Just as projects, expensive and out of line with the original thought, came in for severe criticism under urban renewal plans, this program could go much the same way. Government has a way of getting a tiger by the tail and finding itself in a position of being afraid to let go yet unable to control its subject.

On the surface it seems like the program is designed to create an agency which channels information into other existing agencies. This appears to be duplication of duty and expense. Work required by the programs should be accomplished by any progressive community with or without government incentive, organization or control.

Under any condition except dire emergency, I believe the federal government should keep its lengthy nose out of local problems. I don't believe that Pennington county is in a state of dire emergency — or that most of the other 800 communities now organized under RAD-ARA are either. It would be well to carefully weigh the expense against the anticipated benefits before jumping into the program with both feet. The promised land of federal assistance has often proved to be nothing but quicksand.

Speaking of efficiency, the story is told of an efficiency expert asked to examine a business. "What do you do here?" he asked the first employee. "Nothing," was the unhesitant reply. "What about you?" he asked the next. "Nothing," the man answered. In his black book the expert noted, "Duplication of Duty."

MINNESOTA, HAIL TO THEE

Hail the Minnesota Twins,
May their record in League wins
Qualify this state's own Dearies
To compete in World Series.

While bats ring out through sky blue air,
This shall be our fervent prayer:

May Vic and Earl keep good health,
May cousin Cal know ticket wealth,
May winning ways be prone to last,
May hitting slumps be in the past,
May pitching opposition smother,
(May Kralick even pitch another)
May sun shine on "The Met" each day—
And may the Twins go all the way."

Community prestige and status—what's it worth??? Ever stop to think about it? Perhaps we should just a little more often than we do. It may mean more than we think.

Only last week our community received the attention of every citizen in the state that reads a newspaper or watches TV or listens to the radio. Not only was our Northwestern Dairy Princess named Princess Kay of the Milky Way which is quite an honor in itself, but our TRF Thieves won their way into the Minnesota Class "B" state baseball tournament.

We have reason to believe that community prestige and status carry a lot of weight in the field of trade area development, industrial development, ect. It is one of the most appealing types of advertising for a community just to stand out a little bit better than most. Yet, for this to happen we must talk about community pride and the pursuit of excellence.

No community on it's own volition will stand out unless it is proud of itself and truly works at the pursuit for excellence. Without desire our Princess wouldn't have become Princess Kay. Without desire our baseball team wouldn't have gone to the state baseball tournament. Without desire we can accomplish nothing. So, we feel that the pursuit of excellence is something worthy of conversation and our efforts.

As we look back over the past couple of years we see a library that didn't get built, a school that didn't get built, a river that wasn't dredged, and perhaps there are other things that didn't get done—mainly because a large number of folks in the Thief River Falls community have almost no pride and certainly won't go out of their way in the pursuit of excellence.

We hear comments all during the year from some of the foghorns in the community about why there haven't been more industries brought to Thief River, why we haven't got a junior college, why this and why that. There are several ways to answer those questions but the fact remains that maybe we would have sone of those things if efforts had been concentrated and intensified in that direction. Maybe we've got too many who seem to enjoy voting "No" rather than "Yes", when our very progress depends on the results of a "showdown".

In any event, think of this as "your home town" as you Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minneasota, Thief River Falls.

Education T-V May Come to Fargo

Fargo-Moorhead has been assigned TV channel 13 by the Federal Communications Commission as an educational channel and a survey of residents of the area is being conducted to determine the extent of public interest in such a service.

Both live and taped programs for pre-school children, for in-school instruction and civic and cultural programs for adults will be available

The questionnaire notes that Channel 13 will carry courses for those who wish to work for college credits and states that this method of earning college credits is used and accepted in many areas where an educational TV station operates.

It also points out that educational television is non-profit and non-commercial. The questionnaire also states:

"With the cooperating schools and with grants from foundations, most of the regular operating expenses will be taken care of. However, funds must be raised to buy some of the equipment required.

"A studio and a tower have already been given us by a local broadcasting station. A tape recorder and a supply of videotape will be donated by the Ford Foundation.

"The equipment and property we already have is worth about $200,000. Another $200,000 is required to buy other equipment—an antenna, transmitter, cameras, etc."

A fund drive is planned to make the project a reality and persons receiving the questionnaires are asked whether or not they would contribute to the cause, although they are not required to make a definite commitment at this time.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

Sept. 3

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS, BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINN.

August 24, 1962

The County Commissioners met in Special Session in the Rex Cafe at 12:15 Noon Aug. 24, 1962.

All members of the County Board waived the 10-day Statutory notice required for Special meetings.

Members present: Hanson, Olson, Almquist, Lindberg and Tasa. All present. Also present were Auditor Rodekuhr and Hal Rolstrom, Fieldman for Minnesota A.R.A.

Considerable discussion was held concerning the designation of Pennington County as ARA territory by the Federal Government and the advisability of establishing a Pennington County ARA Commission, along with the opportunities this would afford and any disadvantages that may present themselves.

Commissioner Hanson introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, C.629, Laws of Minnesota, 1961, authorizes a municipality to establish a local redevelopment agency after first determining that there is need for such an agency to function in such municipality,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Pennington that on the 11th day of September, 1962, at 7:30 P.M., at a regular meeting of said Board this body shall determine:

1. Whether there now exists in the area and has existed for an extended period of time substantial and persistent unemployment.

2. Whether the rate of unemployment, including unemployment other than that due to temporary or seasonable factors, is currently 6 percent or more as determined by available state or federal statistics.

3. Whether the annual average rate of unemployment has been at least:

(a) 50 percent above the national average for three of the preceding four calendar years or

(b) 75 percent above the national average for two of the three preceding calendar years, or

(c) 100 percent above the national average for one of the two preceding years.

4. Whether conditions of chronic unemployment, underdevelopment of natural resources and economic depression can be alleviated without public financial or planning assistance to provide the economic opportunity for private, industrial, recreational, commercial or manufacturing enterprises.

5. Whether there is in the surrounding rural areas a number of low income farm families with inadequate employment opportunities and who require public assistance from the federal government or from the state to maintain minimum acceptable standards of living. That at such meeting a public hearing will be held on these matters to determine whether a local redevelopment agency should be established and that the Board will hear the views and comments of all interested persons who are hereby invited to attend said hearing and to present such evidence as they may have to this Board.

That the County Auditor is hereby directed to cause this resolution to be published in the Thief River Falls Times at least 10 days prior to the hearing.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Olson and being put to a vote was unanimously carried.

Moved by Lindberg seconded by Almquist that meeting adjourn.

Carried.

GLENN TASA, Chairman,
Pennington County Board.

Attest:
C. W. Rodekuhr, County Auditor and ex-officio Clerk of the Board.

STILL SMILING at the end of the busiest 10 days of her young life, Minnesota's newly-crowned Princess Kay of the Milky Way rests for a moment at the end of the 1962 Minnesota State Fair. The pretty new state dairy princess is Kathleen Hjelle, 19, Argyle, Minn. Ahead of her lies a busy year — either as Princess Kay in Minnesota or as American Dairy Princess in the nation. Miss Hjelle will represent Minnesota in competition with girls from 31 other states in the American Dairy Princess in Chicago, Sept. 9-12. If she wins the national event, one of her two attendants — Julie Ann Jarvinen of Wanamingo or Barbara Warren of Lake Wilson — will assume the title and responsibilities of Princess Kay in Minnesota.

Thieves Eliminated by Gaylord in State Meet

Manager Rollie Oehler's veteran Gaylord team, getting shutout pitching from lefty Gary Underhill and righthander Tony Corcoran, and rapping the offerings of three Thief River Falls hurlers for eleven hits, defeated the Thieves, 12-0, in a state amateur baseball tournament first-round game played at Springfield on Friday night. Other first-round games played in the Class B division on Friday found the Benson Chiefs defeating the Rollingstone, 5-4, in ten innings; Rogers edging Warroad by scoring a run in the last half of the ninth inning for a 1-0 win; and Pipestone trouncing Virginia, 19-7.

Gaylord, with a three-run cluster in the first inning, scored enough runs to win the game. Ron Zacho led off with a looping single over shortstop; Bill Walsh popped a fly that fell behind the pitcher's mound for a base hit; Al Zacho sacrificed, pitcher to first; Dick Anderson was nicked by a Freddy Jensen pitch, loading the bases; Larry Klunder topped a slow roller down the third base line for a hit, scoring Ron Zacho; Gib Barfknecht was also hit by a pitched ball, forcing Walsh in with a run; and an infield out scored Al Zacho with Gaylord's third run of the frame and a 3-0 lead.

In the third, Al Zacho drew a walk, Dick Anderson rapped a line single to right field, and Klunder followed with a double to the fence in right-center, scoring Zacho and Anderson. Righthander Dick Palmer was called in from the bull pen in relief of starter Jensen. Palmer retired the side without any further scoring. And the righthander hurled strong ball until the sixth when, with two out, Gaylord batsmen poled out four successive hits, with three being doubles, to score three runs and take an 8-0 lead.

Youthful Rod Olson pitched the seventh and eighth innings, and was tagged for two hits and four unearned runs in the eighth inning when the Thieves committed three errors.

While the Gaylord batsmen were solving the offerings of the local hurler, the Thieves batters were handcuffed by the southpaw slants of Underhill. Underhill, a former Austin high school pitching star, gave up one hit, that a single into left-field by John Drury in the second inning, deled out a pair of walks and whiffed eleven batsmen. Tony Corcoran came on in the seventh inning and set down the side strikes in that inning, and retired the Thieves in order in the eighth. With Gaylord holding a ten-runs plus lead at the end of the eighth, the game was called.

Polaris Company Expands at Roseau

The efforts of raising $10,000 to assure a SBA loan of 206,787 for expansion of the Polaris Industries factory in Roseau is being stepped up this week by the Roseau Research and Development Corporation which will handle the sale of debentures the Times Region Reports.

The Corporation, a civic group devoted to promoting the industrial development of Roseau, will hold the money in escrow until approval of the loan when the money will be used to secure the land and buildings. The money will earn six per cent interest and will be backed by an accumulated equity in cooperation funds. The non-profit corporation, at the termination of the loan in 20 years, can use the equity compiled for the promotion of still more industry.

Free Lamb Grading Service Available

Will Conduct Tours on Scheduled Basis

The Farmers Union Marketing Association is announcing that their free lamb grading service to sheep producers will again be available this fall. These tours are conducted on a scheduled basis throughout the sheep producing areas of northern Minnesota.

This year, there will be three such tours. The first one will be conducted on September 6, 7 and 8; the second tour on October 4, 5, and 6; and the third tour on November 1, 2 and 3.

This service is conducted by the sheep salesmen direct from the South St. Paul and West Fargo stockyards who go direct to the farms of the sheep producer and grade his lambs prior to their being shipped to market. This enables the lamb producer to market only top lambs and further to market his lambs at the very earliest and most opportune time. It is generally conceded that this results in a higher net return to the individual sheep producer.

Region Firemen's Meet at Goodridge Well Attended

Ninety firemen representing 16 towns assembled at Goodridge Thursday evening for a Northern Region Firemen's Assn. meeting. A ham dinner was served at the high school, and the meeting was held at the Firehall.

Carl Elg, Goodridge mayor, welcomed the visiting firemen and introduced Fire Chief Stuure.

Pat Barry, the new Deputy Fire Marshal, was introduced by Pres. Herbert. Mr. Barry told what his job consisted of and urged all chiefs to contact him if they needed help. He told of the coming fall Fire Conference, which will be held in Minneapolis in October and asked for a good representation from this association.

Chief Langevin of Thief River Falls gave a report on the Firemen's Convention which was held at Duluth.

Other speakers included Chief Mead of Red Lake Falls and Chief McTaggart of Bemidji. Their subjects included water tanks for fire trucks, protective clothing, chimney fires, and public relations.

It was not decided where the October meeting would be held.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

It's Been a Long Time

As has been the custom for the past four years, coach Joe Mrkonich's football Prowlers will be opening their season's schedule by playing the Warren Ponies. Game time on the Lincoln athletic field here on Monday night will be at 8:00 p. m.

And as has been my custom over the past years, I have delved into the records to check on the last time that a Warren team defeated the Prowlers in football. And it's the same answer as in previous years, not since 1924, when Mally Anderson romped for three touchdowns on the Fair Grounds football field, have the Ponies beaten the Prowlers. The score that year was 20 to 0 for Warren. I won't mention the personnel of that 1924 Prowler football team, for several of the team members are living noble and righious lives here in town. Not that they weren't noble and rightous back in 1924, but they weren't as good football players as the Ponies.

Since that day in 1924, and it is proving to be long-lived date, the Prowlers have met the Ponies in twenty-three games on the gridiron, and have scored twenty-three wins. There have been several games that were touch-and-go, with the 1931 game ending in a 12-6 score, the 1934 game being a 12-0 affiar, and the 1960 game finding the locals scoring a 19-14 win. Last year's game was a win for the Prowlers, 37-7.

So according to record, setting aside that 1924 game, the Prowlers should be favored to win Monday night's opener, and perhaps by two touchdowns.

The Ponies, coached by Dean Erickson, will show the fans a capable quarterback in Jerry Cook. Cook, who is playing his third season as a football regular, is an all-round athlete, being a stellar performer on the Pony basketball and baseball teams.

A "Dream" Team

During this past baseball season, which was climaxed by having the Thieves win a berth in the state amateur baseball tournament, I was impressed by the caliber of ball exhibited by the younger players who participated in Norman-Polk league competition. Having seen all of the teams in action, some at least twice, and several on four or five occasions, the play of the boys of high-school age has been outstanding.

If a manager had the opportunity to select a team roster from the high school senior and juniors who competed in league play this season, that club would undoubtedly be a title contender. Consider that this manager could field a team that would line up like this: catcher, John Aune, Thief River Falls; first base, Herb Hasz, Ada; second base, Don Bowyer, Ada; shortstop, Dean Bowyer, Ada; third base, Mark Carlin, Fosston; outfiled, Gary and Paul Klungness, Thief River Falls, and Nathan (Cactus) Warner, Halstad; pitcher, Rod Olson, Fertile; and utility men, Pete Mickelson of Crookston and Henry Holte of Halstad.

Of this group, the Bowyer twins, Cactus Warner, Gary Klungness, and Henry Holte were seniors and have completed their high school careers. But it will be interesting to watch the play of Aune, Hasz, Carlin, Paul Klungness, Mickelson, and Olson next season.

And the fact that these boys performed so ably in league play this season is a recommendation for the area's high school and junior baseball programs. It is extremely doubtful if the Norman-Polk league would have been in operation this season if it had not been for the "young blood" that was available.

Miscellany

Arlen Hjelle, former Prowler righthander, and pitcher with the senior baseball Thieves last season, has been drafted by the Bagley Merchants for state tournament play. Hjelle, who attended Bemidji State college last year, and who pitched for the Bemidji Chiefs this season, intends to leave for California shortly, and will continue his schooling there. . . Wayne Edgar, pile-driving fullback for the Warren Ponies a couple of seasons ago, is in his sophomore year at North Dakota. The "blond bomber" figures prominently in the plans of Sioux grid coach Marv Helling for the 1962 season. . . Reid Stromberg, currently the local golf club's champion, last Sunday won his third successive Riverside Country Club Invitational tournament at Warren. Fifty-two golfers participated in the tourney, and Reid defeated Darrell O'Connel of Grand Forks in the championship finals, closing out the match on the ninth hole.

Farm Industry Is Expanding, York Tells Convention

"The only thing declining about agriculture is the number of people required on the farm to produce our food and fiber needs," according to E. T. York, Jr. York, administrator of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Federal Extension Service, who spoke recently at the Alph Gamma Rho (AGR) Annual Convention in the Curtis Hotel in Minneapolis. AGR is a professional fraternity in agriculture.

"Every facet of agriculture and agriculturally related business continues to expand.

"The whole concept of agriculture is changing. A few years ago agriculture was considered to be somewhat synonymous with farming including only production. Today it covers a wide range of occupations and services.

"Marketing has always been a part of agriculture. Yet many of the marketing functions which were once performed on the farm are now being done off the farm in warehouses, stockyards, processing plants and other marketing firms.

"There will be more off-the-farm opportunities in agriculture in the days ahead. Over 10 million people have jobs today involving and merchandising farm products. Increased opportunities are found in businesses servicing agriculture. Farmers spend more than $26 billion a year for goods and services to operate their business. This is about four times the amount spent 20 years ago for these purposes," York said.

Pears and Oranges Are September Plentiful Foods

USDA Economists Expect Large Crops of Both, Co. Home Agent Reports

September, the back-to-school month, calls for plenty of good and wholesome foods for hearty breakfasts and afternoon snacks.

It's just the time to stock your freezer with frozen orange juice and fill up the fruit bowl with fresh pears. These popular fruit choices share the featured spot on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for September, reports Laura Duerst, Pennington county home agent.

This year's record-breaking pack of frozen orange juice totals 115.3 million gallons at the latest tally, already 40 per cent above last year's record large pack. With this vitamin-C rich abundance, don't stop at breakfast. Serve orange juice for a refreshing and nutritious snack in the afternoon and evening, too. Also treat the family to orange flavor in other ways. Use orange juice in gelatin salads and dressings, orange sauces for ham and poultry and orange frosting on devil's food cake.

Shoppers can look forward to an excellent selection of fresh pears on September markets. USDA economists expect the best crop of Bartletts the West Coast has had for several years — both in quality and quantity. Another reason for more fresh pears in food stores is that fewer will be bought by canners, since there are heavy supplies of canned pears remaining from last year's large pack.

This succulent fall fruit is popular for eating out of hand, as well as for a wide variety of salad and dessert combinations. For an attractive salad plate, cover peeled pear halves with softened cottage or cream cheese and decorate with halves of Thompson seedless or Tokay grapes, another appealing fruit bowl item on the USDA's list of September plentifuls.

Prospects are excellent for a variety of salad offering for early fall menus, with salad oils and late summer vegetables plentiful. Corn, tomatoes, beets, cabbage, string beans, cucumbers and summer squash will be in good supply.

An appropriate listing for September school days is fluid whole milk, a must for balancing out all meals and snacks.

Prowlers To Meet Warren Monday in Season's Opener

Coach Joe Mrkonich's football Prowlers will begin play here on their nine-game schedule on Monday night when, with the kickoff slated for 8:00 p. m., the blue-and-gold meet coach Dean Erickson's Warren Ponies. Following Monday night's game, the Prowlers will have a short respite before making the jaunt, on Friday afternoon, to Dilworth for a 2:30 p. m. game against coach Ray Kuklenski's Dilworth Locomotives.

In Monday night's opener against the Ponies, coach Mrkonich will probably start a backfield that will have veteran John Aune at quarterback and veteran Paul Klungness at right halfback. Junior Ron Olson will perhaps be given the nod at left halfback, with senior Steve Mittelstadt at fullback.

The Prowler line will have veteran Brian Lofberg at center, Tom Morben and Elroy Frolland at the guards, Bob Benson and Dwight Myhrer at the tackles, and Jim Ranum, and perhaps Ray Ulrich at the ends. Of this group, Lofberg, Myhrer, Morben, and Ranum saw action last year. Benson was a backfielder last season.

The Prowlers, who defeated the Ponies, 37-7, in last year's game between the two clubs, will be favored to defeat the Warren eleven on Monday night.

Ada to Vote on Bond Issue for New Hospital

Resident of the City of Ada will go to the polls on Tuesday, Sept. 11th, to vote on whether or not the City of Ada should issue bonds, not to exceed $225,000, to construct, equip and furnish a new hospital and remodel the present structure into a nursing home for the elderly.

At a special meeting of the City Council recently held with the Hospital Board, the group decided on the bond issue to finance the proposed project.

It was estimated that the cost of new construction of the hospital could reach $30.00 per square foot for a 30-bed, 18,5000 square foot hospital including equipment and fees. This would total $555,000.00. Of this amount the City of Ada must finance $305,250.00. After due consideration a total of $35,000 was agreed upon for remodeling the old building into a nursing home for the elderly.

Barn Struck by Lightning, Burned

Fire on Monday night about 10 o'clock destroyed the barn on the farm of John Stehr located northwest of Ada. The Ada Fire Department was called to the scene but could do nothing to save the structure.

The building was apparently struck by lighening during the electrical and wind storm that evening. Only a trace of rain was reported in the Gary area.

Ram Sale Slated Here Next Monday

Consignors Banquet Is Set for Sunday Night At Rex Cafe in TRF

Sheep producers in the area are reminded of the 14th Annual Registered Ram Show and Sale to be held Monday at the livestock pavilion on the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. Judging of the rams will take place in the morning with the sale to start at 1 p. m.

Forty-six registered rams have been consigned to the sale and include 10 Columbias, eight Shropshires, 16 Hampshires and two Suffolks. The sale and show are sponsored annually by Northern Minnesota registered sheep breeders to up-grade sheep production in the area. Only the top rams consigned on the basis of the morning judging will be sold at the afternoon sale.

With each succeeding year the sale has gained stature in the eyes of area sheep breeders and has ben instumental in dispersing good breeding stock throughout northwestern Minnesota. Judges for the show will be Carl Spong of Central Livestock cooperative and Oscar Nelson, agricultural agent in Mahnomen county.

At 7:00 p.m. on Sunday the annual consignor's banquet will be held in the Rex Cafe with all consignors and their wives encouraged to attend. Speaker for the event will be D. Reilmer, head of the animal husbandry department at the Northwest School of Agriculture and experiment station at Crookston.

Holding the sale in early September will permit breeders to plan for ealier lambing and the advantage of better prices in the spring and early summer months. If rams are used in early October, lambing will occur in late February or March, providing marketable lambs in the period from May to mid-summer.

This year's sale is expected to be near the record average set in 1960 due to the favorable outlook for the sheep industry. Last year the sale totaled $2,937.50 with the average price being $66.76 per animal shown.

CONSIGNOR to the 14th Annual Registered Ram Show and Sale in Thief River Falls again this year will be Lehart Stock, Goodridge, who showed the grand champion Shropshire at last year's event. All of last year's breeders who showed grand champion animals will be consigning rams to the event again this year.

Police Receive Larceny Reports

Clothing and Battery Taken from Two Cars

Two thefts from automobiles were reported to the Thief River Falls police department this week with one theft being somewhat of an unfair exchange.

Arne Moser of the city reported that a nearly new 12-volt battery valued at $29.95 had been taken from his car on Friday, either in Thief River Falls or at Highlanding. In either event, the thief came prepared and left an old battery in place of the new one which was stolen.

Reid Stromberg reported the theft of a gray button-type sweater, brown sport coat and pair of red slacks from his car last Wednesday. He made the report the following day. Police also report that a woman's watch, silver with a silver expansion band, was left on a bench at Tindolph Park beach area August 16 and anyone finding it is asked to contact the police department.

Primary Vote in Pennington Set Tuesday

Interest Centers on Legislative Races; No Contests in County

Interest in the primary election to be held Tuesday in Pennington county's 28 precincts will center on races for state senator and representative from the 66th legislative district. There will be no primary election for county officers this year since only two incumbents are opposed and there are only two persons seeking election for each of these posts.

To be elected without party designation, state senator and representative candidates have been campaigning vigorously in the county. Redistricting accomplished by the last session of the legislature resulted in Pennington and Red Lake counties electing one representative and Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties electing one senator.

Candidates for senator are Harveydale Maruska, Louis A. Murray and Alfred Solstad. Seeking election to the post of state representative vacated by Ben Wichterman of Plummer will be Terry Knutson, Stanley Radniecki, Andrew Skaar and Art Stenberg. Two will be placed on the ballot for the general election for both senator and representative.

Voting on Wool Market Plans Set Sept. 10-21

Ballots for voting in the referendum on the lamb and wool promotion and market development program are being mailed to producers in Pennington county, chairman Winton Knutson of the county Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation committee, announced today.

The referendum will determine whether or not deductions will continue to be made from producer payments earned under the wool incentive program. Funds collected are used by the American Sheep Producers Council to carry out a program of advertising, promotion, and related activities under an agreement with the secretary of agriculture.

According to Chairman Knutson, such an agreement has been in effect since the 1955 marketing year, as approved by producers voting in 1955 and 1959 referendums. If approved in the September referendum, the agreement will be extended for four more years.

Producers having two-thirds of the volume of production represented by votes in the referendum must approve if the agreement is to be extended. Consideration will also be given to the number of votes cast for and against the agreement by individual producers.

Plan Chamber of Commerce Week

ON LOAN from the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce to the retail trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce for the L.P.A. Jamboree promotion is Miss Connie Ekeren, 1962 Miss Aquacade. Dates for the Jamboree have been set for September 17 through 22. Committee members say it's well worth waiting for but nobody will divulge the secret of the L.P.A. Slogan. Watch for further announcements in later editions of the Times and you, like Miss Aquacade, can be sitting pretty.

Finals plans are in the making for Chamber of Commerce Week which will be observed in Thief River Falls September 16-22. Retail portion of the full week's activity will be the "L. P. A. Jamboree" which will be conducted September 17 through 22.

"Many people in the area are not familiar with what a Chamber of Commerce really is and what it is supposed to do," stated Roland Larson, local Chamber executive secretary. "We hope that through the Chamber of Commerce' Week observance that we can set forth the goals and purposes of the organization and really accomplish something worthwhile in the community."

Exclusive of the L. P. A. Jamboree which starts Monday, the opening event of the week will be a meeting of Chamber of Commerce directors on Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Chamber office. Directors will review current problems and discuss Chamber of Commerce values.

Wednesday will be "Blitz Day" within the organization with all nine standing committees meeting at separate times on the same day. This concentrated effort has proved a stimulus for two previous years and resulted in more effective completion of the local program of work. The committees include agriculture, transportation and communication, retail trade, business and industrial develop portunity for instruction in the ment, community welfare, education, government, membership and finance and public relations.

Employees of business places in the city will be given an opportunity for instruction in the common art of courtesy. "Courtesy Day" will be featured on September 20 with sessions to be held during business hours at the Falls Theater. Several programs will be held to permit business operators to send employees in shifts to attend the metings. A general meeting will be held for the entire Chamber of Commerce membership with the exact time and place to be announced later. Informational material on the organization locally and nationally will be published in the Times during the week-long observance.

From a total of 858 survey forms mailed to county farmers, 154 were completed and returned to the committee. The 18 per cent return is expected to provide a comprehensive cross-section of the overall county situation.

Locally organized to assist interested and qualified young farmers in getting started in farming on their own or in partnership, the committee now has information which will be of assistance in its program. The group has no finances and is not a lending agency, but will serve to provide farm planning and liaison work between qualified young men and farmers who desire to rent, sell or obtain assistance in their farm operations.

Gene Belto, vice president of Northern State Bank, was elected chairman of the committee with Clyde Christensen, local farmer, named vice chairman. Fred Sorensen, agricultural coordinator for the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school, was elected to the post of secretary.

Thirty-three of the farmers responding to the survey stated they desired to sell or rent out their farms. Seventy-four expressed their plans to operate with the present acreage, two wished to reduce the size of their farms and 45 indicated a desire to acquire more land and expand their operations.

Forty-eight of the 154 farmers replying said they had full-time or part-time employment off the farm. Twelve father and son operations were listed in the tabulation.

Herb Jung Honored by Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Tuesday

Former Grand Lodge Head Presented with Watch Following Retirement

The Odd Fellows of Young Pine lodge and Rebekah lodge held a dinner gathering Tuesday evening to honor C. Herb Jung, one of its most active and veteran members. Nearly 100 members with their wives and husbands attended.

Culkins Warns Against Grazing Soilbank Land

Patrick W. Culkins, office manager of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service office said today that complaints have been made to the county ASCS office indicating that some livestock producers are still grazing soil bank land. This, he said, constitutes a violation of the contract, and may result in a forfeiture of all payments due on the contract in 1962.

He stated further that all complaints would be investigated, and in the event that livestock were found grazing on any acreage under contract, it would be definitely determined to be a violation.

Weekend visitors at the Paul Bedard home were Misses Eleanor Reichardt and Margaret Pratt of Norwood, Manitoba, Canada, Yvonne Bedard, Mrs. Ray Saunders, and Patricia, of St. Boniface.

Karin Piatkowski Is Bride of Ronald Bakke

Miss Karin Piatkowski and Ronald Bakke were married on August 19 at 8 p. m. in a double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. Leland Steen at Zion Lutheran Church of this city.

Miss Piatkowski, of Muenchweiler, Germany, is the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Benjamin Z. Moran of that city, while Mr. Bakke's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bakke of this city.

The church altar was graced with salmon and white gladioli as the couple repeated their vows in the presence of about 100 guests. Jerry Joringdahl at the organ played the processional and also accompanied Miss Bonnie Dicken of this city as she sang, "The Lord's Prayer," and "The Song of Ruth."

The bride was given away by Arthur Dicken.

DuWayne Bakke was best man for his brother's wedding. He was in formal attire, as was the groom.

Miss Piatkowski's gown was full length, of white lace with a satin bodice, and featured a scalloped neckline, long sleeves, and a skirt which opened in the front to reveal the net pleats underneath. She wore a German veil which fell in tiers from the back of the headpiece. Her bouquet was of white and salmon camellias.

The matron-of-honor wore a simply-cut dress of lustrous salmon with a rounded neckline and elbow-length sleeves. She carried white and salmon gladioli and yellow mums.

For the wedding, the groom's mother complemented her costume with mums in white and salmon shades.

A reception followed the ceremony, and was held in the parlors of the church. The bridal cake was baked and decorated by the groom's cousin, Mrs. James Olson and featured three tiers separated with pink roses between the tiers and covering the bottom one.

Guests were from Newfolden, Halma, Brooks, and from Fargo, N. D.

The newlyweds chose the North Shore Drive for their wedding trip. The bride wore a gray and white checked suit with the salmon flowers from her bouquet forming the corsage with which she complemented her travel outfit. They are making their home in this city where the groom is employed by the Gerrold Electric Corporation.

The Groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school of this city. His bride graduated from Kaiserlauten American high school in Germany in 1961.

Lip Curbing is on the Way Out

Lip curbing now on state highways will be thing of the past as soon as the Minnesota Highway department can remove the 1,173 miles of it still remaining. This figure includes 295 miles of pavement having lip curbing, on one side and 439 miles having it on both sides.

The problem is being tackled on two fronts. Many miles have been eliminated by widening and resurfacing operations. Others were taken care of by bituminous surfacing to the top of the lip curb.

A machine has been developed to cut a groove about one inch deep alongside the inner edge of the concrete curb. Then a striker knocks off the edge from the other side and the rough edge remaining is covered by the subsequent resurfacing.

On narrow pavement, where most of this type curbing is found, concrete or flexible widening can be provided along the sides of the pavement and the total width resurfaced with bituminous pavement. This latter method is considered by highway engineers as the most satisfactory approach to the problem.

ment would not exceed one cent per pound for shorn wool and five cents per hundredweight for unshorn lambs. Deductions at these rates have been made from payments for each previous marketing year since 1955.

Producers may vote in the referendum during the period September 10 through September 21. The period of voting will last for two weeks in order to encourage participation in the referendum by as large a number of sheep producers as possible. Preliminary referendum results will be announced late in September.

Producers who are eligible to vote in the referendum are all those who have owned sheep or lambs, six months of age or older, for any one period of at least 30 days since January 1, 1962. Each producer will report the number of sheep and lambs on his ballot.

Chairman Knutson urges any producer who believes he is eligible to vote and who does not receive a ballot by September 10 to get in touch with his ASCS county office. To be counted, the ballots must be received by the office not later than September 21.

Farm Survey Is Completed; Group Studies Results

years. Nineteen planned retirement within 10 years and 101 said planned retirement would be after 10 years from the present date.

If the persons responding to the survey are indicative of the entire county situation, a total of 94 farmers in the county would be planning to retire within the next two years and an additional 94 would retire in the next five years. The total of 188 farmers planning retirement within five years would be equal to 22 per cent of the county's farmers.

It is the hope of the committee that arrangements can be made with several established farmers planning retirement to work in a qualified and interested younger man to gain equity and in time acquire the land. The program could be arranged to the mutual benefit of the two individuals and general aid to the economic picture of the area.

Terms of sale indicated in the tabulation noted 46 farmers wished to sell for cash if they disposed of their property, 63 would sell on contract for deed and 20 would sell on a deed for first mortgage.

Forty-seven of the farmers or 30.5 per cent stated they had vocational agriculture training and 26 farmers or 17 per cent had adult agriculture training. Of the total answering the questionnaire, 83 per cent kept farm records. Thirty-six per cent stated they were already enrolled or interested in adopting a farm management program.

Dairymen Should Strive for Big Early-Age Calves

Sooner Heifer Is in Milking String, More Profit to the Farmer

A Holstein heifer calf in the Purina Research herd recently weighed 409 pounds at four months of age, setting a new Purina Farm record for that breed. According to John C. Thompson, manager of dairy research for the farm, this record breaking Holstein heifer attained her weight without carrying excessive finish. "She is big and rangy, but not fat," Thompson said. The national average weight for Holstein heifers at four months is 272.

Of particular interest in the case of the record-breaking heifer is the fact that her dam had her first calf at 23 months of age. This is her fifth calf. She weighed 107 pounds at birth. This should refute the belief that some dairymen formerly had that early breeding might impair the capacity of cows to produce big growthy calves.

The dam of the record-breaking heifer has made 61,000 pounds of milk in five lactations. Thompson pointed out that if the record-breaking heifer's growth continues at the same pace, she undoubtedly will be in the milking string at an earlier age than her mother was. In the Purina herd, heifers are bred by weight rather than age. Holstein heifers are bred when they reach 750 pounds.

The record-breaking heifer was fed according to the regular Purina dairy calf program. This program calls for colostrum milk for the first three days of life. From three to ten days the calf is penned alone and fed milk replacer along with a starting ration free choice. At ten days the calf may be penned with other calves. At thirty days of age the milk replacer is discontinued. The starting ration is continued free choice. No hay is fed until the calf is two months old.

"The dairyman's objective in his calf growing program should be to get the heifer in the milking string as early as is practical," Thompson says. "The quicker the heifer reaches the proper breeding weight, the greater her production per day of life is almost sure to be."

Retarded Group Receives $101 from Lunch Sale

Pennington-Red Lake Association for Retarded Children is the recipient of $101 for use in its local program as a result of a promotion staged last Friday afternoon and evening at Stan and Otto's Red Owl store in this city.

During the day the store offered a hotdog on a bun and glass of orange pop for 10 cents to all persons coming to the store. With buns contributed by Holsum, hotdogs by Schweigert and pop by Kiewel Products company, the promotion yielded the above mentioned amount which will be used in the association's program to aid retarded children in the two counties.

Local Students Complete Area School Classes

Scholarships are Awarded to Two T. R. F. Students

Two Thief River Falls students, enrolled at the University of North Dakota, have been awarded O'Conner scholarships for the 1962-63 academic year. They are Judith Larson, freshman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Larson, and Pamela Ann Thorkelson, sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorkelson, both of Thief River Falls.

Funds for the awards, now in their second year, come from the income of a $350,000 trust which the University received from Judge J. F. T. O'Connor of Grand Forks.

Prowler Eleven Trips Warren Mon. 28 to 0

Coach Joe Mrkonich's Prowlers kicked the lid off their 1962 schedule on Monday night by scoring a 28-0 win over coach Dean Erickson's youthful Warren squad on the Lincoln field here.

On Friday afternoon, the Prowlers gridders will meet coach Ray Kuklenski's Dilworth eleven at Dilworth, with kickoff time slated for 2:30 p. m.

In Monday night's game here the Prowlers racked up a pair of touchdowns in the first period, and added single touchdowns in the second and third periods for their 28-0 win. Warren, defending the south goal chose to receive the game-opening kickoff, and from the Ponies' 38-yard line the Warren team, with Bruce Peterson, Art Horgen, and Jerry Cook running the ball, picked up two first downs, bringing the ball to the Prowlers' 43-yard line.

A running play gained two yards, and after two incompleted pass tries, Cook kicked to Paul Klungness. The Prowler safety man gathered in the ball on the 15-yard line, took several strides to his right and then reversed his field and swept up the west sidelines for an 85-yard touchdown run.

Bob Benson, with a solid block, took out Warren's Harley Marek, who had a chance to drive Klungness out of bounds, on the Warren 40-yard line, and the Prowler speedster dashed into the end zone for the TD. Ron Olson, on a sweep of right end, added the conversion point.

The Prowlers, a short while later, gained possession of the ball on a Warren kick on the Thief River 38-yard line. Three first downs, with a John Aune to Ron Olson pass completion being the big gainer, picking up 37 yeards. From the one-yard line, fullback Steve Mittelstadt piled over left guard for the TD. Klungness, on a run around left end, added the point, giving the Prowlers a 14-0 lead.

In the second period, the Prowlers, with their longest sustained drive, moved from their 20-yard line to the Warren 4-yard line, picking up five first downs during the sequence of plays. From the four, Mittelstadt tried left guard for no gain. Klungness made two yards at right tackle, and then Aune, on a sneak, charged center for a touchdown. An Aune to Klungness pass added the extra point.

The Prowlers' final touchdown was scored in the third period, with Aune going across the goalline from one-yard out. Mittelstadt hit left tackle for the conversion. A pass interference call had given the Prolwers a first down on the Warren 11-yard line. Aune, on a rollout, carried to the Warren 1-yard line to set up the score.

During the game, the Prowlers had fourteen first downs, nine by rushing, four by passing, and one by a penalty. The Ponies, who never made a serious threat at scoring, getting to the Prowler 32-yard line late in the first period for their deepest penetration of Prowler territory, had four first downs, all by rushing.

Warren will travel to Bagley on Friday night for a Pine-to-Prairie conference game.

Governor Calls Traffic Safety Parley for Youths

Conference Slated for Monday, Sept. 17 on 'U' of M. St. Paul Campus

Representatives of Minnesota junior and senior high schools and other youth groups have been invited by Gov. Elmer L. Andersen to assemble Monday, Sept. 17, at the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota for the third state Youth Traffic Safety Conference.

A day-long series of action projects and discussion sessions—designed to illustrate life-saving traffic safety measures — is planned for an expected attendance of over 1,000 young people and adults who are being enlisted by Governor Andersen in a state-wide campaign against traffic accidents.

Adult organizations invited by the governor to support the cause include Parent-Teacher Associations and civic and service clubs, as well as school driver training instructors, mayors and other local public officials, law officers, county attorneys and district and juvenile judges.

"An ever-increasing number of young people driving more and more cars on our crowded highways emphasizes the importance of our state's Youth Traffic Safety program," Governor Andersen said. "The needless injuries, destruction and deaths resulting from highway accidents make it imperative that every thoughtful Minnesotan support this endeavor."

The young people will be instructed in traffic safety projects they can put on in their own communities. The demonstrations will be staged at St. Paul campus parking lots, just as they might be carried on by the students themselves after they return home.

Road Worker Is Hurt in Contact With High Voltage

George Behnke, 44, of Marshall, received burns on the hand, fingers and left flank when he came in contact with a rural power line while operating road equipment near Goodridge last week. He was hospitalized in Northwestern hospital in this city.

The mishap occurred last Thursday when Behnke was attempting to raise a telephone line to clear his machine and came in contact with the high tension wire. The jolt knocked him from the machine and he fell nearly 15 feet to the ground. He was employed with the McLaughlin-Schulz construction company which is doing road work in the area.

Mrs. Halldin Is Named to Head Co. DFL Women

Mrs. Kenneth Halldin was elected president of a women's Pennington county DFL group at an organizational meeting held recently. Mrs. Clarence Stromberg was elected secretary and Mrs. Gladys Joringdal, county chairwoman, conducted the meeting.

The organization is to include women of Thief River Falls and townships in the county who are interested in promoting the welfare of the Democratic Farmer-Labor movement. Discussion was held on the formation of individual groups to encourage active interest in the party and in the coming election.

Women of the county who are interested in becoming part of the organization are invited to attend the future meeting or may contact Mrs. Halldin or Mrs. Joringdal for details.

The Ripe Olive Hunt Club

Herb Jung, on Friday evening at the Odd Fellows club rooms, was host to members of his deer hunting party and several invited guests. The gathering was in a sense a farewell party, as Herb, in a couple of weeks, will be leaving town to establish residence in Los Angeles, where his boys, Vic and Loren, are now living. The community in general, and the Ripe Olive club in particular, will be the poorer by Herb's decision to leave town.

The highlight of Friday's informal gathering was Herb's presentation to the club of a well-documented book giving the details and experiences of the hunting club since its organization in 1928. Herb, as breakfast chef, secretary and historian, has been diligent in keeping the records of the club, and it is Herb's hope that the club will continue in existence, and that the records and experiences of the club will continue to be inscribed in the book.

It was back in 1928 when two hunting parties, one composed of Roy and George Erickson and Sig Salveson, and the other consisting of Bob Lane, John Mostue, Chuck Dablow, Bill Mulry, and Jung, agreed to join forces in the quest of deer. In 1937, when the club gained its distinctive and unique name, the following were the members: Carl Kretzschmar, Al Stenberg, Carl Wennberg, George Erickson, C. V. Whitchurch, and Jung.

Sportsmen who have had experience in trailing moose will recognize the significance of the club's name. Suffice to say that Herb has an exhilarating chapter on the incident that caused the club to adopt the name "Ripe Olive".

Interesting Experiences

And you can believe it that the club in the ensuing years has had many interesting experiences, some amusing and some harrowing. In the latter category was the instance in 1953 when Al Stenberg, who is now president of the club, was lost in the swamp around Rapid river. (The club, incidentally, does all of its hunting in the area northeast of here, having covered the territory from the old Schilling postoffice to the Faunce area). When Al failed to report to camp that night in November of 1953 an alarm was sent out, and a pose of twenty-four hunters joined in the search — some of these hunters, who headquartered at Norris Camp, were Dr. Ted Bratrud, Bill Dahlquist, Kern Olson, Bix Caron, Carl Lee, and Bill Kvalsten — and it was feared that Al had met with misfortune, a broken leg or a heart attack were some of lesser fears. Fortunately the incident had a happy ending as Al, coming out of the woods, met up with some hunters who brought him back to camp. The "fatted calf" was served to celebrate Al's safe return.

It was in 1956, during a poor hunting season, that Al Stenberg erected a large sign near a trail that carried this legend: "Slow, Rabbit Crossing."

It's a certainty, though, that the club will not be the same without the presence of Herb Jung.

Football Sidelights

Several of us were witnesses on Monday evening to the making of an interesting wager between Prowler track coach Rod Max Edlund. Rod said that Prowler halfback Paul Klungnes, the first time that he received the ball on a kickoff or punt, would go all the way for touchdown. Dick made a coke bet that this wouldn't happen. The result, Paul gathered in Jerry Cook's kick early in the first period and scampered 85 yards for a touchdown.

Miscellany

It is worthy of mention to report that Clair (Shorty) O'Hara scored a 39 over the local course last week. For an old broken-down baseball catcher, who has taken up the game of golf just recently, that's a remarkable score. . . Losing to Fosston's Jom Haugst in the finals of the Red River Valley tournament at Crookston was Keith Jorde, once a local resident but now residing in East Grand Forks. Keith, who grew up on a farm near the local golf course, learned most of his golf here, and he became a championship flight golfer. He attended high school here until his senior year, which he spent at Faribault, and during his senior year he won the Minnesota state high school golf title. For a fellow with a comparatively modest physique, Keith can really belt a golf ball . . . That the Fosston Jets intended to make a strong bid for the Norman-Polk and Region 2B baseball titles next season is indicated by the report that Jerry Daniels will be teaching in Fosston this year. Daniels, a graduate of Bemidji State college, is a capable southpaw pitcher. Jerry pitched for the Cass Lake high school and city teams, and with the Bemidji State Beavers. And the Fosston fans hope that shortstop Bill Cline, who will be teaching at Kennedy this year, will return to Fosston for the summer months and play with the Jets. Cline was rated as one of the league's best shortstops this past season. . Said last week's Sporting News, the baseball weekly: "To help pitcher Corky Johnson and his wife celebrate the birth of a daughter, the El Paso Sun Kings passed out cigars to the first 300 men entering Dudley Field, August 17. The Johnson heir arrived the previous day." . . Phil LeGault, the manager-pitcher-outfielder-cleanup hitter of the 1951 state tournament baseball Thieves, was a visitor in town for a couple of hours on Tuesday. Phil, who has been roundhouse foreman for the Soo Line at Bismarck, No. Dak., was enroute to his new position, as foreman, in his home town of Gladstone, Mich. The chunky lefthander, weighing in at about 190 pounds, appeared to be shape to pitch half an inning.

Farmers in the U. S. and Canada use polyethylene plastic film, derived from petroleum, to lengthen the growing season. Oil Facts reports that the plastic mulch conserves ground moisture, keeps soil warmer, and practically eliminates weeds.

Golf Tourney to End Next Sunday

The Thief River Golf club's annual tournament will be concluded on Sunday with the championship matches in the various flights being scheduled for completion. The contestants in the eight-man championship flight are as follows: Jim Solsten vs. Lloyd Bennes; Larry Perkins vs. Jack Boyer; Ron Kvikstad vs. Phil Jorgenson; and John Moum vs. Rod Max. Two of these matches have been played, with Kvikstad defeating Jorgenson, 4-3, and Moum edging Max, 1-up in nineteen holes. The matches in the championship flight are eighteen-hole matches.

In the first flight, the following pairings are slated: Rudy Mehlhoff vs. Bob Flynn (this match has been played, with Mehlhoff winning); Wally DuChamp vs. Bob Wurst; Steve Embury vs. Jarvis Prichard; and Les DeBriyn vs. Ron Solheim.

In the second flight, which has reached the semi-finals, Larry Helgeland defeated Evan Anderson, Milt Relerson defeated Robin Bredeson, Chuck Wilcox defeated Bob Gaarder, and Lowell Swenson defeated Bob Bredeson.

The third flight, too, has reached the semi-finals, with Rick Thompson defeating Jim Bennes, L. L. Tygeson defeating Elton Cummings, Roger Tunberg defeating Glen Krenz, and Dr. Orion Belch defeating Carl Onkka. Tunberg has reached the finals as he defeated Dr. Belch in a semi-finals match on Monday.

The fourth flight play found Gene Sack defeating Harley Kelly, Larry Gilbertson besting Russ Embury, Morris Goddard defeating Ken Onken, and Red Kortuem defeating Roy Lee.

In the fifth flight competition, John McGinley defeated Al Adams; Dick Bjorkman defeated George Glum; Shorty O'Hara defeated Hubert Matt; and Harvey Patten defeated Jim Womack.

In the six-man sixth flight, Bill Herzog defeated Curt Charlson, and Dr. Ed Gilbert defeated Ted LaCoursiere in first-round matches.

The local tournament season will be concluded on Sunday, September 16, when the local club will be host to the annual "Snowball Special" shortstop tourney.

A new liquid petroleum mulch, tested on four continents, has increased crop yields as much as 111 per cent, according to Oil Facts.

Pheasant, Partridge Seasons Open Oct. 27

Minnesota's 1962 pheasant season will open on October 27 and run through November 25 conservation department officials announced today.

Shooting hours will be from 10 a. m. to sunset except for the opening day when hunting will begin at 12 noon. Bag limits will be three cocks daily and six in possession. Hens will be protected again this year to insure better production. A season on Hungarian partridge will run concurrently with the pheasant season. The bag and possession limits are 3 and 6.

August roadside census counts on 3,752 miles of routes in 61 counties in the pheasant range showed a general population decrease. The decline was due to a substantial reduction in breeding hens as a result of losses last winter and poor hatching conditions due to the unusually wet spring. Fewer broods were seen on census routes and there was a slight reduction in average brood size from 6.2 chicks last year to 6.0 this year. The 1962 hatch was also later than normal.

This fall hunters should expect about 23 per cent fewer birds than the average for the past ten years. Last year 1.3 million cocks were harvested. It is anticipated that the total harvest this year will drop below one million cocks. Weather and cover conditions during the hunting season will influence the take.

Although the pheasant reproduction is down, Minnesota and other states have found that shooting cocks only, does not affect the rise and fall of pheasant populations from year to year. Winter sex ratio counts over the past 15 years show that, on the average, the sex ratio in Minnesota runs one cock for about three hens. This shows that the cock population has never been overshot regardless of the length of season and the population level. The average life span of a pheasant is less than a year and therefore they cannot be stockpiled. The pheasant population normally is reduced about 70 per cent annually from natural mortality whether they are hunted or not.

These factors were considered in setting the 30-day season. Most states, realizing that shooting cocks only has no effect on the pheasant population, have set seasons accordingly. South Dakota has announced a 30 to 61 day season for 1962, Wisconsin 25 days, North Dakota up to 43 days, and Nebraska 86 days. Iowa usually has a 30 day cock season.

Although there are generally fewer birds this year, hunters will still find good populations in some areas in western and southern Minnesota. The central and east-central parts of the state showed the heaviest declines in populations from last year.

Since good moisture conditions this year have encouraged begetative growth, it is anticipated that cover will be heavy during the hunting season. Hunters with good dogs will have a real advantage in flushing birds and retrieving cripples from this heavy cover.

Fewer Certified Potatoes Grown

Minnesota Production Down 32% from 1961

Minnesota potato acreage entered for certification in 1962 is down 32 per cent from 1961, according to a report published in the Valley Potato Grower, official publication of the Red River Valley Potato Growers association. North Dakota acreage is down 25 per cent from a year ago.

Varieties, acres applied for in 1961 and acres applied for this year are as follows:

Map Is Available on Public Hunting Districts in State

A new map showing the location of state-owned wetlands and public hunting areas has been made available by the conservation department's game and fish division.

Dave Vesall, supervisor of the section of game, said that the map shows the location of 757,056 acres of public hunting grounds, an increase of 51,876 acres over last year.

The map shows 450 separate hunting units as compared with 383 the preceding year. Public hunting grounds are now located in 77 of Minnesota's 87 counties.

Many of the areas were purchased through the "Save Minnesota's Wetlands" program. Funds for the program are obtained through a $1.00 surcharge on all small game hunting licenses.

State-owned public hunting areas can be identified in the field by the signs marking the boundaries. These signs read, "Wildlife Management Area, Minnesota Conservation Department, Division Game and Fish".

These areas are all open to public hunting, however, 15 of the larger units have plainly marked refuges within their boundaries where hunting is prohibited as a game management measure.

The map may be obtained by contacting the Department of Conservation, bureau of information, Centennial Office Bldg., St. Paul 1.

Sportsmen's Club Creates Wildlife Area in Norman Co

A county sportsmen's club and the conservation department's division of game and fish are creating a 1,300 acre wildlife area in northwestern Minnesota, it was reported this week.

The Norman County Rod and Gun club and the division's section of game have begun development of the wetlands project known as the Agassiz II Wildlife Management Area, 6½ miles east of Lockhart.

The plan is to create several water impoundments to make the area attractive to waterfowl and other wildlife. Purchase of the land was urged by the Rod and Gun Club and approved by the Norman county board of commissioners and the people living adjacent to the proposed project.

Former game warden Martin Nelson of Ada was credited with being instumental in the development of the wildlife area. Members of the Rod and Gun Club are working on the project under the direction of assistant area game manager Gerald H. Maertens in order to speed development work.

Consumer Price Index Rises 0,2% in July

Consumer Price Index rose by 0.2 per cent in July, the U. S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reports. The index has advanced each July in the last 10 years, the Bureau noted. Principal causes of the rise this July were higher prices for several important food items and further increases in service prices. Moderating influences were lower average prices of gasoline and new cars.

At 105.5 (1957-59 equal 100), the index was 1.1 per cent above its level a year ago, with most of the increase having occurred since last January. (On the former base of 1947-49 equals 100, the July index was 129.4)

Advances for pork, fresh milk, and eggs were the major causes of the 0.3 per cent rise in food prices. Fresh fruits and vegetables and poultry declined. Compared with July 1961, food prices averaged 0.4 per cent higher because of an increase of nearly 3 per cent in prices of restaurant meals.

Private transportation prices dropped 0.5 per cent. Average gasoline prices declined more than 2 per cent in a market that remained unsettled as a result of strong competitive pressures and the introduction of lower grades of gasoline. While new car prices declined, used car prices remained stable.

Movie admission prices rose, but for television and radio sets there were competitive price reductions and 1962 model closeout sales. Prices of toilet goods rebounded from a June decline, and barber and beauty-shop service prices also advanced over the month. Medical care costs rose another 0.2 per cent in July on the basis of higher prices for all medical care services, while prescription and drug prices continued their downward trend.

Housing prices were stable on the average over the month as lower prices for maintenance supplies and housefurnishings were offset by increases for rents, electricity, and household operation.

On the basis of the July index, about 950,000 workers are scheduled to receive increases of 1 cent an hour as a result of a quarterly review of cost-of-living allowances under union contracts. These include approximately 780,000 employees in the automobile and automobile parts industries, 75,000 workers in the farm equipment industry, and 65,000 in the aerospace industry. The remaining 30,000 workers are employed by a variety of metalworking firms. In addition, about 15,000 employees of trucking firms will receive 3-cent increases on the basis of annual or semiannual reviews.

Potato Field Day Held Today at Grand Forks Site

Viewing of potato research plots will take place today at the annual Potato Field Day to be held at the Red River Valley Potato Grower's association research farm near Grand Forks. The field day is to begin at 1 p. m. with conducted tours to be offered.

Research plots to be seen will include seedling and variety trial, seed piece treatment, minimum tillage, herbicide trial, insecticide performance study, potato flake trial and spraying studies. The farm is located four miles south on highway 81 and one mile west of Grand Forks.

Turkey Processing Plant at Capacity

Production at the Land O'Lakes turkey processing plant was at maximum capacity last week, according to John Lang, manager. He estimates that the volume of turkeys in the area is down about 25 per cent this year and the plant volume probably will be down from last year's total. Quality is excellent, he states.

The number of employees last week was 160. Of this total 142 worked within the plant, 10 were truck drivers and 8 helped with the unloading.

As a life-long resident of this district, I am familiar with its problems and its potential. I recognize the importance of all phases of agriculture, crops, dairying, beef, hogs and sheep, and their relation to the area's economic picture. Editorials . . .

"Finish each day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day, begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense. This day is all that is good and fair. It is too dear, with its hopes and invitations, to waste a moment on the yesterdays."

—Emerson

Supersonic Speed

A Swedish aviation expert has come up with the sensible recommendation that only military planes be permitted to fly at supersonic speeds and that all airplanes in the civil service be limited to speeds lower than the speed of sound. Such a speed limit should, *without question, be imposed on all commer*cial planes flying over land areas.

The Hot Spot Again

Berlin is a hot spot in the cold war again but just why Khrushchev has put on the pressure at this time is not clear. As pointed out by the New York Times, "Berlin represents Mr. Khrushchev's most notable failure." He would like nothing better than to force the western powers out of West Berlin, but he apparently is not willing to risk an all-out war to do it.

The New York Times thinks he may be putting on an act to prove to the Chinese that he is still tough. And it may be that he is trying to strengthen the morale of the East Germans, whose economy is sagging. Or he may be building the atmosphere of crisis that will add color to his visit to the United Nations later this fall.

Supreme Court Judges

The retirement of Justice Felix Frankfurter from the Supreme Court brings to a close the public career of a lawyer who for many years has been a controversial figure. His appointment by President Roosevelt was considered at the time to be "political", in that he then definitely classified as a liberal. He bows out as a conservative.

His best qualification for service on the Supreme Court was his recognized competence as a student of law. As an instructor of law at Harvard he had established a reputation that was respected. The fact that he became more conservative with age and experience is understandable. That is the usual result that comes with age and experience.

The appointment of ~~Labor~~ Secretary Arthur Godlberg is also political. He is appointed mainly because he is a liberal in the hope that, with his help, the Supreme Court will reflect President Kennedy's liberal views. It may work out that way. Or it could be that Goldberg will become another great Supreme Court Justice.

We Have No Choice

The Soviet Union's announcement from Moscow, stating definitely that military equipment and technical specialists for training Cuban servicemen will be sent to Cuba, leaves little time for talking. The landing of Russian military equipment and men in Cuba must be looked upon as a hostile act.

We cannot permit a Communist colony, a short distance from our shore, to be dominated by Russia, and the Soviet Union should be told bluntly that if such a course is pursued the United States will proceed in self defence, with military action.

Fortunately we have a strong navy base in Cuba and gaining control of the island would not in itself require much of a military operation. The consequences could be serious, possibly leading to war with Russia. But that would be for the Russians to decide. We now have no choice in the matter, and unless we now take a firm stand the pressure on us will continue, and each time we give ground under pressure, we lose prestige and we lose the confidence of our friends.

Political Talent

(Wall Street Journal)

We see that the major television networks are considering a plan to shorten a number of TV shows this fall by five minutes so as to permit candidates for Governor, Senator and other state and local offices to make political talks. The time would be lopped off the ends of the programs.

We have a feeling that the politicians might want to think twice before going ahead with this idea. For one thing, regular TV viewers don't always take kindly to seeing the formats of their favorite shows messed up, whatever the reason. For that's what would happen to Jackie Gleason and Red Skelton, among others. For another, as any old vaudevillian can tell you, it takes an awfully good performer to follow an act that's just brought down the house.

But then, it's true that politicians can be pretty funny, too.

And It Must Be Spent

(Detroit News)

The United States public health service is afflicted with a health problem of its very own. It is issued more fiscal calories than it can reasonably consume and is getting too fat.

For the 1961 fiscal year, the agency asked for 400 million dollars and Congress promptly handed it 560 million dollars. For 1962 it requested 583 million dollars and had to digest 738 million. In an effort to match the generosity of the legislators, it asked for 780 million for the current fiscal year. The House of Representatives awarded it $840,800,000 and the Senate $900,800,000. The final amount will be a compromise between the two grants.

Since there is some kind of Washington law that says it is administrative treason not to spend money when authorized, the PHS tries to get rid of it. Waste admittedly occurs. The surgeon general says he can't help it.

What is needed here is some new miracle drug that will make congressional committee chairmen become stingy at the sight of a public health service budget.

Inherited Difficulties

State Highway Commissioner James C. Marshall is being used by the DFL party leaders as a whipping boy in a campaign to discredit Governor Elmer Andersen. There is nothing unusual about political tactics of this kind. They follow the usual pattern of campaign year procedure.

We are not in a position to pass judgement on the Commissioner's competence, but we do know personally a few of his subordi*nates in the highway department. They rate* him highly and like him personally. They tell us that while he has the blunt approach of a military man, he is not in any way high-hat and he is fair.

There probably is justification for some of the criticism of the manner in which the interstate system has been handled in the metropolitan area. Actual construction has not kept pace with land acquisition and clearing. As a result residents of acquired dwellings have been inconvenienced by needlessly hasty orders to vacate.

But let's keep in mind that General Marshall has been Commissioner only a short time and he has had little or nothing to do with the preliminary planning and scheduling of contracts for the construction that now is in progress.

Whatever the shortcomings of the present program may be, they are largely the shortcomings which Commissioner Marshall inherited. Let's give the man a fair chance to prove himself.

Foreign Aid

Wilbur Elston, a good reporter with a background of small-town journalism, along with years of experience as an observer in Washington, and now one of the straight-thinkers of the editorial staff of the Minneapolis Tribune, thinks the government's foreign aid program deserves a hard look. We are glad to pass along a few of his observations.

He agrees with what President Kennedy said at a recent press conference, that it would be the "height of folly" to appropriate $50 billion for national defense and large sums for the Atomic Energy Commission, and then let "very vital" free nations fall into the Communist bloc. Foreign aid has a place in the nation's defense program. But, Elston reminds us:

> "The Foreign Aid Program once again is in trouble in Congress. Congressional criticism reflects growing public concern about reports of inefficiency, waste and corruption in administration of the program. It also reflects concern about the drain that the foreign aid program makes on the U. S. gold supply, especially in view of the unfavorable U.S. balance-of-payments situation."

Elston thinks most of our foreign aid dollars should be spent in the United States. Extending credits would be less painful than giving bundles of dollars. And he thinks prosperous western Europe should be able to participate more liberally in a foreign aid program. In conclusion he states:

> "The need for assistance varies greatly from country to country. There are differences in populations and domestic resources and in relationships with European nations. Actually, the aid that the United States provides to Africa is much less than the total from Western Europe. The free world aid to Africa last year amounted to more than a billion dollars, and thus the United States contributed less than one-quarter of the total.
> "Elsewhere, however, the other free world nations have not been carrying their fair share. Until they do, and until the waste and inefficiency in the U.S. aid program is eliminated, there will be continuing criticism of the size of the U. S. foreign aid budget. And there should be."

Interesting Opinions

The ultimate in communications will arrive when an individual, equipped with a vest pocket transmitter-receiver, will connect by radio with a nearby switchboard and be able to see and speak with any similary equipped individual anywhere in the world.

"In the ultra-high and microwave frequencies of the radio spectrum, and in controlled light beams, the channels available for such personal communication run into the billions. The individual thus will have his assigned private frequency for communications as he today has his private telephone number."

—David Sarnoff.

A Roman idiot was granted an audience with the Emperor Nero. "I've invented something that will save Rome from all her enemies, oh mighty Caesar," shouted the idiot. "I've invented a five-wheel chariot."

"A five-wheel chariot?" exclaimed Nero. "What do you call it?"

The idiot winked at the Emperor. "A V-hicle."

Meet
Sen. Murray
State Senator Louis A. Murray of East Grand Forks has represented the 66th Legislative District for the past 12 years. This district included only Polk County but because of the legislative redistricting act now in effect, the district will now include the counties of Pennington Polk and Red Lake.
Senator Murray is anxious to personally meet as many people as possible in the new district between now and election day.
EXPERIENCE
A former Municipal Judge and City Councilman in East Grand Forks where he was born and raised, Senator Murray has successfully been elected to every public office for which he campaigned.
WAR VETERAN
An overseas veteran, Murray served in the Southwest Pacific for four years with the army engineers. He is the only war veteran seeking this office. He is an active member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legon.
OCCUPATION
Senator Murray is employed as a freight conductor and brakeman with the Northern Pacific Railway Company since 1938.
FAMILY MAN
The Senator is married and lives with his wife and six children in East Grand Forks. (They're expecting their seventh).
EDUCATION
Senator Murray attended Northern State Teachers College at Aberdeen, South Dakota, and the University of North Dakota.
ORGANIZATIONS
Member of Fraternal Order of Eagles, Elks, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Rod and Gun Club, and Chamber of Commerce.
COMMITTEES
Senator Murray serves on five very important committees and two interim study commissions. His seniority entitles him to serve on the following committees: Taxes and Tax Laws, Civil Adminstration, Liquor Control, Public Welfare, and General Legislation. He serves on the Iron Ore Taxation Study Commission and also the Commission on Metropolitan Sanitation.
POLITICAL AFFILIATION
Senator Murray is a lifelong Democrat. He was a delegate to the 1955 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. He was Polk County D. F. L. Chairman for 10 years and Secy.-Treas. of the 9th District Committee. He has caucused with the Senate Liberals for 12 years. He received the D. F. L. endorsement from Polk, Pennington and Red Lake County Committees. The Minnesota Legislature is supposedly non-partisan but when the legislature convenes a member must join either the Conservative or Liberal group. It is common knowledge that the Liberals are Democrats and the Conservatives are Republicans. My two opponents in this Primary Election have caucused Conservative in the past.
Prepared, circulated, and paid for by Murray for Senator Volunteer Committee, Irving Beyer, Red Lake Falls, Sec'y.

High School Diploma Is Valuable Property

High school diplomas bring rewards, the U. S. Labor Department points out in a new booklet addressed to teenagers.

Youths tempted to drop out of school this fall are urged to consider these facts: In addition to other personal satisfactions of a better education, earnings of high school graduates are generally greater at the outset of their working lives than for those with lesser schooling, and the financial gap widens as time goes on. Moreover, it has been found that job security is greater for workers with a good education.

To the youngster citing a need for money as the reason for leaving school, the department says, "O. K., but don't quit school. Get a part-time job — after school and during school vacations." Such part-time work, the Department adds, gives a youngster good experience, a chance to show his employer what he can do, and opens up possibilities for full-time work after graduation.

The new booklet for teenagers is entitled "School — or What Else?" It was prepared because of the department's concern over the current dropout trend. If this trend continues, the department notes, at least 800,000 of the 24 million children entering the first grade this fall will have dropped out of school before their class graduates in 1975.

Wide distribution of the pamphlet through schools, state and local employment offices, and youth organizations is planned. A limited number of free copies are available from the Bureau of Labor Standards, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C. Copies may also be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Sales price is 10 cents a copy. A 25 per cent discount is given on orders of 100 copies or more.

Fewer, Larger Farms Is Minnesota Trend

Low prices for farm products coupled with increasing cash operating costs will encourage Minnesota farmers to increase the size of their farms.

So report W. A. Tinsley and S. A. Engene, University of Minnesota agricultural economists. Their study of farm size trends appears in the current issue of Minnesota Farm Business Notes, an Agricultural Extension Service publication.

Tinsley and Engene say the last U. S. Census of Agriculture showed 1 per cent of the farmland in Minnesota is now in farms of 2,000 acres or more. Farmers with 1,000 acres or more operated 4 per cent of the farmland. And farmers with 500 acres or more operated 16 per cent.

Almost three-fourths of Minnesota's 29 million acres of farmland is now in farms larger than a quarter section.

The shift to larger farms is taking place in all parts of Minnesota. In Clay, Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Polk and Wilkin counties, half the land is now in farms of 500 acres or more. In these Red River Valley counties, acreage in farms over 500 acres rose from 1.3 million acres in 1940 to 2 million in 1959.

Farms in other parts of Minnesota are growing with equal speed. In the eastern two-thirds of the state, 1.9 million out of 17.3 million acres were in farms of 500 acres or more in 1959. This was an increase from 1.1 million in 1940. In this area, 5.9 million acres are still in farms of 180 acres or less.

Tinsley and Engene say the rate of migration from agriculture will dictate the rate of increase in farm size during the coming decade. Many farmers now wish to expand thier farms, but won't be able to do so until land becomes available.

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE

Notice To The Voters

The primary election day is Sept. 11, and our Bi-county D.F.L. legislative committee strongly urges all voters to exercise their franchise by going to the polls and casting their ballots for the candidates of their choice whether they be Liberals or Conservatives. It is in the best interest of our American tradition that we maintain our two-party system and the stimulating interest it provides in electing candidates for office. Too often many of us neglect one of the most important functions of this system by not taking part in the selection of candidates at the primary election. Voters of both parties should be interested in selecting the candidates whose philosophy most closely reflects their own principles and programs. For this reason we highly commend these candidates regardless of party, who frankly state their feelings and affiliations before the elections. Many candidates run as "independents," but a former state Legislator with forty years of experience told us he did not know of a single case where a legislator remained independent once he was elected. It is only reasonable that they caucus with one side or the other if they want to be a part of a working Legislature. Their first act in the legislature is to vote for a Liberal or Conservative speaker, who in turn names the chairman of the committees and members of these committees. We can only conclude that those who profess independence are either unfamiliar with the mechanics of our state government, or feel that disclosing their affiliation will be a disadvantage to them in seeking election to office.

Before you exercise your privilege and duty as a good citizen on Sept. 11, by voting, find out how the candidate will represent you. Ask him how he will caucus.

SUSIE'S IDEAS

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Do you suppose Susie wants an addition for her doll family? Or ice cream and cake for supper tonight? Or a new pair of fancy black patent-leather shoes?

I'm Susie's mother, but I wouldn't know! You'd have to have seven league boots to keep apace with her active little mind!

For instance, she'd overheard us discussing our new family policy of having a suggestion box. Susie was determined to get into the act too. It is typical of her, typical of our family. We enjoy doing things together. We believe in unity in work, in play, and in prayer.

We center our family activities about the Church. The children go to Church School—Susie can hardly wait for each Sunday morning—and my husband is active in the Men's Club. I am president of the woman's group in our parish. Yet—it does take a lot of time and effort. But I am never happier than when I am doing church work, because I know how truly worthwhile it is.

Don't forget that your church needs workers too! Just as you need the Church!

Masses in Classes . . .

School Enrollment Totals Record of 2,745 Students

Thief River Falls public schools recorded another all-time high enrollment figure this year as 2,745 students had reported for classes as of Friday morning, September 7. The figure compares with 2,691 a year ago and is expected to increase slightly in the elementary and secondary divisions in the next week or two.

Area vocational-technical school enrollment will also be increased soon as students already registered will start classes in auto mechanics, drafting, welding and carpentry in October. Total enrollment in the vocational school now stands at 212.

Actural enrollment figures are only nine higher than estimated total enrollment. Preliminary estimates showed 1,393 elementary pupils, 597 junior high school students and 539 senior high school students for a total of 2,529 while actual enrollment now stands at 2,538. The school census completed this past week indicates 247 four-year-olds which will be in next year's kindergarten as compared with 223 this year.

With the normal addition of students in the ninth grade from St. Bernard's school, St. Hilaire and rural school students, and with the graduation next spring of a relatively small class of seniors (159), school officials expect that approximately 100 more pupils can be expected in the 1963-1964 school year.

Comparative enrollment in various grades this year as compared with the 1961 enrollment is as follows:

Grade	1961	1962
Kindergarten	223	223
First	204	196
Second	195	196
Third	181	199
Fourth	188	168
Fifth	194	189
Sixth	174	199
Special Classes	11	16
Total Elementary	1,370	1,377
Seventh	172	179
Eighth	188	182
Total Jr. High	577	597
Tenth	197	210
Eleventh	163	195
Twelfth	177	159
Total Sr. High	537	564

Individual elementary school enrollments include Knox, 562; Northrop, 414; and Washington, 401. The two sixth grade classes at the Armory are classified as Knox students while the special department classes are included in the Washington school enrollment.

Legislative Contests Hold Voting Interest

The only primary election contests that are apt to stimulate voter interest in the election tomorrow in Pennington county pertain to the state legislature. Pennington county is now a part of the 66th Legislative District, comprised of Polk, Red Lake and Pennington counties. Clearwater county, long associated with Red Lake and Pennington, now is joined with Mahnomen and Norman counties.

There are primary contest for both the state senate and representative. Senate candidates are Louis Murray of East Grand Forks Polk county incumbent; Harveydale Maruska of Angus, who has served as a representative from Polk county two terms, and Alfred Solstad of Fisher, former Polk county senator.

Polk county will elect one House member and Red Lake and Pennington counties will elect one jointly. Candidates for representative from Red Lake and Pennington counties are Terry Knutson of Oklee, a son of former Congresswoman Coya Knutson; Stanley Radniecki of Trail, who farms in southeastern Pennington; Andrew Skaar, Pennington county farmer who farms in Norden township, and Art Stenberg, Pennington county faremr who farms in the town of North. Radniecki is endorsed by the DFL party.

There are no primary contests for Pennington county offices.

Congressman Odin Langen is unopposed for nomination on the Republican ticket but in the finals he will face the winner of three-way contest in the DFL camp.

Arctic Enterprises Builds Volume in Arctic Cat Sales

Production Grows But Sale Demand Keeps Fast Pace

by Marvin Lundin
City Editor

With progressive speed which may conservatively be called amazing, Arctic Enterprises, Inc., is building a substantial business on a foundation of snow. Organized in Thief River Falls only 18 months ago under the name of Polar Manufacturing company, the concern was incorporated as Arctic Enterprises in April of this year and has blossomed into an extensive manufacturing operation

Under the direction of Edgar Hetten, founder of the business and long-time associated with Polaris Industries at Roseau, Arctic Enterprises is now engaged in the manufacture of eight models of the Arctic Cat, snow-traveling equipment. With the exception of the smallest and lowest priced model, the entire line is adaptable to rough terrain during all seasons of the year.

The track-type vehicles, powered by engines with automatic transmissions, are designed to carry men and pull personnel or equipment in areas where more commercial transportation routes are impractical, impossible or nonexistent. The models range in price from $549 to $1,800 and are rated as capable of pulling loads ranging from 500 pounds to one ton.

"It's hard to say just what a machine will pull," Hetteen stated. "In the Arctic where snow is packed in wind-driven drifts, the weight that it is possible to pull is fantastic. In other areas where loose snow piles six feet deep it is necesary to make a trail before much of any load can be towed with great success. Snow conditions, incline and terrain are very important factors in the pulling capacity of a given machine."

Began Here in 1961

Hetteen located in Thief River Falls in 1961 with headquarters in the Math Barzen building west of the city power plant on Zeh street and LaBree av. S. He now is president of the corporation which employs about 30 full-time workers in the production of the Arctic Cat models and is just able to keep up with the demand for the machines.

Shipment is made by carload or semi-load with several shipments having been made to Alaska and several to the East Coast. Distributorship has now

About $35 damage was done to the Wayne car and $175 to the Christianson vehicle with Wayne being cited for careless driving.

About 3:10 p. m. Saturday, a car driven by Alfred Englund of Fergus Falls was traveling north on Main avenue and making a left turn on Fifth street when struck on the left rear fender by another vehicle driven by Kenneth Leiran, city. About $45 damage was done to the Englund car and $60 to the Leiran vehicle with the case under investigation by the city police department.

Sheep Breeders Hear Reimer at Ram Sale Dinner

NW School Teacher Challenges Sheepmen To Strive for Quality

"Build a reputation for having high quality stock," stated D. Reimer, head of the animal husbandry department at the Northwest School of Agriculture and experiment station at Crookston, in speaking Sunday evening at the annual Purebred Ram Sale consignor's banquet in the Rex Cafe. The 12th annual show and sale is being held today at the Pennington county fairgrounds livestock pavilion.

Today's exposition opened with judging of animals at 9 a. m. with the sale underway this afternoon. Animals were consigned from all four popular breeds with rams to be sold restricted to only the top ones selected on the basis of this morning's judging.

Reimer used the challenge to breederst to build a reputation for quality as his closing remarks last night. "This is something on which you can't afford to relax," he told the 40 consignors, wives and local Chamber of Commerce representatives, attending the event. He also noted that increased lamb prices during the past year should be an incentive to raise good quality stock.

Outlining the work done at the Northwest School of Agriculture's experiment station since sheep projects were initiated in 1937, Reimer told of findings that had been made through applied research. He explained applied research as "a direct application of the results of basic research on the farm or in the industry."

The sheep project carried on most extensively at the experiment station, he said, has been in sheep breeding for more efficient wool and lamb production. The basic flock of about 80 ewes has now been increased to 195 — all Shropshires. Inbreeding is important to sheep producers, he noted, and is necessary to produce rams which will pass on characteristics to their lambs. If practiced with good selection and proper records, it can actually improve the flock.

With improvement of existing facilities and expansion of the program, more work will be done on lamb feeding trials. Seven breeds of rams are now being used in a cross-breeding program

C of C Week Schedule Is Ready for September 16-22

Finishing touches have been placed on the schedule of activities for Chamber of Commerce Week which will be observed in Thief River Falls on September 16-22. The full-week program of events will involve nearly everyone in the Thief River Falls trade area in one nammer or another.

Emphasis during the week will be placed on orientation of the public and organization members of the functions and purposes of the Chamber of Commerce. The observance will also serve to provide an impetus to the local C of C program and stimulate interest for completion of the year's program of work.

Running in conjunction with the full week's program will be the L. P. A. Jamboree being conducted under the auspices of the retail trade committee. The business stimulant will begin on Monday, September 17, and continue through Saturday, September 22.

To help acquaint the public with Chamber of Commerce purposes and objectives, special articles will be published in the Times on September 17 and 20. Radio presentations on KTRF will be carried at 7 p. m. on September 18, 20 and 21 and on the regular Chamber of Commerce program at 9 a. m. September 19.

Inside Story

Within the Chamber of Commerce itself, activity will begin with a meeting of the board of directors at noon on Tuesday, September 18, in the Rex Cafe. Wednesday will be "Blitz Day" when all standing committees will meet during the day. On the agenda for each committee will be accomplishments, budget status and future planning with each minutes.

Schedule of meetings includes the following: Membership and Finance, 7:30 a.m., Rex Cafe; Community Welfare, 8:30 a. m., Rex Cafe; Agriculture, 10 a. m., C of C office; Busines and Industrial Development, 11 a. m., C of C office; Education, noon, Rex Cafe; Government, 1 p. m., C of C office; Public Relations, 2 p. m., C of C office; Retail Trade, 3 p.m., C of C office; and Thursportation and Communication, 4 p.m., C of C office.

Plan Courtesy Day

Arrangements have also been made in the Courtesy Day schedule with three separate sessions planned on Thursday, September 20. Complete programs will begin at 9:30 a. m., 1 p. m. and 3 p. m. at the Falls Theater. Included at each session will be a discussion of "Courtesty and Community Development" by Roland Larson and showing of two movies. "A Manner of Speaking" on the telephone procedure and "Friendliest Store in Town" on customer courtesy in business.

Businessmen are asked to note the schedule so that they can make arrangements to have as many of their personnel as possible attend one of the sessions. Information gained should be valuable to both the employee and the employer.

An "old-time general meeting" will be held Thursday evening in the Elks club rooms in cooperation with the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Jobs, Inc. A social hour will begin at 5:30 p. m. with a buffet dinner at 6:30, meeting at 7:30 and showing of a U. S. Chamber of Commerce movie at 8:30 on "What Is a Chamber of Commerce".

Schires-Cwikla Vows Are Exchanged In Greenbush

Blessed Sacrament Church of Greenbush was the scene of the recent wedding of Myrna Schires, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schires of Greenbush, who exchanged vows in a double-ring ceremony with David Cwikla of Middle River. Father Thomas Montgomery performed the ceremony.

The bride's floor-length gown was of silk organza and Chantilly lace with chapel train, and styled with a fitted bodice fashioned with Sabrina neckline and long, tapered sleeves. She wore a fingertip-length veil secured by a crown of seed pearls and orange blossoms, and carried a crescent bouquet of pink roses and feathered carnations.

Attending as matron-of-honor was her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Kukowski. Other attendants were Misses Diane Happert and Joan Taus, the groom's cousin, as bridesmaids. They wore identical sheath dresses of flowered green silk organza with matching overskirts. Their head-bands were fashioned of green net and detailed with a bow. They wore matching shoes and white gloves, and carried wicker baskets of pink roses and feathered carnations.

The bride's niece, little Miss Colleen Kukowski, was flower girl. She wore a white nylon floor-length gown with green cummerbund and matching head-piece, and carried a small basket of flowers.

The groom's attendants were his brother, Jerry Cwikla, as best man. Groomsmen were the bride's cousin, Lambert Schires, and Philip Cwikla, the groom's brother. Bruce Morrison, the nephew of the groom, carried the rings and Raymond Morlsey and Kenneth Kukowski were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a pink flowered dress and the groom's mother was attired in a dress of light blue, each wearing white accessories, and corsages of pink roses.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride in the church reception rooms, with about 150 guests in attendance.

Following a honeymoon trip to the North Shore, Duluth, and Superior, the couple are making their home in Minneapolis.

The bride is a 1960 graduate of Greenbush high school, and the groom a graduate of Middle River high school with the class of 1959. He is presently with Northern Ordnance Inc., Minneapolis.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the kitchen of MRS. MERLE LUNDEEN

With the advent of the first frost probably imminent, this end-of-the-garden recipe might help in using up those tomatoes that didn't get ripe and the balance of the crop of green and red peppers while they are still at their best.

We received the recipe from a rural homemaker, Mrs. Merle Lundeen, who lives on a farm near the River Valley bridge and lists her mailing address as Trail.

This relish, called piccalilli, is an excellent accompaniment to practically any kind of meat, and also makes a tasty tartar sauce or sandwich spread when combined with salad dressing.

PICCALILLI

- 1 peck green tomatoes
- 7 large onions
- 3 green peppers
- 3 red peppers
- 1 small head cabbage
- 7 tbsp. salt (used for the soaking)
- 7 cups brown sugar
- 7 cups cider vinegar
- 1 tbsp. mixed spices, tied in a cheesecloth bag

Chop vegetables quite small in the evening and place in salt water overnight. In the morning, drain through colander. When thoroughly drained, add the remaining ingredients and stir well. Cook slowly for two hours, stirring often. Remove the bag of spices. Seal hot in sterilized jars.

Mrs. Lundeen's family in addition to her farmer husband, numbers three small children, Gayle Ann, Timothy Wayne, and Anthony LaVern. Their mother's hobbies are knitting and sewing. In addition to all this, she also has managed to assemble the beginnings of a salt-and-pepper shaker, sugar-bowl-and-creamer collection.

Miss Aquacade Is Guest of Jaycees

Connie Ekeren Given Color Portrait from Sponsoring Chapter

Connie Ekeren, 1962 Miss Aquacade, was presented with a color portrait when the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce met Thursday evening at the Elks club rooms. Miss Ekeren and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Ekeren of this city, were special guests at the meeting.

Annually the Jaycees present the winner of their Aquacade queen contest with a color portrait in suitable frame as a first place prize. Miss Aquacade responded with thanks to the chapter for their work in staging the event and courtesies extended to her and other contestants in the Miss America Preliminary Pageant.

Connie stated that she wanted to express the "pride which the community has in the Jaycees" because "I don't believe you are thanked often enough for the many worthwhile things that you do." She added that she would be attending a finishing school for six weeks while at college and taking a two-week refresher course just before the district pageant in March. She promised to do her best in representing the chapter and community in coming contests.

Charles Holmquist, co-chairman of the Aquacade queen committee, reported that words of appreciation to the chapter had been received in person or by letter from every candidate, all out of town sponsors and visiting queens. He read a letter received from Miss Winnipeg, Frances McInnis, which he said was typical of the many received. President Warren McIntosh read a written note of appreciation from Connie Ekeren.

Announcement was made of the Jaycee Region 2 meeting to be held Wednesday, September 12, at Walker. Discussion was held on chartering a bus for the trip, possibly in cooperation with the Crookston Jaycee chapter. The treasurer was instructed to investigate possibilities and comparative cost of the trip.

James Fisher reported on his investigation of purchasing shirts jackets or vests with Jaycee lettering for use as promotional material by chapter members. Desires of the members were polled with a report to be given at the next meeting of the organization.

William Herzog, assistant football coach at Lincoln high school, presented the evening's program, telling of the members and prospects for the 1962 Prowler football team and season. Mention was also made at the business meeting of the membership drive which will be organized this month.

He is shown with his prize animal above in the Pennington county section of the state fair 4-H livestock barn. Mickey is a member of the St. Hilaire 4-H club and was one of several brothers and sisters winning state fair trips for Pennington county fair dairy entries.

'Yes' Vote Urged in Referendum on Sheep Promotion

Sheep Producers Council Calls for Favorable Vote to Continue Deductions

Minnesota sheep growers and lamb feeders are getting a real bargain for their investment in advertising and promotion through the American Sheep Producers Council, reports Earl Cunningham of Sleepy Eye.

Cunningham, a sheepman, urged all sheep owners to vote "yes" in the September 10-21 referendum which will decide whether or not the promotion program of the council will continue. Sheepmen pay for the ASPC work through deductions from National Wool Act payments.

"During the first five years of the Wool Act," said Cunningham "Minnesota sheep operators were paid $6,495,452. In 1960 they received $1,400,516. Of this amount, $79,465 or 5.67 per cent was deducted for ASPC and spent for advertising and promoting lamb and wool in major consumer markets across the nation."

Cunningham said the average Minnesota sheep owner was paid $81.44 in 1960 and that $4.64 went for promotion. "Every year," he continued, "our industry faces tougher competition for the consumer dollar. We would be foolish not to expect the competition to intensify as new products and cheap imports increase. We can help ourselves to meet this competition if we advertise and promote our products."

PROOF that the Junior Chamber of Commerce does not have a monopoly on beauty is evidenced in the above Chamber of Commerce rebuttal to Thursday's Miss Aquacade use. Betty Johnson, 1961 Northwest Dairy Princess and currently Chamber of Commerce secretary, consented to a request for the use of her talents in promoting the L.P.A. Jamboree which will be held September 17-22. What is L.P.A.? The C of C retail trade committee says, "Find out in Thief River Falls next week."

Fabric Shrinkage

The Sherlock Holmes of the family doesn't need a magnifying glass to solve the mystery of shrinkage of material. All this famous mystery-solver needs to do is read the label on the garment.

Remember that neither price, look nor feel of a fabric gives a clue to shrinkage.

Look for clues in labels to help you discover degrees of shrinkage. The completely "not guilty" of shrinkage verdict can't be given to any fabric. Even a carefully processed garment may shrink a little, perhaps less than one per cent.

The Library Corner

by Tom Lynskey

The end of summer is here and the advent of fall has been welcomed by all. The leaves on the trees will soon be turning to gold and brown and red, and teenagers will be arguing with their fathers that playing touch football with the guys is more important than raking leaves. There isn't much argument heard today, however, about the paramount importance of education. Thief River Falls' students are particularly fortunate to have the services of the Carnegie public library, because the library is the most important supplement to education anywhere.

The Librarians wish to voice their cordial welcome to all high school students who will be using the library this fall and coming year. They are well prepared to help students with any research problems they might encounter in conjunction with their school work. Several new library regulations have been instituted this year which are designed to alleviate the congested conditions which have existed on occasion in previous years. Here are the library regulations:

1. High school students are welcome to come to the library to check out circulating reading material but will not be allowed to loiter in the library.

2. There will be absolutely no talking allowed in the library, and any high school student violating this rule will be suspended from the library for two weeks.

3. Each student will be allowed five magazines for any given topic. They will be allowed a total of three hours to complete this work, as those magazines will not be pulled for them again.

4. Students must request magazines they wish to use the day before.

5. Students are requested to begin early on assigned projects, thus eliminating a last minute rush.

6. Students will not be allowed to do their home work in the library unless they are using reference books in conjuction with their home work.

7. Feel free to ask the librarian to assist you with any of your library problems.

8. The library is closed to children through the 6th grade at 6 p. m. unless accompanied by parents.

When this column appears in Monday's Times I will be starting Freshman Orientation Week at the University of North Dakota. I have really enjoyed This, then, is my last Library Corner. writing this column and I hope that my readers have enjoyed it too.

I would like to express my gratitude to Miss Shanahan, head librarian, who offered me the Library Corner early this summer, and to Mary Lundin, city editor of the Times, who read and printed by literary efforts.

I sincerely hope that my attempts to interest people in the library have not gone unheeded, because I know the library to be too good a thing to pass up. Keep reading!

READY TO GO to nearly any part of the North American continent are these crated Arctic Cat vehicles which were manufactured by Arctic Enterprises, Inc., in Thief River Falls. The machines are made in eight models at the local plant which made the first prototype machine only a year ago. This group of machines is the largest number the plant has been able to stockpile ahead of filling orders in the past year. From organization about 18 months ago as Polar Manufacturing company, the industry has grown to the extent that it has 30 full-time employees and nearly complete distributorship on the continent.

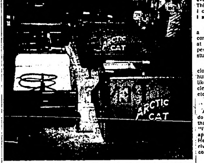
C. Christensen Herd Leads DHIA in August

Orville Peters, supervisor of the Pennington County Dairy Herd Improvement association, lists the following herds as the top ten in the association for the month of August:

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many dry cows are included in the herd then the average for that month may be low even though the cows which are milking produce a lot of milk.

There were 25 herds on test with a total of 625 cows during August with the Pennington association, 83 percent of which were milking. The average amount of milk produced per cow was 705 pounds which tested 3.75% fat. This amounted to 26.5 pounds of butterfat per cow.

Cows finishing with over 500 pounds B.F. during the 1961-62 testing year, in a 365-day or less lactation, were:



PRODUCTION of the Arctic Cat, all-season vehicle manufactured in Thief River Falls by Arctic Enterprises, Inc., has increased to such an extent that the basement of the building used for manufacture has been pressed into full service. Several models in varying stages of construction are shown in the above photo. In Alaska, where the vehicles have been widely accepted, it is not uncommon for dealers to accept dog teams on trade for the popular machines.

been established throughout nearly all of the North American continent and investigations are being made into the possibilities of fulfilling requests from foreign countries. Canadian sales are just beginning and the machines are marketed in Canada under the trade name of Skimobil.

Expand Work Area

To accommodate the flurry of activity connected with production of the machines, the basement of the Barzen building had been pressed into use about three months ago as an assembly and finishing area. A large warehouse across the street from the production plant has also been leased for storage, but the dozen machines now crated for shipment in the building constitute the largest backlog the firm has been able to produce.

Alaska is the most productive market for the machines where they are used for a multitude of purposes in transporting personnel and equipment to remote areas. It is not uncommon for dealers there to accept dog teams as trade-ins for the modern Arctic Cat equipment, Hetten said. The machines travel with ease on the Alaskan tundra and muskeg.

Space Is Cramped

With both floors of the manufacturing firm now being utilized to the fullest extent and jammed with equipment, space is getting to be a problem. Much of the equipment used in the plant was built by plant personnel.

"We will be able to get through the winter all right," Hetten said in regard to his space problem, "but winter will be the big sales season for us. There is room for expansion of the present plant if it becomes necessary and it is best to have all parts of the operation in one building."

The Arctic Enterprises president noted that at least eight families have moved to the city and either rented or purchased homes in order to be near employment with the company. "If the present rate of growth and expansion os sales continues for the next 18 months," he mused, "this will turn out to be a fairly sizeable business."

Since the first prototypes of the all-season vehicles were turned out only a year ago, and much of the past year has been devoted to arranging distributorships, the future looks bright. By the way, does anyone want to buy a good, used dog team?

Interest has been expressed in a ram testing station and an experimental farm, the husbandman added. Both ideas have some merit, he said, but the individual farmer must bear the brunt of the work. "Nothing will help the sheep breeder," he warned, "unless he does a little bit of the work himself."

WHERE IN THE WORLD DID IT GO? Summer, that is. Seems to me it was supposed to come somewhere between Spring and Autumn, but Spring breezes have given way to the rustling gusts of Fall and Summer somehow seems to be a lost season.

Youngsters are already back in the daily classroom routine and it seems like graduation was just last week. Can't help but recall how long the summer vacation period seemed back in the days when summer was measured from end of school to opening of school. Sandwiched in between those two dates were a little bit of baseball, plenty of haying, several sessions of corn cultivating, long days of field work, constant evening and morning chores and a few rainy days when it felt good to sit inside and read or tinker with pet hobby projects.

Summer is supposed to be a generally quiet period when most organizations in this area have light work schedules, infrequent meetings and little activity. It is supposed to be a time for golf, evening relaxation or a shady hammock with a tall glass of lemonade. This season of seasons is when I was going to do the many things I could not do during the long, cold winter. Can't wait for summer, I said. Now it appears summer couldn't wait for me.

Maybe the rapid passage of time is just a hint that time marches a little faster with each passing year. Although I don't like to consider myself as an old-timer (which a person really shouldn't be at 26), I can't help but notice that the "kids" who were "little pests" only a short time ago are now most dignified high school students.

Yes, summer must have gone but a person really had to look closely to see it go. Now come the joys of autumn—football games, hunting season, a last shot at Lake of the Woods walleyes and the like. And, of course, washing the storm windows, fixing the roof, cleaning the garage, clearing the garden, raking the lawn, etc., etc., etc. . . . . .

Advocates of something for nothing policies and federal aid will do well to remember the story of the little robin who thought that digging for worms was too hard work. One day a voice said, "I'll trade you a worm for a feather." The robin accepted the apparent bargain—what could be more insignificant than a feather? He accepted the same offer each day, only to find when winter arrived that he couldn't get his feathers back and he perished in the cold.

POIGNANT PHILOSOPHY—from the pen of John Ruskin (1819-1900) "It's unwise to pay too much, but it's worse to pay too little. When you pay too much, you lose a little money—that is all. When you pay too little, you sometimes lose everything, because the thing you bought was incapable of doing the thing it was bought to do. The common law of business prohibits paying a little and getting a lot — it can't be done. If you deal with the lowest bidder, it is well to add something for the risk you run. And if you do that, you will have enough to pay for something better."

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson

Manager Chamber of Commerce

While we're in the midst of consignor's banquets and ram sales it is only proper to discuss the significance of agriculture to our Thief River Falls economy. Perhaps there are times when we seem quite unaware of its importance.

Although agriculture is not directly responsible for the complete flow of money in our local economy, it is most certainly indirectly responsible for the major portion of it. Years ago lumbering was the big industry in this area and is responsible for the establishment of a city here in the first place. Lumbering, however, has become an almost oblivious effect on our community and agriculture has replaced it remarkably as the base for our city's economic existence.

Football Weather Makes Appearance On Local Scene

Football weather seems to be here to stay as temperatures have held damp and chilly for the past several days. Forecasts call for mostly cloudy skies and cool readings with occasional rain ending today. Skies will be mostly fair tonight and tomorrow, with colder readings tonight and warmer weather tomorrow.

High temperatures today are expected to be in the 50's with lows tonight from 38 to 45 degrees. Cold and rainy weather has been common during the past several days with snow predicted but never materializing. A total of 1.73 inches of rain was recorded since Saturday.

High and low temperatures during the past several days include 75 and 48 on Thursday, 78 and 53 on Friday, 75 and 49 on Saturday and 53 and 45 on Sunday, with a low last night of 45 degrees. Rainfall included 1.22 inches Saturday, .40 inch Sunday and .11 inch today.

Dan Syverson, 76, Succumbs Today; Rites Pending

Dan Syverson, who has resided in Thief River Falls for many years, died early today (Monday) at Northwestern hospital in this city.

Funeral plans are not definite at this time, but arrangements will be in charge of the Green Funeral Home.

WHAT IS LPA JAMBOREE?

HERE ARE THE REASONS why to elect ANDREW SKAAR State Representative September 11 Primary Election

ANDREW SKAAR

He is pledged to serve the best interests of the district — not any pressure group, organization or political party.

He believes in advancement of the area through efforts to obtain industry that will complement agriculture.

He has a thorough knowledge of farm and community problems and the ability to work toward their solutions.

He is an open-minded candidate who will weigh all testimony on area and state problems to determine what the best course of action should be.

Because of his life-long residence in the district he is deeply concerned about the future of Pennington and Red Lake counties. He has a strong formal education, extensive agricultural experience and the rare ability to see progress made without excessive spending. The 66th District needs Andrew Skaar in the State Legislature.

Kvikstad Is City Golf Champ with Sub-Par Victory

Shooting one-under-par golf for the fourteen holes of the match, youthful Ron Kvikstad, for the second time in his young life, won the Thief River Golf club championship when, in a finals match against medalist Larry (Shorty) Perkins on Sunday, he marked up a 5 and 4 win.

It was two years ago, as a high school sophomore, that Kvikstad won his first city golf championship, and now, as a high school senior, he has regained the title that was won last season by Reid Stromberg.

In semi-finals matches played earlier in the week, Kvikstad defeated John Moum, and Perkins defeated Jim Solsten.

In the first round in Sunday's championship finals, Kvikstad carded a one-over-par 37 to gain a 2-up lead over Perkins, who scored a 40.

On the second round, Kvikstad scored a birdie three on the first hole to take a 3-up lead, and after halving the second and third holes, marked up a birdie deuce on number four for a 4-up margin. Ron then closed out the match with a par five on the long fifth hole, with Perkins three-putting for a bogey six.

The championship was the only match in the flight finals that was played to a conclusion on Sunday, with the inclement weather forcing postponement of the other matches. The flight matches must be concluded by next Saturday evening.

On Sunday, Sept. 16, the local club will be host to the annual "Snowball Special" shortstop golf tournament. The championship flight honors will be decided on a 27-hole medal play basis. Match play will determine the winners in the flights below the championship flight, with these matches begin nine-hole match play competition. Tee off time for the championship flight will be 9 a. m.

Golfers wishing to participate in the tournament, which will conclude tournament golf on the local course, should telephone their qualifying scores before Saturday, 6 p. m., to MU 1-2955.

CITY GOLF champion for the second time at Thief River Golf Club is young Ron Kvikstad, smooth-swinging senior at Lincoln high school. In the championship match with Shorty Perkins on Sunday, he was one under par when the match ended after 14 holes. Kvikstad first won the title two years ago and last year relinquished the crown to Reid Stromberg.

That was a surprising finish to the championship finals in the Thief River Golf club's annual tournament when Ron Kvikstad scored a convincing five-up and four-to-play win over Shorty Perkins, the Plummer school teacher. Shorty was the tourgument's medalist, and was seeded as the tourney's favorite.

"History will find greatness in Felix Frankfurter as a justice, not because of the results he reached but because of his attitude toward the process of decision. His guiding lights were detachment, rigorous integrity in dealing with the facts of a case, refusal to resort to unworthy means, no matter how noble the end, and dedication to the Court as an institution. Because he was human, Justice Frankfurter did not always live up to his own ideal. But he taught us the lesson that there is importance in the process."

—New York Times

Wheat Referendum

Wheat growers voted in favor of reduced acreage and higher price supports in the recent referendum. The choice was between a $1.82 support price with less acreage or $1.21 to those who would limit their acreage to present allotments. Their choice is understandable.

The program as presented did not offer a fair solution for the wheat growers of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana who raise hard spring wheat, of which there is no real surplus. The bulk of the surplus is in the red winter wheat that is raised in the southwest.

The spring wheat farmers are not getting a fair break and, while a few are grumbling, there should be more of an organized effort to get for hard spring wheat the special consideration it deserves as a quality product for which there is a special demand.

Invitation to Fraud

After a lengthy congressional investigation of the administration of welfare funds in the District of Columbia, Senator Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia estimates that during the past five years, $18 million were paid out to relief clients there who were ineligible to receive it. Most of these payments were fraudulent.

This raises an interesting question. If there is that much corruption in the one city that is managed by the government — and Senator Byrd's estimate is considered conservative — and if the lax administration of the welfare program in the nation's capitol is typical of welfare administration in other large cities, then the annual cost of this kind of cheating each year totals up to a huge sum.

Much of this cheating probably can be attributed to the government's insistence that all welfare recipients be protected by complete secrecy. Even responsible public officials are not permitted to examine the records. That in itself is an invitation to fraud.

Big University?

We can understand the jubilant attitude of the Minneapolis Tribune when it looks forward to a University of Minnesota enrollment of 51,000 students by 1970. That would be a wonderful thing for Minneapolis.

But we are not sure it would be a good thing for Minnesota as a whole. There are many people, well informed in such matters, who believe the University operations in the Twin Cities are already too big. There is strong support among educators for the idea that the University should be made a professional and graduate school, and that the key high schools thruout the state should be encouraged to project their curriculums to include basic courses in the first two years of college work.

By upgrading the standards of our state colleges, and along with a few junior colleges at strategic points, we probably could do a better job of making college education available to more of our young people at a lower cost. The overall problem should be given careful consideration before any more millions are appropriated for University expansion at Minneapolis.

Corrupt Massachusetts

Brother Bobby hates graft and corruption. His opposition to evil is commendable.

It is a little difficult to understand, however, why, as a native son of Massachusetts, he does not show a little more personal concern about the political corruption for which his home state is noted. And much of the fraud involves federal money.

Cal Brumly, reporting to the Wall Street Journal, tells of many types of corruption that are commonplace and cites typical examples of cases pending in the courts. He says:

> "Because corruption does appear to be so ingrained and extensive here, students of political science say Massachusetts serves as an object lesson on the ways dishonest men in government can boost the costs of doing business, pad tax bills and impair the quality of government services. Thus, its troubles take on significance for citizens of other states, none of which are immune from similar epidemics of graft and self-dealing in government, if they let their guards down.
> The sizable amount of Federal funds channeled through Massachusetts agencies also adds to the national importance of scandals here; of the $675 million the state spent last year, almost $100 million came from Washington.
> "Misuse of Federal highway money, in fact, has already produced a major scandal in Massachusetts. The dubious highway dealings came to light in 1961, when the U.S. was pouring $46 million into the state for road building.
> "Under the Federal highway program, states are reimbursed by Washington for land they purchased for highways in the interstate system. In Massachusetts state Department of Public Works employes, outside appraisers and property owners allegedly conspired to inflate land valuations so that extra money could be collected from Uncle Sam. Some Federal officials estimate overpayments total in the millions."

The next time Bobby goes home he might inquire into these matters among some of his friends.

Automatic Pay Changes

Ramsey county and the city of St. Paul have adopted a new wage increase plan which wipes out the old automatic cost-of-living provision. That is an evil provision that should be eliminated from all wage contracts.

It is one of those provisions that appears to be justifiable. It would automatically increase wages as costs go up and would automatically decrease wages as costs drop. That seems fair.

Unfortunately a provision of this kind tends to accelerate the trend either up or down. Higher prices bring higher wages, and higher wages in turn result in still higher costs. Inevitably most of the cost of wage boosts in either public or private employment are passed along to the consumers.

Automatic pay increases or decreases, tied to the cost of living, should be outlawed. They tend to be either inflationary or deflationary at just the wrong time. There should be a brake on inflation when prices are rising and a brake on deflation when they are dropping.

Good Will Ambassador

General Dwight D. Eisenhower was hailed by the masses as a great leader and a defender of freedom wherever he went during his recent five-week tour of Europe. The people still liked Ike. And wherever he went he was welcomed by Europe's leaders as a highly respected, unofficial ambassador of international good will.

Europeans are peaceful and prosperous, he reports, and he looks upon Europe as a bulwark of the free world. Communism is not a threat in Western Eurpoe he said. And he came away with a deep conviction that there is not going to be a nuclear war, stating:

> "No nation would be so foolish as to start one. I am sure of this. The people of the world do not want a war."

We would have more confidence in this hope if there were a few more Ike Eisenhowers scattered around the globe. He has been a great leader.

General Eisenhower may not have been a great military genius but he was a great military leader largely because he had a way of getting along with his subordinates, the military men of our allied countries, some of them very competent, and a few very ambitious personally. But General Ike got along with them.

And President Ike may not have been a political genious, but under his administration we had eight years of comparative harmony in Washington in spite of the fact that during most of those eight years Congress was controlled by the opposition party. But, true to form, Ike got along well with the opposition and our country moved forward.

Ike's place in history will be determined by the historians, and their verdict will be influenced a great deal by what the effects of World War II will be on future developments. If Communism prevails Eisenhower will become a bad word. But if government of the people, by the people, and for the people becomes the pattern for government thruout the world then Dwight D. Eisenhower will be assured of favorable recognition.

You Talk and It Types

(Changing Times)

What a secretary can do, a machine can now also do—but only in a limited way.

This experimental device "listens" to a spoken message, repeats what it hears in as many as three languages and at the same time types it in as many as four languages: English, French, German and Spanish.

The machine is limited to 100 one-syllable words, but the inventors predict that one day whole speeches will be spoken into it, translated if desired and transcribed by a typewriter.

The device can't cross its legs, utter warm good mornings, go out for coffee or tidy up cluttered desks, and that's why secretaries are here to stay.

Interesting Opinions

40 Rams Average $77.21 At Purebred Sale Monday

Forty purebred rams in four breeds were sold for a total of $3088.50 or an average of $77.21 each at the 12th annual Purebred Ram Show and Sale held Monday in Thief River Falls. Top-selling ram was the grand champion Columbia shown by Adolph Erickson of Wannaska and sold to Wilbur Hallstrom of Red Lake Falls for $131. Last year's sale totaled $2,937.50 with an average of $66.76.

Purpose of the show and sale is to increase the quality of sheep flocks in the area and, from the list of purchasers, it was apparent that a number of breeders secured high-quality rams. Purchasers came from Cavalier, N. D., Holt, Baudette, Hallock, Wannaska, Roseau, Pelican Rapids, Oklee, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Newfolden, Viking, Lockhart, Crookston, Stephen, Lake Bronson, Goodridge and Hawley.

Columbias topped the sale with a top price of $131 and average price of $92.63 for the eight animals consigned. In the Shropshire division, six animals brought an average of $65 with the top ram selling for $85. Fifteen Hampshires averaged $81 with the top-selling ram bringing $107.50. Eleven Suffolks averaged $67.50 with a $90 price being the top individual sale.

In addition to consigning the highest selling ram, the two-year old which brought $131, Adolph Erickson of Wannaska also consigned the second high ram, the champion Columbia yearling and reserve champion Columbia, which brought $130 from Vernon Abel of Stephen.

In the Hampshire division, Paul Billberg and Sons of Wannaska showed the champion animal which sold to Anderson Stock Farm of Middle River for $100. Melvin Sele and Sons of Lake Bronson consigned the reserve champion which sold for $100 to Erling Lundeen of Goodridge for $100. Top Hampshire of the sale was the second place yearling which was consigned by Sele and purchased by Ray Oen of Thief River Falls for $107.50.

Grand Champion Shropshire was consigned by Lehart Stock of Goodridge and sold to Earl L. Anderson of Middle River for $85. Reserve champion was also consigned by Stock and sold to Walter D. Nelson of Lockhart.

Suffolk breed champion was consigned by Harden Stock Farm of Hawley and sold to Elmer Burt of Cavalier, N. D., for $90. Reserve champion Suffolk was consigned by Paul Billberg and Sons of Wannaska and sold to Larry Hillard of Wannaska.

Eight rams brought to the morning judging were rejected because they failed to weigh the minimum of 175 pounds set by the breeders. In keeping with the high standards of the sale, breeders earlier had set the 175 pound limit. Quality was generally good throughout the sale and breeders who consigned rams were generally satisfied with prices received.

STEER Mission Rally Held in City This Week

Special rally and pageant, farm tours and banquet are special features of the STEER, Inc., missionary rally which is being held this week in Thief River Falls. A large number of visiting missionaries and representatives of missionary societies are in the city for the annual rally and series of services.

The schedule of evening services officially began last night and will continue nightly at 7:30 p.m. through the closing day of the conference on Sunday. Special exhibits are on display at the auditorium and the public is invited to view the displays.

Farm tours to see the STEER program in action will be held Thursday and Friday afternoons. Special children's services are being held each day at 4:15 p. m. in the Salvation Army citadel.

The Saturday evening banquet is being made open to the public with tickets available for the event. The banquet will be held in the basement of Zion Lutheran church. Sunday will feature an afternoon pageant at 2:30 p. m. in the city auditorium and a large crowd is expected to be in attendance.

CITY POWER CONVERSION SCHEDULED ON SUNDAY

Conversion of the Thief River Falls electrical system from 2,400 volts to 4,160 volts will take place on Sunday, September 16, according to Morris Owen, superintendent of utilities. In case of rain the conversion will be postponed one week.

All power will be off for about two minutes at 2 a. m. and will be off for a period of about five hours beginning at 5 a. m. Priority rating has been established to provide first service to the hospital, telephone company, water plant and other institutions and utilities. Other service will be restored as quickly as crews can change over the sub-stations.

Owen requests that no one call until after 10:30 a.m. Persons not having electrical service by that time may call MU 1-3506.

Few Surprises in Primary Results

A comparatively calm primary election resulted in few surprises. Statewide interest centered around the contest for 6th district Representative in Congress fight where Republican H. Carl Anderson, a 24-year veteran, was asking for reelection to that office. Anderson's record had come under a cloud as a result of his involvment with Billie Sol Estes and he had not received the party endorsement for reelection.

After threatening to run as an independent he finally filed as a Republican. He was defeated by Robert J. Odegard who received 27,050 votes to 15,723 for Anderson with several precincts to be heard from.

Otherwise there were no upsets at the top levels. With 3,273 precincts out of 3,796 reporting, Karl Rolvaag received 237,740 votes for the DFL nomination for Governor and Elmer Anderson, Republican, received 253,798.

With 3,264 precincts reporting, the DLF winners were Keith for Lt. Governor 229,211; Donovan for secretary of state, 245,684; Nevin for auditor, 225,523; Olson for treasurer, 225,571, and Mondale for attorney general, 242,173. In this same number of precincts, Republican voters gave Peterson 244,992 votes for Lt. governor; McGrady 144,628 votes for secretary of state; King received 252,562 for auditor; Bjornson 251,684 for treasurer and Kunzig 230,201 for attorney general.

Fall Festival Planned by 4-H Leaders Group

Information Given on New Bread Project and Safety Program

At the meeting of the Pennington county 4-H council Monday evening a "fall festival" was planned. It will be held at the 4-H building on the fairgrounds, Saturday, September 29, beginning at 8 p. m. All 4-H members, parents and friends are invited to attend.

Information was given on the revised 4-H bread project. It will be called "Creative Foods — Breads and Cereals". A member may take this project with "Picnics and Suppers". This will satisfy those who want to learn bread making before they reach unit 3. 4-H members might take it with "Quick Meals" but not with other projects.

Reports on the good grooming clinic were given. Girls felt Miss Anderson did an excellent job and they enjoyed her presentation. They felt they would have liked more information on skin care, social courtesy, hair styles and posture.

The boys who went to Hamilton's clothing store reported they preferred this type of tour instead of a speaker. For next year's clinic the ones that reported would like to see something offered on seasonal clothing, being well groomed on a moderate to low income, hair care, posture, color, manners, styles suitable to different individuals and modeling.

The County Safety Council is planning to make October a month for emphasizing "safe living". The Safety Council would like help from 4-H clubs in telling the safety sotry. One project suggested was that clubs having fire truck service would mark each farm with that farm's "fire call number". These numbers could be made from old license plates and hammered on a special board, painted on a special board or purchased.

Clubs interested in going into this work in October are to let the extension office know before September 22. Other clubs could plan to reflectorize machinery, which, if pulled on the roads, must be reflectorized according to a new Minnesota law.

Homemaker Group To Be Organized

At this time a group will be formed and an explanation given of the responsibilities of each person in the group. Anyone may take part in this educational program.

Iodine-131 Danger in Milk Is Ended

Return to Normal Feeding Practices Recommended

"Iodine-131 levels in milk produced in Minnesota by herds in the program calling for feeding of aged feed have receded to a very low point. Although levels in milk produced by herds on a feeding program considered normal for this season of the year are considerably higher, they are well within limits considered safe for all segments of our population," Dr. Warren R. Lawson, chief, radiology section of the Minnesota state department of health, Said today.

Levels should remain low, as Minnesota did not receive as much fallout as expected from the recent Russian testing. The Governor's advisory committee to the dairy industry, therefore, announced today that they were recommending to processors that producers of milk to be bottled and packaged for fluid use be permitted to return to feeding practices normal for the season.

The committee compliments the milk producers of the state for the manner in which they responded and met the challenge when Iodine-131 levels threatened to reach Range III. Having experienced such cooperation, the committee is of the definite opinion that if we should face such a problem again, the milk producers of the state will respond to the call and produce milk of wholesome and acceptable quality for all segments of Minnesota's consumers as well as its out-of-state customers.

County Board Adopts Bigger Budget for '62

Increased Costs for Welfare Account for Greater Part of Rise

The Pennington county board at its September session Tuesday approved a 1962 budget calling for an outlay next year of $481,604, compared to the 1961 figure of $435,437. This year's total, which represents an increase of $46,167, is subject to a reduction of $10,000, assuming that the city of Thief River Falls makes its usual contribution of that amount to the court house sinking fund.

A total of $31,000 of the budget increase is due to the rise in the levy for county welfare purposes County Auditor C. W. Rodekuhr stated that this year's total mill rate will be 93.65 mills, or 91.71 mills if the TRF payment of $10,000 is made. The 1961 levy was 84.64 mills.

Following are the budget figures for 1962 and 1961:

Revenue	$119,000	$113,000
Road and Bridge	102,910	102,910
Welfare	215,000	184,000
Sanatorium	9,750	9,750
Sinking fund	29,800	20,633
School Transp.	2,572	2,572
County Fair	2,572	2,572
	$481,604	$435,437

Other business of the board Tuesday included hearing a report by Albert Koop, president of the county fair board, on the outcome of the 1962 event. He stated that despite efforts to reduce expenses thru volunteer work and by other means, the fair nevertheless showed a deficit of $300. The county board approved a supplementary grant of that amount.

County Agency for Redevelopment Is Created by Board

About 15 interested people attended a public meeting conducted by the Pennington county board Tuesday evening on the matter of qualifying for financial assistance for local enterprises thru the Area Redevelopment agency, the county having been designated as eligible by virtue of being an area of under-employment.

Sharing in the discussion was Hal Rudstrom of Hibbing, fieldman for the ARA in Minnesota. He pointed out some of the provisions of the laws on the subject, which makes federal and state funds available for local enterprises in certain cases where loans cannot be obtained through regular business channels.

Following the review, the board adopted a resolution establishing a Pennington county redevelopment agency, and shortly will appoint a five-man board to administer its affairs.

Penn. DFL Women To Meet Monday

To review the primary election results and discuss the campaign prior to the November election, the newly-organized Pennington county DFL women's group will meet Monday at 8 p. m. in the Pennington county courthouse. All women interested in the DFL party are invited to attend the session, according to Mrs. Kenneth Halldin, spokesman for the group.

Striking Bus Drivers Return To Jobs Wed.

One-Day Strike by School Bus Men Settled After Union Wage Dispute

Unyielding determination by the board of education of School District 564 in Thief River Falls early this week resulted in the rapid settlement of an unprecedented school bus drivers strike. Following a dispute over wage increases which the board refused, the drivers failed to perform their duties on Tuesday and idled 18 rural buses which serve about 750 elementary and high school students in the district.

The strike came following a meeting of the drivers and school board on Monday evening. Drivers were informed that no wage increases would be granted and those attending a meeting of the group, a part of Municipal Drivers and Helpers Local 664 of the Teamsters Union, voted unanimously not to work Tuesday. John Skeate, union representative, served as spokesman for the drivers and provided counsel to them in the dispute.

At a special session held Tuesday evening, the school board again met with the drivers. Speaking for the board, chairman Lloyd Howick told the drivers it was their choice to go back to work at the same salary schedule or state they had quit, whichever they desired. "We're not kidding," he said. Following a 45-minute union meeting, the drivers voted by majority to return to work Wednesday morning at the same rate of salary, with the provision that there would be no discrimination against any of the drivers. This was assured by the board.

Following announcement of the decision, board members expressed satisfaction over the manner in which the solution had been resolved. While the board contended earlier that there were "inequities" in the manner of payment to drivers, it will now be a legal question as to whether or not any changes can be made for the coming year.

Under state law, a public employee participating in a strike may be reemployed but "his compensation shall in no event exceed that received by him immediately prior to such violation." Law further provides that "the compensation of such person shall not be increased until after the expiration of one year from such . . . reemployment."

Situation Reviewed

In meeting with the scool board Monday evening at the regular board session, Skeate presented the case of the bus drivers which he represents as a union official. He noted a request had been made some time ago that bus drivers "be given some consideration" in regard to wage increases. He said that the drivers "were not too happy" in regard to going to work on the first day of school but had consented to work until a meeting with the board could be held.

The drivers had requested an increase across-the-board of $20 per month. Regardless of length of route, all first year drivers receive $137.50 per month and drivers after the first year receive $147.50 per month. In addition, those men driving over 60 miles per day are given an extra three cents per mile. The union request also included reduction of the minimum mileage before bonus mileage payments from 60 to 50 miles.

Skeate made a lengthy presentation of cost of living increase nationally, reduction of buying power on set salary, increases in other industries, increases to all other school employees and the plight of labor in general.

Radniecki, Skaar Election Victors

Murray Holds Slight Margin for Senator; Maruska Close 2nd

Campaigning for Representative and Senator in the Minnesota legislature will be hot and heavy during the coming months as successful candidates in the primary election Tuesday seek victories in the November general election. Greatest interest locally centered around the legislative races since there was no county primary in Pennington this year.

Stanley Radniecki of Oklee led all contestants for Representative from Pennington and Red Lake counties with a total of 1,329 votes. Andrew Skaar of Thief River Falls polled 996 to gain a place on the general election ballot by narrowly edging Art Stenberg of Thief River Falls who received 916 votes. Skaar obtained his margin from Pennington county voters who gave him 711 votes to 648 for Radniecki and 512 for Stenberg. In Red Lake county Radniecki polled 681, Skaar 285 and Stenberg 404. Terry Knutson polled a total of 255 votes.

A hotly-contested race for state senator is shaping up in the 66th district which includes Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties. Sen Louis Murray of East Grand Forks received 4,884 votes — only 29 more than Harveydale Maruska, Angus farmer — to lead in the voting. Maruska received 4,855 while Alfred Solstad of Fisher was given 1,731 votes.

Maruska led in Pennington and Polk counties but was administered a severe set-back in Red Lake county. Maruska's vote was 442 in Red Lake, 842 in Pennington and 3,571 in Polk. Murray polled 794 in Red Lake, 568 in Pennington and 3,522 in Polk.

3 Gas Proposals Reviewed by City Council on Wed.

Franchise Bids Opened At Special Meeting; All Action Is Tabled

Three proposals to provide natural gas service to Thief River Falls on a franchise basis were reviewed by the Thief River Falls city council last night but were tabled without action. The council has expressed a desire to provide natural gas service to the city but is undecided on municipal operation of franchise agreement.

American Gas Company of Omaha, Neb., Ranson Company, Inc., of Wichita, Kan., and Valley Gas Company of Thief River Falls all submitted proposals for franchise Wednesday evening. The council ordered all certified checks accompanying bids to be returned since there was nothing legally binding in offers.

Under a franchise operation, the city is permitted by law to purchase the business of a private company if it desires after the private concern has made feasibility surveys and reports, laid pipe, established service and sold customers on their product. Municipal operation could bring additional revenue into the city treasury which could avert local tax increases in the future.

By resolution unanimously adopted, the council vacated Second street west betwen Brooks and Kinney avenues. The street was platted but has not been established and the land in the area has been leased for construction of a warehouse which will likely be built this fall.

In other action, the council entered into an agreement with the township of Rocksbury to share cost of road and street improvement on the road extending east from Tindolph av. S. to highway 59. Work will be done this fall on the minor project.

Second Mass Polio Treatment Oct. 12

The second of a series of three mass oral polio vaccinations will be held Friday, October 12, according to Dr. Paul Wendt, city health officer. This will be for immunization against the Type 3 virus and will be available to all whether or not they have had the immunization for Type 1 virus which is recommended as first in the sequence of three.

Dr. Wendt states that those who have not had the vaccination for the Type No. 1 virus may secure it from their physician but there should be a period of thirty days before taking the next shot. In order to be ready for the second shot next month the first one should be taken at once.

The mass polio immunization program is sponsored by the medical staff of Northwestern Hospital with the assistance of several volunteer groups.

Janice Steinhauer and Dale Svendsgaard Wed

Trinity Lutheran church of this city provided the setting for the nuptials which joined Miss Janice Steinhauer of this city and Dale Svendsgaard of rural Goodridge in matrimony. The evening service was performed on September 1 by Rev. Reuben Wangberg, who used the double-ring marriage ritual.

Miss Steinhauer's parents are the Adolph Steinhauers of rural Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Svendsgaard of rural Goodridge.

Gladioli and yellow carnations and white mums decorated the altar railing and the center aisle. Pews were marked with white bows and candles. Lighting the tapers were Bruce Hanson, Goodridge, and Gail Steinhauer, rural Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Walter Larson of this city played the wedding march on the organ, and accompanied Mrs. S. E. Pollman of this city, who sang, "Today Oh, Lord," "The Lord's Prayer," and, "As We, Oh, Lord, Have Joined Our Hands Today."

Escorting the bride was her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attired in a floor-length bridal gown of Chantilly lace with scalloped hemline flowing into a chapel train. Huge fabric roses on the skirt created a scalloped effect. The gown featured also a rounded neckline with lace scallops and pearl and crystal trim, a V-bodice, and pointed sleeves. The bride's headpiece, whose ornamentation matched the crystal rose design of the gown, featured a drop crystal at the hairline. Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white glamellias, trailing ivy and rose leaves. "Something old" was the handkerchief of the late Grandma Lubitz, and the garter worn by the late Grandma Steinhauer.

Linda Jorland, Holt, was flower girl, in a princess blue dress designed by the bride. She carried a basket of yellow and white roses and mums, and dropped roses as she marched.

Misses Yvonne and Arlene Skibicki were trainbearers, also in matching dresses of princess blue, their bouquets miniatures of those carried by the bride's other attendants.

Attending the bride were Miss Sharyn Ann Pake, Moorhead, as maid of honor; with Misses Karen and Kathy Svendsgaard, the groom's sisters; Muriel Peterson, rural TRF; and Loretta Hanson, Reynolds, N. D. as bridesmaids. They were identically dressed in princess blue gowns designed by the bride, and carried large yellow mums with tangerine and net and wheat backgrounds.

Attending the groom were Wallace Payne, Goodridge, as best man; Julian Lendobeja and Jerry Wayne of this city, and William Svendsgard of Goodridge as groomsmen. Ringbearer was Loren Lendobeja who, like the men in the party, wore a black tuxedo and white carnation boutonniere.

The bride's mother wore a beige silk organza sheath dress with accessories of copen blue, and with a white shawl over her shoulders. Mrs. Svendsgaard wore a two-piece dress of royal blue and gray with royal blue and black accessories. Their corsages were tangerine glamellias.

A reception following the ceremony, and given by the bride's parents in the Trinity parlors, was attended by 900 guests. Honor guests included the great-grandgrandmother Payne, and Grandfather, Arno Steinhauer.

The cake, ornamented in princess blue, with white wedding bells and yellow roses, was baked by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Lawrence Lubitz.

Carol Overby played the piano during the reception.

Aunts at the serving table wwere Mrs. Lawrence Lubitz and Mrs. Billy Wayne, who cut the cake; Mrs. Ronald Sculthorpe and Mrs. Walter Lendobeja, who poured. Serving ice cream were Mrs. Clifford Steinhauer and Mrs. Henry Klockman. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hoganson. Opening gifts were Misses Bernice Tweten, Barbara Augustine, Jeanie Steinhauer, and Marjorie Schwartz, all of this city. Waitresses were Shirley Sheldon, Bagley; Myrna Anderson, Mayville, N. D.; Leila Tvinnereim, Manvel, N. D.; Mrs. Kenneth Sanders, Goodridge; Mrs. Dayle Kainz, and Shirley Fuller, of this city. Serving punch were Bonnie Jean Sculthorpe and Linda Lubitz, the bride's cousins. Another cousin, LuAnn Lubitz, registered the guests.

Guests from North Dakota were from Mayville, Manvel, Bismarck, Grand Forks, Reynolds, and Fargo. From Minnesota, Duluth, Bagley, Glenwood, Crookston, Benson, Minneapolis, Moorhead, and Red Lake Falls.

The couple honeymooned in Milwaukee, Wisc., and in Chicago, Ill. They are now at home at Mavie. For her going-away outfit, the bride chose a beige suit with rust gloves and earrings.

Elaine's CHATTER

There are supposed to be between 25 and 27 million cats in the world. Now who do you suppose counted all of them. To our knowledge we have never had a cat census taker call on us, but that's what the man said and we'll take his word for it.

Many manufacturers have come out with all kinds of articles for cats—toys, houses, harnesses and wearing apparel, also fancy foods, like "cat caviar," plus several others, we'll bet that cats still prefer mice. If you have too many cats, try this ad.

Wanted: Good home for small cat to do light mousework.

There is nothing as cute as a kitten but we have sweaters as cute and as soft. The GARLAND fur blends at Elaine's are beautiful in design and color. Blue, rich brown, gold, soft grey, cherry red and many others.

Brand new styles with collars as well as the usual cardigan and pull over, see them now at Elaine's. There are skirts of French flannel dyed to match each sweater. While your picking out that sweater and skirt, check the slack department. Garland slacks are also dyed to match.

Have you seen the Pendleton all wool dresses and 2-pc. suits? Our limited vocabulary just can't describe the beautiful blends.

Mom always told us, "There is no substitute for quality," and at Elaine's that's what you get, plus the latest in styles and colors. L.P.A.777

School Board Holds Line On Salary Raise

Bus Drivers' Request for Boost Denied; Rent Leases Signed

Agreeing unanimously in a roll-call vote at the regular meeting Monday evening, the Thief River Falls board of education reaffirmed its stand in not granting wage increases to school bus drivers for the 1962-1963 school term. The action came following a request from the drivers, represented by a spokesman for Municipal Drivers and Helpers Local 664 of the Teamsters union, for across-the-board increases.

John Skeate, union representative, together with a number of public employees from the local, appeared at the meeting. The situation was reviewed and the request again presented to the board. Detailed information on the meeting is to be found in the story on the bus drivers' walkout in today's issue of the Times.

In other board action, approval was given by the board to renewal of a working agreement with Oakland Park Nursing Home and St. Mary's Hospital at Detroit Lakes to permit practical nursing students in the area vocational school to receive student training.

Also approved at the meeting were leases for the First Lutheran church parish house at $170 per month for use by the elementary special education classes and the Dobner-Meehan building (formerly housing Lockrem Appliance) for practical nursing classes.

Board members also approved the hiring of Mrs. Joe Poole as instructor for the junior high special education class for educable children. Two-thirds of the teacher's salary is reimbursed from the state and the students are counted in average daily attendance so that state aid will also be received on that basis.

Increase of salary for the halftime secretaries for elementary school principals from $1.10 to $1.20 per hour was granted by the board. It was also noted that Mrs. Avis Holum has been employed as office secretary to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of a secretary in the senior high school principal's office.

Board members also expressed the desire to attend the regional meeting of the Minnesota School Boards association to be held in Fertile on Wednesday, September 19. William Wettergren, executive secretary of the association, will attend the meeting. The session was formerly held in Thief River Falls but was changed with a shuffling of districts in the state.

Attention was also called to the school enrollment which this year totals 2,750 students — 15 above the projected estimate which had previously been made by school administrators. The 1963-1964 estimate had been placed at 2,801 but has been revised upward by 15 due to this year's increase.

Actual enrollment this year includes 1,377 in elementary, 597 in junior high, 564 in senior high and 212 in vocational. Projected estimate for 1963-1964 (plus 15 due to increase) is for 1,411 in elementary, 597 in junior high, 583 in senior high and 210 in vocational.

Bus Drivers Are Back To Work Following Strike

Fact-Finding Panel

He noted a fact-finding panel this spring had recommended across-the-board increases of $7.50 per month retroactive to Jan. 1, 1962, and that the union was making an additional request for $12.50 per month above the fact-finding recommendation. The $12.50 figure was requested retroactive to July 1, 1962, the start of the current school year.

Board members noted that no increases could be made retroactive beyond the current school year because of state law. It was further pointed out that salaries are equal to or higher than nearly all other districts polled by the board. Also mentioned was the fact that transportation costs are nearing the point where it would soon be uneconomical for the district to operate its own buses.

In session following the meeting, the board of education voted unanimously by roll call vote to stand by the previous board decision of no increases. This information was relayed to the union which was conducting a separate meeting at the Eagles hall.

Report But Won't Work

On Tuesday morning the drivers reported to the bus garage but refused to travel their routes. One driver who was not informed of the previous night's meeting began to fill the gas tank on his bus but was prevented from doing so by other drivers. Announcement that the buses would not be operating was made over the local radio station, but many students waited for buses which were not to come.

As the word of the strike spread, parents began bringing their youngsters to school themselves. Final attendance check Tuesday showed that approximately 10 per cent of the bus students were not in school.

First In Minn. History

While the community buzzed over the situation, believed to be the first school strike in the state's history, the school board arranged a special meeting with the drivers Tuesday night. At the request of a Times reporter, Skeate issued the following statement on Tuesday morning following the walkout:

"Drivers are protesting in the action by the school board in which the drivers feel they are being discriminated against because they have not received any overall wage increases for two years when all other employees of the school district have received wage increases." He said the drivers were not striking but that they were "standing by waiting for any fair and equitable wage offer which might be forthcoming."

Laws Presented

Prior to the Tuesday evening meeting, drivers were provided with printed copies of state law in regard to strikes by public employees and reemployment of striking employees. The law states that "the word 'strike' shall mean the failure to report for duty, the willful absence from one's position, the stoppage of work, or the abstinence in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performances of the duties of employment, for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions or compensation or the rights, privileges or obligations of employment." The reemployment law is reviewed earlier in this story.

"We're not going to beat around the bush," chairman Howick told the drivers at the Tuesday evening meeting. "We think we have gone far enough. We have taken criticism for salary increases in the past but this has not prevented us from making increases when we believed they were justified. On the basis of our findings, we do not believe they are justified here." He went on to say that the board would be content to reemploy striking drivers but wanted buses running Wednesday.

Adopt Resolution

Prior to the decision to go back to work as announced by the drivers, the board adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, the school bus drivers of Independent School District 564 appeared at the school bus garage on the morning of Sept. 11, 1962, and

Whereas, the said bus drivers at said time refused to perform their duties as bus drivers, and

Whereas, It is the desire of the school board to permit the drivers to return to their employment if done promptly, now therefore

Be It Resolved, that the school board determines that the bus drivers have engaged in a strike as defined by Minnesota Statues No. 179.5 and

Be It Further Resolved that the bus drivers be informed that they may return to their employment at the existing wage schedule if they so signify before adjournment of the board meeting on the evening of Sept. 11, 1962."

At the request of the board of education Tuesday evening, Supt. M. R. Handkerson expressed sincere thanks to the parents of rural students for showing fine cooperation in bringing their youngsters to school on the day in which buses did not operate.

Newfolden Gridders Trim Goodridge 20-2

Coach Sheldon Elseth's Newfolden Nordics will begin play on their Top-of-the-State football conference schedule on Friday, Sept. 14, by meeting the Stephen Tigers on the Newfolden field. Kickoff time will be 1:45 p.m. The Stephen squad, which opened its season by scoring a 40-0 win over Argyle in a non-conference game last week, has been installed as a co-favorite, with Hallock, for the conference title.

The Nordics opened their 1962 schedule last Friday by defeating the Goodridge Huskies, 20-0, at Goodridge. Halfback Merlin Anderson paced the Nordics' scoring, scoring two touchdowns and a conversion point. Quarterback Jerry Strandquist tallied a touchdown and end Lester Bakke added a point on a conversion try on a pass completion.

Newfolden held a 14-0 lead at the end of the first half of play in Friday's tilt. The Nordics' first tally came on a two-yard plunge by Anderson, with Jerry Strandquist adding the conversion on a quarterback sneak. A 30-yard pass play, Strandquist to Bakke, which carried to the Huskies' 3-yard line, set up the TD.

The Nordics' second touchdown of the first half came when Anderson, intercepting a Goodridge aerial, raced forty-five yards for a touchdown, and when Strandquist hit Bakke with a pass on the conversion try, coach Elseth's club held a 14-0 lead.

In the third period another successful Strandquist to Bakke pass, which was completed for a sixty-yard gainer, set up the Nordics' final touchdown, with Strandquist, on a plunge over center, picking up the two yards needed for the TD. A placement-kick try for the extra point failed.

The Newfolden squad completed nine of twenty-seven passes, gaining 151 yards; and added 148 yards on twenty-seven rushing plays.

Public Notices

In loving memory of our mother who passed away one year ago on Sept. 17.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
Your voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Oh bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
You're not forgotten, Mother,
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
Your loving smile, you gentle face,
As time goes by we miss you more,
No one can fill your vacant place.

The family of Laura Franzman. 1t74c

Retriever Club To Hold Field Trial Sunday Afternoon

Hunters Special Set for Untrained Dogs As Pre-Season Trial

Thief River Falls Retriever club invites participation in a pre-season field trial to be held Sunday at 1 p. m. on the retriever club grounds on the Glenn Jorde farm north of the city. The farm is located on the road past the Soo Line roundhouse about one mile north of the golf course bridge. The road will be marked. Spectators are welcome and there is no admission charge. Entry fee for the trials will be $1.

Special emphasis is being placed on the "Hunter's Special" stakes an event in which any breed or age of dog may be run. It is designed specifically for hunters who have not been using retriever club assistance in training their dogs dogs a pre-season run.

The class is open to all hunting dogs and owners need not be club members. Many of the dogs running will have had no training and are not expected to be up to field trial perfection. Handlers in this class may hold their dogs until birds are down. Dogs should be able to find birds and bring them back but are not expected to be steady. Entries should be tender-mouthed and not bite their birds, show a desire to hunt and not be afraid of water.

Basically a field trial is a series of tests given to dogs under simulated hunting conditions. Each dog normally runs about four different retrieving tests — two on land and two on water. Judges set up tests and grade each dog according to the way it performs in comparison to other dogs entered.

Other Trials

Other trials in addition to the hunter's special will be the following:

Puppy Stake — An event for dogs under one year of age. He is expected to mark where a single bird falls, go to the spot, pick up the bird and deliver it to his master's hand;

Derby Stake — Here the dog should be steady to shot by sitting without being held, go only when sent to retrieve and to mark and remember where two different birds fall;

Open All Age — For older, well-trained dogs, this event includes "triples", extreme steadiness, honoring another dog's birds and being able to find a bird he has not seen fall by going where his handler sends him.

During the trial all dogs must be on leash or in a car except when running a test; spectators should stand back and remain quiet when a dog is working so that the dog may see and hear his handler; and the area should be kept clean and free of debris.

Harry Pluth, secretary of the organization noted that this is the first field trial being attempted here and that ribbon prizes will be awarded. "A well-trained dog is a pleasure to own and a step toward the conservation of game," he said.

Grouse Season Opens Saturday, Sept. 22d

Several hunting seasons will open in Minnesota Saturday, Sept. 22, the conservation department reminded today.

Both ruffed and sharptail grouse and woodcock, rails, gallinules, and Wilson or jack snipe become legal game on that day. Shooting hours on these species is sunrise to sunset.

The first of two Hungarian partridge seasons also opens on Sept. 22 and runs through Oct. 21. This early season is open only in the sharptail grouse zone. Shooting hours during this first season will be sunrise to sunset.

The second Hun season opens Oct. 27 and runs concurrently with the pheasant season through Nov. 25 on a state-wide basis. Shooting hours on this bird then will be from 10:00 a. m. to sunset except for a noon opening, the first day.

Ruffed grouse will also have two seasons this year. The first season opens Sept. 22, closes Nov. 4 and reopens again with the deer season Nov. 10 and continues thru Nov. 30.

Bag limits on Huns and sharptails are three daily and six in possession while ruffed grouse carry a limit of four daily and eight in possession.

On Sept. 29 the archery season on deer opens along with seasons on squirrels, rabbits and raccoons. The goose season opens Oct. 6 and on Oct. 13 it will be the duck season. A 30 day season on pheasants starts Oct. 27 followed by the firearms deer season Nov. 10.

Hunters were advised to read the 1962 hunting synopsis of hunting and trapping regulations for detailed information on season lengths, bag limits, shooting hours, areas opened and other pertinent information. The synopsis is available at all places where hunting licenses are sold.

Sportsmen's Club Offers Program As Hunting Aid

To aid waterfowl hunters in identifying the birds they seek while hunting this fall, an identification program will be presented at the regular meeting of the Pennington County Sportsmen's Club to be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the basement meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Ralph Towne, assistant manager at Agassiz National Wildlife refuge, will present the program and use live-trapped ducks in the demonstration. The refuge wing collection will also be used in the program and all hunters, whether club members or not, are encouraged to attend.

"We believe that this will help the average hunter to identify the birds before he shoots," stated Gay Warnecke, club secretary. This will prevent the mistake of shooting protected species and contribute to conservation of waterfowl in general."

Carl Sundstrom, Game Warden, Is Speaker at Lions

Game Warden Carl Sundstrom gave details of the coming hunting seasons in a talk at the Lions club luncheon meeting Wednesday noon. He was introduced by Glenn Peterson, program chairman, with Jack Forkenbrock, vice president, presiding.

Sundstrom stated that, with the duck population reduced this year, daily and bag limits are reduced. He also outlined the zones which will be in effect during the deer season, opening November 10.

He answered numerous questions asked by those present.

Farr Says DFL Endorses Murray

"This was merely a clerical error," stated George Farr, Minnesota DFL chairman, in a release regarding the omission of Sen. Louis Murray from the DFL sample ballots distributed in Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties. The DFL chief urged all-out support for Murray.

"The DFL is 100 per cent behind Senator Murray in his bid for reelection," Farr stated. "We are looking forward to his return to the Senate for the 1963 session."

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The Eagles Have Claws

It was in 1955, when a Prowler eleven co-captained by Harold Ptacek and Ronnie Reese, dropped a 19-14 decision to the Red Lake Falls Eagles. Since that time the Prowlers have scored five wins and have played one tie (in 1956) and have a five-game winning streak going against the Eagles. That tie game was a 7-7 affair by a Prowler team that won the Northwest Conference title.

Since that 1956 season, the Prowlers have racked up the following victories over the Eagles: 31-0 in 1957; 21-0 in 1958; 21-6 in 1959; 33-0 in 1960; and 28-14 last season.

But scores of past games are of little concern and merit when the Prowlers play the Eagles. Red Lake Falls, for all the years that I can recall, have had hard-nosed football teams, with players that relish bodily contact. And it's a certainty that the Eagles that meet the Prowlers here on Friday night will be in this tradition.

An Interesting Week-end

Sportsmen will have a varied menu of activities this week-end, and there should be something of interest for participants and spectators alike.

On Saturday the city golf tournament will be concluded, and there are a number of flight championships to be determined. And on Sunday the local club's annual "Snowball Special" will be played. Earlier on Sunday, the "Sniff and Snort" tourney, by invitation only, will be played.

And also on Sunday the Thief River Retriever club will hold a field trial on the Glenn Jorde farm north of town. The club has a range on Jorde's farm, and will conduct a trial, with dry land and water retrieves, for retrievers. Three classes of dogs will be entered in the trials. Of special interest to local sportsmen will be the "Hunter's Special", an event which is open to all dogs, registered or not. Ducks and pigeons will be used, and hunting conditions will be simulated, with guns and live ammunition being used.

Floyd Ball, whose dog Mike Black Cort won a Certificate of Merit in the Manitoba field trials held at Headingly, Manitoba, last week, will run his dog in Sunday's trials here.

A Fantastic Performance

Maury Wills on Tuesday night, in the Los Angeles 3-1 win over the Chicago Cubs, stole his 90th base of the season, and now is only six stolen bases shy of Ty Cobb's all-time mark of 96 stolen bases.

In this day and age, of the souped-up baseball, and the whiplike bats, and the free-swinging hitting, it is remarkable to have a player specialize in base-stealing. And to approach (and the probability is that Wills will set a new record) the mark established by the legendary Cobb back in the days of hit-and-run baseball, is unbelievable.

In stealing these ninety bases, Wills has compiled a fine average, for he has been thrown out only ten times. And he has been successful in fourteen of his last fifteen tries.

The Los Angeles Dodgers are approaching the all-time attendance mark set by the Cleveland Indians in 1948, when manager Lou Boudreau's club attracted 2,600,000 fans. The Dodgers, with six home games remaining, will have to average about 27,000 fans a game to break that mark, and with Wills shooting for Cobb's base-stealing record and the Dodgers battling for the National league pennant, this average should be within reach.

The State Champions

The weather-plagued state amateur baseball tournament, played at Springfield, was concluded on Tuesday night. The St. Paul Ganzers won the Class A title, defeating the St. Paul Park club; and the Little Falls team, with a pair of wins, 5-4 and 5-1, defeated Gaylord to win the Class B championship.

It was a come-from-behind effort for the Little Falls squad as they reached the finals with a four wins and one loss record while Gaylord, the team that sidelined the Thieves, 12-0, in a first-round game, had a mark of three wins and no losses.

Last Saturday night the two teams met in what was to be the first game of the championship finals, but after seven innings, with the score knotted at 3-all, the game was suspended because of rain. On Tuesday night this game was resumed, as of the seventh inning, and Little Falls scored a 5-4 win to force the series into a deciding game. And in this game, the Little Falls club recorded a 5-1 win.

Gaylord's veteran club merited their berth in the finals, and they lost to a strong Little Falls club. In their 12-0 win over the Thieves, the Gaylord club exhibited all-round balance, having fine pitching, strong hitting, and adequate fielding. In lefty Gary Underhill and righthanded Tony Corcoran, Gaylord had two of the tournament's finest Class B pitchers.

Incidentally the Thieves gave Gaylord a better game than that 12-0 score would indicate. In the first inning, manager Rollie Oehler's club scored three runs and had three hits, but these hits were of the scratch variety, and lefty Freddy Jensen could easily have come out of that opening inning unscathed. One of the Gaylord hits was a blooper over shortstop, and the other two were infield taps.

But of course the Thieves had their troubles in getting base hits, too, being limited to one hit by Underhill. The Gaylord southpaw broke off some curves that had the more youthful Thieves players back on their heels.

Season on Deer Opens Sept. 29 for Archers

Minnesota's deer hunting season gets underway at sunrise Sept. 29 with archery hunters getting first crack at the wily whitetails.

The early bow season will permit archers to take deer state-wide from Sept. 29 through Oct. 31. Bowhunters will also be able to hunt in all zones established for the November firearms season which opens on November 10.

Season length for hunting deer with legal firearms and bow and arrow during the November season varies from one to nine days depending on the zone being hunted. Shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset each day. Some zones are open to all legal firearms while some specify shot guns with single slugs only.

The northeast zone consistently produces the most deer, has the longest season and is the most popular with deer hunters.

Despite a rather severe winter, deer herds are reported to be at high levels and in a healthy condition. Although some yarding-up took place it was late in the winter and the deer came through in good shape.

Last year, Minnesota deer hunters had the best year in history bagging 106,763 deer with firearms and another 490 with bow and arrow. With some cooperation from the weather the deer harvest could go over the 100,000 mark again this fall, game officials predicted.

Minnesota chief game warden F. W. Johnson reminded hunters that archers may wear camouflage clothing during the early bow season but all hunters, trappers and those assisting them must wear the blaze orange or red clothing when afield during the regular firearms season.

Trapping Seasons on Mink, Muskrat, Raccoon Listed

The Minnesota conservation department today announced details of the 1962 fur trapping season.

Mink, muskrat, badger and raccoon may be taken without limit statewide from Nov. 3 through Dec. 31 during this year's season.

Trapping in muskrat houses is prohibited and no trap may be set within six feet of the muskrat house.

Last year 32,300 mink were trapped in Minnesota. The total value of the mink harvest amounted to $560,000.

Game officials decided on a longer mink and muskrat season this year to simplify game law enforcement and to encourage an adequate harvest.

In 1961, licenses were issued to 577 trappers.

Prowler 'B's Defeat East Grand Forks 25-0

The Prowler 'B' squad footballers, coached by Gene Sack and Jerry Foley, scored their first win in two starts when, on Tuesday night on the athletic field here, they defeated the East Grand Forks 'B' squad, 25-0. In their schedule opener, against the Bemidji Lumberjack 'B' squad at Bemidji, the locals dropped a 44-0 decision to the Jacks.

In Tuesday night's game here, halfback Dick Nelson sparked the Prowler offense, tallying four touchdowns to lead the blue-and-gold to a convincing 25-0 win. Nelson, a rangy and fast-moving sophomore, scored two touchdowns on sweeps around left end, intercepted an East Grand Forks pass and ran 55 yards for a touchdown, and received a pass from Tommy Cummings for a 15-yard gain and a touchdown. Dale Seefeldt added the lone point conversion, scoring on a run around right end.

The next start for the Prowler 'B' team will be against the Crookston Central 'B' team at Crookston on Tuesday night, Sept. 18.

The Prowler 'B' squad football schedule:

Highway Department Able to Match Federal Grants in Fiscal 1963

The Minnesota highway department has been able to match available federal-aid for its 1963 fiscal year construction program only because it engaged in "belt-tightening," as urged by Governor Elmer L. Andersen, during last year to reduce expenditures in many of its other varied activities. A total of almost $3,500,000 in savings resulted from adherence to this policy.

The department's construction program's size is determined to a very large extent by how much money is left after deducting the costs of its other activities, such as maintenance, highway patrol, driver licensing, administration, etc. The greater the economies in these areas, the greater amount of money becomes available for actual highway construction.

Under current procedures within the department, all operating units submit, in detail, their estimated needs for the forthcoming two-year period. These budgets are reviewed by the department's budget review board and adjustments made as deemed necessary or advisable. The commissioner then submits the over-all budget to the governor and the legislature for their consideration. When the approved budget is received by the department, the various units are advised of the monies available to them for each of the next two fiscal years to carry on their operations.

But a unit which stays within its budget is not necessarily fulfilling its budgetary requirements. Quarterly reports are studied by the budget review board for possible savings that can be effected and these savings are transferred to a contingency reserve fund for eventual re-allocation to the construction budget for highway contracts or acquisition of right of way.

During the 1962 fiscal year, through this process of close scrutiny and from releases on prior year encumbrances, the department was able to increase its construction budget by $1,000,000 and, in spite of snow and ice removal costs $3,000,000 greater than in a normal winter, still has $3,248,988 to carry into the 1963 fiscal year, which enabled the department to match all available federal-aid for the current year's construction program.

Minnesota Rates High in Gasoline Non-highway Use

219 Million Gallons Was Utilized Off Highways in 1961, Report Reveals

During 1961, Minnesota ranked tenth among the states in percentage use of motor fuel for non-highway purposes. Highest percentage of non-highway use was reported by Alaska, where less than 50 per cent of total consumption was used on highways.

The report, issued by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, shows that the majority of the "breadbasket" states of the middle west fall into a group using from 10 to 25 per cent of their total consumption for non-highway use.

In comparing percentage of use for the ten-year period from 1951 to 1961, Minnesota's non-highway use increased only 0.6 per cent. Greatest increase over the ten-year period was 11.6 per cent by Delaware; the lowest a minus 1.2 per cent in Pennsylvania.

A breakdown of motor fuel usage in Minnesota shows that total consumption in the state for 1961 was 1.5 billion gallons, of which 219.5 million were used off the state's highways.

Of the 213.5 million gallons used for private and commercial non-highway use, agriculture topped the list with 164.3 million, followed by aviation, 40.4 million; industrial and commercial, 7 million, and marine with 1.6 million. These totals represent refunds of close to $11 million in state motor fuel taxes annually.

Interesting also is an analysis of usage by month. In Minnesota, highest consumption is during August; lowest in February. As a comparison, Florida uses most motor fuel during March, and least during September.

Farm Income Tax Short Course Is Slated in St. Paul

The 20th annual farm income tax short course will be held at the Lowry Hotel, St. Paul, October 8-10.

Sponsored by the University of Minnesota's department of Agricultural short courses and conducted by the state department of taxation and the Internal Revenue service, the short course is especially designed for those who assist farmers in preparing income tax returns.

According to Hal Routhe, extension economist at the University and program chairman for the event, the Short Course has been extended to three days this year to incorporate several new features.

Living Trees to Be Future Snow Fence on State Highways

Minnesota Highway Dept. in 1961 Planted Total of 1,000,000 Evergreens

The days of the slatted snow fence along Minnesota highways may be numbered. In its place will be a living windbreak of evergreens. Ray Clement, chief of nurseries for the Minnesota conservation department's division of forestry, says the day is not far off when the installed fence will be used only in the exceptional case where trees are impractical.

Last year the Minnesota highway department ordered one million trees, twice the number of the previous year. Planting, done by the department, has been accelerated with an accent on beautification as well as snow control.

It was Clement who planted the first pilot living snow fence along the stretch of Hwy. 169 between Zimmerman and Princeton in 1939. The latest planting was a 42-mile stretch of Hwy. 10 between Big Lake and Little Falls.

"The idea that a single snow fence 100 yards off the highway was an answer has been changed," Clement said. "Four rows of trees will cause a much more effective windbreak. There also is no danger that the trees might grow so tall that bare trunks would no longer serve the purpose. It is the tops of the trees that causes any break in wind action."

Ninety eight per cent of the state nursery-produced trees were conifers, 21 million of them Norway pine — the Minnesota state tree. "The Norway is so nearly disease free and so fast growing that it serves an ideal purpose," he said. "Spruce, cedar and others also are used in the windbreaks."

Civil Service Units Announce Exams for Federal Jobs

The Midwest office of the U. S. Civil Service commission has announced the opening of the 1963 federal service entrance examination. This is the federal government's chief recruiting source, and is designed primarily as a means by which young people with promise may enter the federal service.

To those who have a college education or equivalent experience, the FSEE offers many advantages. Persons who qualify are considered for entrance level trainee positions in a wide variety of career fields. Starting salaries for persons hired range from $4,345 to $6,435 a year.

The first FSEE written test will be given on October 13 to those who apply by September 27. Additional tests will be given between November 1962 and June 1963.

Further information about the requirements, positions to be filled, and how to apply can be obtained from your local postoffice, or from the St. Louis Civil Service Region, 1520 Market Street, St. Louis 3, Missouri.

Periodic Vehicle Inspection Asked

State Safety Director Proposes Regulation

A resolution in favor of periodic vehicle inspection was presented to the Governor's motor vehicle and traffic law study committee by Garnett Hall, safety director of the Minnesota highway department at the recent meeting of the Minnesota Safety Council in Duluth.

The proposal with several other safety measures was referred to a sub-committee for study and recommendations.

Referring to the many defects found in automobiles in voluntary safety inspections, the resolution urges the governor's committee to "recommend that the motor vehicle committees of the senate and of the house of representatives of the state legislature prepare suitable legislation for periodic motor vehicle inspection."

It further states that the commissioner of highways would administer the act, set the requirements for and designate official inspection stations and supervise their operation, and set the qualifications for and certify vehicle safety inspectors employed in such stations.

A Ten Year Program

Clarence Prout, Minnesota's Commissioner of Conservation, has scheduled several regional meetings thruout the state to present to the public an outline for a ten-year development program. There are five divisions in the department. They are Forestry, Waters, Game and Fish, Lands and Minerals, and State Parks. Each division head will be present to discuss the recommended proposals. One of these meetings will be held here on Tuesday, September 18.

Commissioner Prout is to be commended for taking this approach to the department's problems and responsibilities. Most of the problems and responsibilities of this department and its divisions deal with future needs, and require long range perspective and planning. A ten-year program of development probably would serve as little more than a sound and constructive first step.

Informing the public as to what the planners have in mind is always desirable in public matters. The withholding of information results in misunderstanding, suspicion and resentment, of which we have had much too much in this area.

Our conservation department's difficulties in this area have centered largely in the activities of the Division of Game and Fish, having to do with the conflicting interests of sportsmen and farmers. It probably is reasonable to expect that an agency of the government that has been created for the special purpose of making game more abundant in the state would think more in terms of what would be pleasing to the hunters than in the interests of the farmers.

But no sportsman's program in an area such as ours is going to be successful if it has the active opposition of the people in the area who depend in whole or in part upon agriculture for their livlihood.

Many farmers are also hunters, and most hunters are reasonable and considerate. Some farmers are unreasonable, and then again some sportsmen are zealots who band together and form organizations. Through these organizations they secure a blind following of honest but generally uninformed fellows who vote for long and impressive resolutions on matters on which they have heard only one side.

It would be funny if it were not in some instances so serious. But these are matters that Commissioner Prout will have to deal with.

In our area agriculture is basic to the economy. Our people like to hunt and fish, but hunting and fishing do not pay the grocery bills no do they send junior to college. Game propagation within the area is not objected to as long as propagation and protection do not lend to game in volume so great that it becomes destructive.

Ducks unlimited, or any other kind of game birds or animals unlimited, can be just as destructive as grasshoppers unlimited. There must be reasonable limits and the area will not submit to a program that is not reasonable and will not serve the best interests of its economy.

Commissioner Prout inherited such problems and now is a good time, before moving into a new ten-year program, to get all of the old differences ironed out. Promises have been made that deserve prompt fulfillment. That new program will have a much better chance for success if we first settle the old accounts and move into the future program unencumbered by past bitterness.

Free To Be Foolish

The Winnipeg Tribune opines that, deep down inside, many of us are sure we have more common sense, more honest-to-goodness ideals, and a keener appreciation of the fitness of things, than other people. That is why, the Tribune editor thinks, if we had the chance, we believe we could spend the other fellow's money more wisely and nobly than he does. From the general observation he proceeds:

> "That's what bureaucrats mean when they talk about "siphoning off excess purchasing power from the hands of the public." The inference is that the ordinary citizen is, by and large, a financial illiterate. He may have enough skill and brains to earn money, but left to his own devices he will squander his pay cheque and upset exquisite monetary and fiscal planning through his carefree ways. That is why high-minded economists and experts are quite willing to relieve him of responsibility for spending his own money.
> "The same sort of kindly feelings are implicit in statements by zealots for a variety of education, health and welfare causes when they announce sternly that citizens spend more per capita on bubble gum, strong drink, tobacco, miniature golf or other fripperies than they do on schools, missionary endeavors or control of Bang's Disease. The conclusion is that citizens don't know any better, and in some way should be protected from their own folly."

Well, we can't find anything in this interesting general analysis of the motives of the do-gooders to take issue with. Some of them, no doubt, serve a good purpose. But we do wish they would give us the privilege of deciding for ourselves how more of our dollars should be spent, even if we do spend some of them foolishly.

Strength in Unity

President Kennedy's request for standby authority to call back into active service up to 150,000 reserves was assured of quick approval by Congress with the backing of both parties. This action may in itself be enough to cause the Russians to lose interest in Castro's Cuba, demonstrating quite effectively that on this question our country is not divided.

Our action should have at least the token support of all Latin Americas countries that profess to oppose Communism. It is not likely that more than token support will be needed. If the Russians wanted to start a war they probably would choose a place for it that would be more advantageous to them —unless they really wanted to start an all-out fight.

As long as Khrushchev blusters and blows we have a feeling of security. He is bluffing from weakness. When he starts getting friendly, and assures us that he means us no harm, then we would be more concerned about having our guard up. Our guess is that he now is trying to frighten us into more wasteful spending—and bankruptcy. The fact that we as a nation are united as far as the threat of Communism is concerned, is a very effective weapon.

Where Was Johnson?

One of the men who held that office stated that being Vice President of the United States was an easy job. All he had to do each morning was to call the White House and inquire about the health of the President. If the President were in good health, he, the Vice President, could go back to bed.

We haven't heard much about Lyndon Johnson since he became Vice President. He was in the headlines a great deal as a leader in the Senate. Now he is seldom quoted. Maybe that is as he wants it. We are sure he could be prominent in the news again if he wished to be.

Since he became Vice President he has travelled a great deal, presumably as a special envoy for the President. He has logged more than 75,000 miles during this period on official journeys outside the United States. He recently completely a nineteen-day mission to countries of southern Europe and the Middle East, to explain changes in U.S. foreign aid policy and to stress that the U. S. was not favoring nonaligned nations at the expense of its allies.

If that means we are going to limit our foreign aid to friendly nations this is a most encouraging development, and we can think of no one who could deliver such a message to the nations that are seeking aid, more effectively than Vice President Lyndon Johnson. He has a common-sence approach to these give-away problems and has a knack for saying the right things in a way that is not offensive.

The Farmers Strike

That strike by the National Farm Organization, extending over 16 states, has effected the market and resulted in some price increases. Such a strike has little chance of ultimate success however because is is not waged against any particular organization but rather against the normal functioning of the law of supply and demand.

It recognizes the law of supply and demand by curtailing the supply. Steady demand, with a curtailed supply, has resulted in price increases. But the supply, which has been in part withheld, has increased in size, and the shadow of that larger supply which, presumably, will be marketed, hangs over the market as an evil influence. As far as we know the National Farm Organization has made no provision for destroying, or otherwise disposing of that market-depressing supply.

We like the idea of this strike in that it represents an organized effort by a group of farmers to help themselves rather than taking their problems to Washington. There are several farm groups that have been successful in stabilizing their markets by withholding that portion of their crop which the market could not absorb at a fair price. The fruit growers, for instance, destroy what the market does not need.

It would appear that the NFO is conducting a demonstration that is doomed to failure. To be effective, farmers must organize by segments on a national scale, and the prospect for organization on that basis at the present time is not promising. Within each segment there are too many little kingdoms that are ruled by a small group of leaders who are well satisfied with the security they enjoy within their own private domain.

The NFO strike may serve a useful purpose by pointing to a need.

from Gov. Elmer L. Andersen

A program for Education

George Rossman, Editor of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, has rendered a splendid service to all Minnesotans with the outstanding job he has done as Chairman of my Advisory Committee on Financing School Needs. A thanks also to Dr. Walter Harvey who was consultant to the committee—and to all the members.

The report has been issued and is comprehensive and factual. I endorse it. Copies are quite limited but if you desire one, let me know. It provides clear guide lines for the legislature which were needed but missing in the 1961 session.

I have issued a program based on recommendations in the report.

I believe that investment in education is the best use of the tax dollar. I believe every child in Minnesota should receive a full educational opportunity, with special attention to the individual needs of the exceptional student whether gifted or handicapped. I believe the teacher is the heart of the educational program and therefore salaries, retirement benefits and other factors of employment should reflect this position of importance.

State aids to local school districts should be brought up to 50 per cent of the average maintenance and operating costs. The base figures used in the state aid formula should be increased to keep pace with higher costs of education. Research should improve EARC procedures.

I favor simplifying the transportation aid program by reducing the kinds of aid from 7 to 2.

Area vocational schools should be increased in number and include summer schedules as well as night school, adult and worker re-training programs. I believe the emphasis here should be on post high school training.

For higher education I favor more Junior colleges, an additional state college in southwestern Minnesota, support for state colleges reflecting their rapid growth and sufficient appropriations to maintain the University of Minnesota at a high standard of excellence. I favor a law providing for reciprocal residential tuition rates between Minnesota and surrounding states.

Dedication of the income tax for elementary and secondary school purposes has been the key to education progress in Minnesota. I deplore diversion of income tax school funds and will continue to fight for dedication, realizing that even income tax proceeds may be inadequate for expanded needs.

I believe our schools should be urged to maintain an adequate counseling staff for the purpose of encouraging and assisting our youth in achieving an optimum education. I salute Vo-ag instructors, extension agents, home agents, fair boards, volunteer leaders, and all others who work to further 4-H, FFA and FHA youth groups. I thrill at the success of these programs.

I support and strongly urge passage of all three constitutional amendments — to increase earnings on trust funds, to correct the debt limit problem in the constitution and to extend the length of the session.

I am sure you will understand why I favor an amendment linking the Governor and Lieutenant Governor on the election ballot.

Those who have fought for public education over the years, and I am proud to be one, know how easy it is for sideliners to criticize seeming slowness of progress, and how hard won is every gain.

Here's a Smile.

In 1960 a visitor to the Steele County Fair walked through the cattle barn and stopped to observe a string of dairy cows.

"What kind of cows are these?" he asked.

"Ayrshire," was the answer.

"I never heard of them," said the visitor.

Six months later he was Secretary of Agriculture for the United States of America.

Dark eyes flashing with Latin warmth and friendliness, Miss Sonia Wildt, foreign exchange student from the lovely resort city of Porto Allegre, near the southeast tip of Brazil, spoke of home and family and of the winter she had just left behind.

In the gracious home of the Ben Frollands, her host family during her stay in our city, she informed us that her mother is a teacher and her father a lawyer. She has a 20-year old brother who plans on a career in mechanical engineering and is a TV cameraman during the afternoons when there are no class sessions.

Miss Wildt flew to Rio from her home city, thence to Miami, Fla., where she stayed for three days before flying on to Minnesota. The trip here from Rio required about 28 hours total flying time. Although she was not familiar with American money, she "learned fast" while she stayed in Miami.

Upon completing the current school term here, Sonia will join a group of other foreign exchange students like herself, and together they will tour New York City and the nation's capital. She will have an additional year of preparation in Brazil before she is ready to enter law practice with her father. (Incidentally, her father's brother is also a member of the bar. The brothers have offices on the same floor, a fact which causes understandable confusion at times, among prospective clients.)

Her selection for state-side study was on the basis of test marks in English, Portuguese (the language of Brazil), and knowledge of American government. In addition, there was also a health test to be passed. She was chosen by the American Field Service in Brazil.

"We are not forced to go to school, at any age. But everyone is proud to be educated. It is (How do you say it?) a disgrace, not to be," she added. Students in her country attend classes only half-days, and this includes Saturdays.

Eleven to 13 subjects are common in a single year's program, but classes are staggered so as to recur about once every three days. In other words, not every subject is taken each day. Subjects chosen are a matter of individual choice; there are no required subjects. Included in Miss Wildt's last year's curriculum were science, mathematics, Portuguese, English, philosophy and psychology, social studies, music, geography, history and physical education. Universities, as well as other schools, are government-supported, with the exception of Catholic schools, which are church-financed, as they are elsewhere.

Schools are not graded as they are here. Elementary education embraces a period of five years, gym school (the equivalent of our high school) covers four years, and normal school, which is direct preparation for a career, is of three years' duration.

"It is very common for women to have careers. You would be surprised how many of them are taking law. In my class, 40 per cent of the women are planning on being lawyers. And did you know that 70 per cent of the people in my country can now read and write?" Miss Wildt informed us, with evident pride.

"Our social life is not as free as yours. My, we would never think of going out on dates unless we have a chaperone. No girl ever goes out alone with a boy."

Next question—How does girl meet boy?

"Oh, we have coming-out parties. They are big affairs. After her party, a girl may go out with the boy. . but not alone, of course. Girls are spoken for by the prospective groom. If the father approves, they may marry."

And what about the others? If the father can not afford such a party, how then do they meet? She told us that there are ways, of course, but they have to have a brother or sister or someone else along. "We have long engagements, usually three years. You see, the girl's father is expected to have a house and furniture ready for the couple before they can marry. That's why engagements last so long."

Her host family are "Mother and Dad," and the daughter and son are referred to as her "sister and brother." She and Sandy Frolland ("My sister and I") share a bedroom.

She speaks Portuguese fluently, understands English well, and reads it with ease. "Our language is not at all like English. Only one word is the same. . .'mosquitoes'," she twinkled.

Prices in Brazil are different from ours in some areas, very similar in others. For instance, "a hamburger is three cents, hot dogs about 2 cents. And. . .oh, yes, we have Cokes and Pepsi. . . at about three cents. Since we raise much beef, it is cheap, and so is anything made of leather. Clothing is expensive, though: like here, I would say, and rent is much the same."

There are about 14 movie houses in her city. Preferences run to foreign films, mostly French and Italian movies. They don't "go" for westerns, as a rule. "But we know all about Texas. . . you know, the big ranches and the handsome cowboys, and all that. We have many cowboys in Brazil, too, especially in my home state."

They have definite seasons, but not as "definite" as ours. . .highs in the summer reach the 90's or 100, lows in "winter" about 20 above. Although they live among the mountains, they see no snow, even on the higher elevations. But June, July and August, their winter months, produce many days of freezing weather. "We spend the three summer months at the seashore, where we have a summer home. That is where we spend Christmas. . .This will be my year of the three winters," she laughed: "It was winter when I left home; it will soon be winter here, and when I get back to Brazil, it will be winter there too."

Sonia saw her first football game here, and commented that it amused her highly. "It's such a funny game. I do not know about your baseball either. We have soccer, basketball and volleyball. Soccer is played only professionally. We were world champions two years, you know. All the men on the team got automobiles or some other big, big prize from our president."

There is no sports rivalry among schools, only among teams in the same school. And no brass bands to play at the games. "We do have lots of pretty music, though and bongo rhythms."

Miss Wildt's home state has much manufacturing, to utilize the vast power-potential of its many waterfalls. But much of her country is tropical and under-developed. However, with Brazilia, the more centrally-located capital city, fast becoming a reality, she feels that her nation has taken great strides towards self-improvement.

"Brazilia just had to happen," she stated. "It is terribly expensive, but oh, so beautiful! And we did need it in the center of our country so it can serve all of the people better. Here, let me show you. . ." Her eyes beamed with pride as she showed us the book of pictures she had brought with her.

The pictures would make anyone proud to be part of such a development: it is a masterpiece of futuristic design, the dream of a superb (native) architect, a true tribute to a forward-looking people.

Flashing a radiant smile as she extended her hand in friendly farewell, Sonia left us with the feeling that, if this is a sample of Brazilian culture, we are most heartily in favor of cementing even more solidly our already-firm Pan-American relations.

Sheep Referendum Now in Progress

Balloting on Self-help Program to End Sept. 21

First ballots are being returned by local sheepmen this week to county ASC offices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the sheep producers referendum, which continues until September 21. The referendum will determine if sheep growers want to continue with their "self-help" program of promotion and advertising.

Outcome of the referendum will determine whether the Secretary of Agriculture will renew an agreement with the American Sheep Producers Council to continue this advertising and promotion of lamb and wool on behalf of sheepmen all over the country.

Since 1955, this unique organization, pioneering a new approach to agricultural problems, has been promoting the sheepmen's products not only through its own direct advertising, promotion and educational programs, but also through cooperation with other industries. Some $3 million annually is used in the sheep growers promotion and advertising program to expand the demand for lamb and wool.

Money to finance this program comes from sheepmen themselves, in direct proportion to their annual volume of sales of lamb and wool.

LIFE'S LABORATORY

Have you ever thought of your life as a laboratory? There are no test tubes and no scientific textbooks to aid us in our study, but we've been given other aids more important still. We call them God's formulas for living.

ARE WE AFRAID? Then we may test the Christ-given formula, "Be not afraid, only believe."

ARE WE LONELY? Then we reach for the promise of the Lord, "And lo, I am with you alway . . ."

DO WE DOUBT THAT GOD CARES? Then we can analyze for ourselves the message of the Christ, "God so loved the world that He gave His Son . . ."

These are only a few of the formulas for our lives.

To test them we must first know them. The Church is ready to teach. We shall need direction also. The Church offers us the help of consecrated pastors and leaders.

Let's go to Church and learn the transforming power of God's formulas in the laboratories of our lives.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Top-of-the Nation Sale To Be Held October 18

Plans for the annual Top-of-the-Nation Dairy Sale to be held in Thief River Falls on Thursday, October 18, were made at a meeting of the Top-of-the-Nation Dairy association Friday evening at the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls. Twenty head of top-quality dairy cattle have already been consigned to the event.

Dr. E. C. Frederick, dairy specialist from the Northwest School of Agriculture and Experiment Station at Crookston, presented statistics from his three-year survey study of the sale. He noted that the average price paid for adult animals at the 1961 sale was $415 as compared to $341 in 1960 and $362 in 1959.

In 1961 the highest priced cow and calf sold for $560 as compared with $610 in 1960 and $790 in 1959. Lowest price cow and calf in 1961 was $395 as compared with $240 in 1960 and $380 in 1959. Highest individual cow in 1961 sold for $295.

Effect of D. H. I. A. averages on production level of herds from which the animals came was also noted in the report. Three animals from herds with averages of more than 500 pounds of butterfat averaged $422 while 15 animals where herd average was not given averaged $397. Eighteen Holsteins averaged $428 in 1961 while two Guernseys averaged $300.

Exactly half of the buyers in 1961 were D. H. I. A. members in 1961 as compared with 33 per cent in 1960 and 42 per cent in 1959. Last year 71 per cent of the buyers kept production records while only 35 per cent did so in 1960 and only 36 per cent in 1959. Sixty-five per cent of the buyers were satisfied with the production of the animal purchased—an increase from the previous two years. Eighty per cent were satisfied with the animal's type and 75 per cent were interested in purchasing more animals at the sale.

17 Legislators View Management Practice At Agassiz Refuge

Approximately 65 persons, including 17 state legislators from all parts of the state, were given aerial and ground tours of the Elm Lake and Eckvoll Wildlife Management areas and Agassiz National Wildlife refuge Saturday. The "Show Me" tour was co-sponsored by the Minnesota Conservation Federation and the Northwestern Minnesota Association of Conservation clubs.

Legislators and sportsmen attended from Minneapolis, Grey Eagle, Worthington, St. Paul, Detroit Lakes, Goodridge, Thief River Falls, Middle River, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls Argyle, Angus, LeCenter, Glencoe, Duluth, Grand Rapids, Robbinsdale, Osseo, Two Harbors, Aitkin, Lakefield, Wadena, Maple Lake, Delano and Bemidji.

Purpose of the tour was to acquaint legislators with the land involved in the controversial 33,000 acre transfer from the division of lands and minerals to the division of game and fish in eastern Marshall county. About 21,600 acres of the total are included in the Eckvoll and Elm Lake Wildlife management units.

Private planes and a charter flight arrived at the Thief River Falls municipal airport in the morning and about 50 persons were given air tours of the area. Official cars then transported the group of visitors to the headquarters site at Agassiz National Wildlife refuge where a venison stew dinner was served

16-Car Caravan

Following the dinner, a 16-car caravan made a tour of the refuge and game management areas. Several brief stops were made to show game management practices and point out specific points of interest in the area. Considerable interest was shown in the feeding sites where surplus grain is fed to help keep ducks on the refuge area and reduce duck depradation on surrounding farm land.

Canada geese were also viewed with interest and it was pointed out that 300 young were produced on the refuge last year and that over 100 pair nested there this year. An average of approximately 9,000 pairs of ducks has nested at Agassiz during the past three years.

Stops were made along the route and included viewing of Judicial Ditch 11. Here it was pointed out that Ditch 11 is part of a system of 115 miles of ditches on Agassiz refuge which are maintained and operated for water management. There are 47.5 miles of dike and 60 miles of trails on the refuge.

View Management Area

When stopping to view the Eckvoll management area, administered by the division of game and fish of the department of conservation, persons making the tour were informed that deer average from 10 to 20 per square mile and moose from one to two animals per section. Waterfowl use the water-filled burnouts with 35 to 50 pairs of ducks found per section. In 1960 there were 38 per cent of the lands in the Marshall county conservation area in the Soil Bank.

Old Mill in State Park Will Operate on Sunday, Sept. 23

Supt. Ernie Jewell to Grind Flour for Public at Cost of $1 a Bushel

Old Mill ground flour will issue from Marshall county's half-century-old mill Sunday, September 23, with the mill stones powered by an 84-year-old Case steam engine. This is the only scheduled operation this year of the mill located in Old Mill State Park west of Newfolden.

The restored old mill together with its Case engine 359 was a Statehood-Centennial year project of the Marshall County Historical Society. The engine which had been last used in about 1897 was pieced together and put into working order by Park Superintendent Ernie Jewell who will be on hand to explain the engine and mill's operation. The Case engine was succeeded by several other engines because it developed a fault. Sixty years after it was last used, Mr. Jewell rebuilt it, corrected the trouble and put it into perfect operating order.

The mill stones used today were installed in 1896 and the French burrstones came from a Grand Forks mill where they had been replaced by more modern rollers. Mr. Jewell has spent considerable time sharpening up the stones this past month the way the pioneers did it. He applied charcoal to the stones and where they showed up with a sharpened piece from an old magneto, one of the few pieces of metal hard enough to hold an edge for the sharpening proces.

Those who wish grain ground into flour for their own use can have this done for a charge of $1 a bushel. Completely dry grain is necessary with last year's grain being the best for grinding. Prior arrangements should be made with Mr. Jewell to schedule grain for grinding. He can be reached by letter in care of Old Mill State Park, Argyle, Minnesota, or by telephone at Argyle, phone 437-2612.

Entries Urged in Wool Growing Contest in TRF

for persons interested in the contest. All 1961 contestants should have received entry forms from the Denver office.

Entry forms should be completed and sent to the district director, state director and national office. The latter should be addressed to the Home Sewing Department, American Wool Council, 909 17th street, Denver 2, Colo. These forms are to be sent before the garment is made, including a 3x3 inch sample of fabric with each form, and sewing lessons will be sent from the national office.

The contest is not open to professional sewers, dress makers, sewing teachers or A. S. P. C. emloyees. Construction pressing must be done by the contestant but final pressing may be done by a professional dry cleaner. Interfacings, facings, linings and underlinings may be non-wool fabrics. A commercial pattern or an original design may be used and the garment must have been made since Feb. 1, 1962.

A winner of a national major award in a previous class (Junior or Senior) may not compete again in the same class in which she won her award. Any garment previously awarded the grand prize in a state, regional or national final of any other sewing contest is automatically disqualified for entry in the Make-It-Yourself-with Wool contest. A contestant must model her own garment at each contest level that she reaches in order to compete for prizes.

Savings Bonds Hit $45 Billion Total

Pennington Co. Buying Shows Slump in August

Total investment in Series E and H bonds reached a new record high of $45,130,000,000 on August 31. Sales nationally totaled $360,000,000 for the month. Sales in Minnesota during August totaled $4,937,896, bringing the total sales for this year to $42,376,646. This is 53.7 per cent of Minnesota's quota.

Purchases of Series E and H bonds in Pennington county during August slumped to $4,687, according to J. M. Roche, county savings bonds chairman. This brings sales for the first eight months of the year to $64,113, he said.

Rollin O. Bishop, state volunter chairman, said today, "Many people do not realize that an investor in Series E Savings Bonds need not pay income tax on accumulated interest until the bonds are cashed. This fact makes the E Bond an excellent supplement for retirement, just one of the many advantages to buyers of United States Savings Bonds."

Northwest School to Open Fall Term Oct. 1

On Monday, October 1, the 56th school year will open at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston.

The registration plan followed for several years will again be used this year. All freshmen and transfer students should plan to register in the forenoon of October 1; orientation activities for new students, including a tour of the school campus, will take place in the afternoon. Upper classmen may register in the forenoon and afternoon of that day. Registration will be held in the school library, Kiehle building.

Classes will begin at 8:00 a. m. on Tuesday, October 2. The first all-school assembly is scheduled for that day also, beginning at 10:00 a. m.

There are two new appointees on the faculty this year. Lynn D. Tharaldson of Belgrade, Minnesota, will teach mathematics and physics and also will serve as counselor in Robertson Hall, boys' dormitory. Mr. Tharaldson is a graduate of Concordia, College, Moorhead, with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He will be an instructor in courses formerly taught by Ralph L. Titus who is on leave of absence this school year.

Mrs. Donald Overgard (nee Harlene Hagen), formerly of Gatzke, will teach home economics. Mrs. Overgaard is a graduate of Northwest School as well as the University of Minnesota, in 1960, with a bachelor of science degree in home economics education. She has served as a home service representative for the Northern States Power Company; and, prior to this, she was an assistant 4-H club agent in West Otter Tail county.

There will be twenty-four staff members on the faculty of the Northwest School and Experiment Station for the coming school year.

The appointment was made under provisions of the Minnesota Civil Defense Act of 1951 through the Area headquarters in Bemidji. The appointment is a Civil Defense classification for volunter workers.

Human Relations Topic of Minneapolis Parley

Dr. Charles Mayo will be the featured speaker at the 1962 State Advisory Conference on Human Relations to be held November 12 at the Leamington Hotel in Minneapolis. He will discuss health needs at the civic luncheon to be held at noon.

Mark Markson, chief of the Minnesota highway promotion division, will tell of highway hazards and methods of prevention. Other prominent speakers will also appear and a teen-age panel will present a discussion of their own problems.

Services Set at Salvation Army

Salvation Army officers from Minnesota and South Dakota will present a special service on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Salvation Army citadel in Thief River Falls, according to Envoy Carl Paulson. Special string bands, brass bands and Gospel messages will be presented. The public is invited to attend.

Beet Harvest to Begin Today at Crookston, EGF

The harvest of sugar beets in the Crookston-East Grand Forks area of the Red River Valley is expected to start today, Monday, according to Jack Tanner, district manager of the American Crystal Sugar Co., East Grand Forks.

The campaign at the Crookston and East Grand Froks plants will start Wednesday, he said.

Tanner said harvesting in the Moorhead area will be delayed this year until after Oct. 1 because of the poor crop there. He added, however, that the crop generally in the Valley is "fair" and better than expected because of the late spring.

SAILOR LYLE MOLSKNESS

Lyle H. Molskness, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Molskness of Route 3, Thief River Falls, is serving aboard the destroyer USS Mullinix, which is participating in the joint international naval exercise "Operation Unitas III," in progress off both coasts of South America. The four-month exercise involves units of the U. S. Navy and the navies of several South American countries. The primary mission of the exercise is to develop the anti-submarine potential of the various units participating.

'Price Tag' Asked on Spending Bills

Taxpayers Group Seeks Action by Legislature

Hope that the 1963 state legislature will enact a law requiring a "price tag" provision in every legislative proposal for state spending or taxation was voiced today by Harold T. Miller, research director of the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

"Such 'price tag' information, covering long-range as well as immediate costs, would enable lawmakers and the public alike to exercise intelligent judment on legislation appropriating funds for state activites and projects," Miller said.

"In like fashion, it would provide a reasonably clear picture of the present and future revenue-raising potential of tax legislation.

"The 'price tag' requirement already has ben adopted in Wisconsin, Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma and New Jersey as a means of avoiding deficits, achieving economies, and advancing the operating efficiency of state government. At least four other states are considering similar legislation.

"In the 1961 regular session 'price tag' legislation had bi-partisan support in both the House and Senate of the Minnesota legislature, but was lost in the rush of the final week.

"With similar support in the 1963 session, there seems good reason to hope that Minnesota will join the ranks of states that have 'price tag' laws."

HIGH PRICED ADVICE is not always the best advice. Or so it would seem from the results of recent happenings in the Thief River Falls school district. Last Tuesday was, I am sure, a day of not-soon-to-be-forgotten embarrassment for a number of people.

Not among the least of these must be one John Skeate, a State Representative from Minneapolis, who lists his occupation as a union representative. Skeate serves as spokesman in negotiations between Municipal Drivers and Helpers Local 664 of the Teamsters Union and municipal governing bodies in Thief River Falls. It was he who represented school bus drivers in the one-day strike which prevented buses from operating last Tuesday. It cannot be said that he did a very good job of it.

The refusal of drivers to transport youngsters to school here unless an offer of wage increases was made by the board of education is believed to be the first school strike in the history of Minnesota. It is not surprising that it would be the first—since a strike by public employees is illegal. But it is surprising that Skeate, a salaried union representative, showed such marked ignorance of, or disrespect for, the state law which has been effective since 1951.

One of the clearest bits of legislation which I have had the privledge to see, the law regarding strikes by public employees is quite specific as to what constitutes a strike. The union representative, however, maintained that the drivers were not striking by refusing to work in order to attempt forcing the board to increase wages. He was very wrong.

Whether the wages should or should not have been raised is immaterial. The fact that the drivers were provided with extremely poor counsel is more serious. I sincerely wonder if a number of union members in the city aren't thinking a little more seriously about the value of their union card, cost of union dues and type of representation received. They should be. Some of them paid a high price for a costly blunder.

If I were a gambling man, I would be willing to wager that it was with a certain amount of uncertainty that Skeate faced his labor bosses following the prize boner in local union history. At Tuesday evening's meeting, when presented with a copy of the law, he had the appearance of a man with his back tightly against a very firm wall.

It will be interesting in the future to see two things: (1) Whether or not Skeate will retain his position with the union and continue as representative for the Local here, and (2) if he does, how much his opinion will be respected by union members and government governing bodies.

Sound it out that all is well.

Prowlers Overwhelm Red Lake Falls 40 to 0

Scoring 34 points during the first half of play and adding an unconverted touchdown in the fourth period, coach Joe Mrkonich's football Prowlers defeated the Red Lake Falls Eagles, 40-0, on the Lincoln high school athletic field on Friday night.

On Friday, Sept. 21, the Prowlers will move into Northwest conference play when they meet coach Ron Thompson's East Grand Forks Green Wave on the local field, with the kickoff slated for 8:00 p. m. East Grand Forks opened its conference schedule on Friday night by dropping a 27-7 decision to a highly-rated Bemidji Lumberjack team at Bemidji.

The Prowlers, exhibiting fine spirit and determination, scored in the opening minutes of Friday nights tilt. Winning the toss, the Prowlers chose to receive, with Red Lake Falls defending the north goal. Steve Mittelstadt returned Frank Knott's kickoff twenty yard to the Prowlers' 41-yard line.

After an Eagles' penalty, for offside, had moved the ball ahead five yards, Mittelstadt drove over left tackle for a first down on the Red Lake Falls' 46-yard line. A pass play was incomplete. Paul Klungness, taking a pitchout from John Aune, raced around left end for a first down to the Eagles' 24-yard line.

Mittelstadt then sliced off left tackle, shook off a tackler at the line of scrimmage and sprinted over the goal-line for the touchdown. Klungness, on a dive over right guard, added the point, and the locals had a 7-0 lead.

In the second period the Prowlers erupted for four touchdowns, with two of the touchdowns coming on pass completions. Early in the quarter, Aune piled through left tackle for six yards and a touchdown, and Mittelstadt added the point on a conversion.

Midway in the second period, from the Prowlers' 36-yard line, Aune hit Klungness with a fine pass, and the blond speedster gathered in the ball and outran the Eagles' secondary for a touchdown. Klungness circled left end for the conversion point, boosting the score to 21-0 for the Prowlers.

Minutes later, after Klungness had made a 30-yard return of an Eagles' kick, the Prowlers halfback, on a play that started on the Red Lake Falls' 26-yard line, swept out around left end, and tight-roped the east sideline to cross the goal for a touchdown. Mittelstadt's plunge over left guard added the point.

With Prowler reserves in the lineup, the locals continued to control the play, and added a touchdown just before the first half ended. The scoring play was a 19-yard pass play, Rick Jensen to end Bob Olson, who leaped high to gather in the looping toss in the end zone. The point was not converted, and the Prowlers held a 34-0 lead at the intermision.

The tempo of play slackened considerably in the second half, with the Prowlers using reserves extensively. The lone score of the second half was tallied in the fourth period when, from the Eagles' 31-yard line, Dick Nelson moved out to the left and then threw a touchdown pass to Bob Olson, who made the catch on the 10-yard line and ran for the TD. A line play failed to add the extra point.

The Eagles, held to four first downs during the game while the Prowlers were racking up seventeen first downs, failed to mount a serious scoring threat. In the third period, from the Eagles' 34-yard line, a double reverse, with Ducky Hanson carrying the ball, did pick up yardage, with the nimble-footed halfback gaining 34 yards to the Prowlers' 32-yard line The Prowlers put the stopper to the threat by holding the Eagles to a minus three yards in four plays and gained possession of the ball.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Encouragement

With the Prowlers taking control of Friday night's football game against the Red Lake Falls Eagles in the first half, coaches Joe Mrkonich and Bill Herzog were given the opportunity to watch the Prowler reserves in action. And the play of these reserves was encouraging.

Especially impressive was the play of the sophomores who were given plenty of playing time. Tackles Marc Pream and Larry Joppru, a pair of 200-pounds plus boys, will be a couple of "powerhouse" linemen before they graduate. And Dave Froehle and Dennis Sullivan, at the guards, gave evidence of becoming regulars next season. And the sophomore backfielders, halfbacks Dick Nelson and Jerry Forsberg, fullback Joe Taylor, and quarterback Buzz Olson handled their offensive assignments in an able manner.

One of the highlights of the game was the pass that Nelson, after swinging out to the left, threw to lanky end Bob Olson, and which was completed for a touchdown. Incidentally, Olson, a rangy junior end, proved to be the game's best receiver, catching a pair of touchdown passes, and picking off several aerials for good yardage.

Jerry Forsberg, one of the faster runners on the squad, proved to be a good kickoff man, with his kicks carrying deep into the Red Lake Falls territory.

Friday's game was a satisfying performance for the Prowlers, their coaches, and the fans. Of course there is the question as to how strong the young and inexperienced Eagles were, but a win over the ever-trying Red Lake Falls club is always worthwhile.

Replacing a Divot

In commenting on the performance of youthful Ron Kvikstad in regaining his city golf title in the tournament that was concluded last week, I stated that he had played in last season's tournament finals against Reid Stromberg. Not so. The finalists last season were Stromberg and Larry (Shorty) Perkins, with Stromberg scoring a 1-up win in the finals.

It was Shorty who took Kvikstad out of the championship bracket by scoring a 6-5 win over Ron in a semi-finals encounter.

Keith Jorde's presence in the "Snowball Special" tournament here Sunday marked the first time since 1954 that he had played over the course where he learned his golf. Keith, who is now a resident of East Grand Forks, has been living in Texas for the past several years, but he intends to play more golf in the future.

It was in 1949 that Keith, playing as a member of the Faribault high school team (he spent his senior year in high school there) won the Minnesota high school golf title.

He added the information that his oldest brother Tommy, also a championship flight golfer, will be ordained into the ministry this fall.

Oh yes, Keith won the championship flight honors in Sunday's tourney here, but he was forced into four extra holes before he was able to edge out Ron Kvikstad by a stroke.

Angling Activity

There was a flurry of mid-week activity on Lake of the Woods this past week, with the walleyes providing limit catches for several parties of local anglers. For the most part, the fishing was the best in the vicinity of Morris Points, with the fishermen using still-fishing methods in "the gap" between Morris Point and Pine Island.

Among the fishermen who reported having good luck during the week were the following: Herman Christofferson, Engval Lund, Claude Davidson, Albert Swanson, Web Maves, Martin Gulbranson, Waldie Christensen, Juel Stadum, and Baldy Dunham. Cliff Overum, Arn Wysoski, Joe Rinowski, and Ole Ness were up there, too, but apparently the anglers have to get out on the lake during the morning hours, and that is where this quartet failed. They didn't get out on the lake until three in the afternoon, and that was when the winds began to blow.

And speaking of Cliff and Arn, I have received a copy of the September 7 issue of an advertising sheet called "Paul Sez", which describes the attractiveness of Paul Bunyan-land. And given a three-column space is a picture of Overum, Wysoski, Ben Johnson and his son Bruce, and the string of walleyes that the party caught this year at Shotley Brook. They are surely entitled to mention, and having their picture reproduced, but I don't see how they rate greater space than Governor Elmer L. Andersen. The Governor's picture is on the same page, but "his honor" is given but two columns!

Deer Hunting by Archers Allowed at Camp Ripley

The Minnesota department of conservation announced today that arrangements have been made with the State Adjutant General's Office to open the Camp Ripley military reservation again this year to bow and arrow hunting for deer.

Unlike the statewide archery season which opens Saturday, September 29th and continues through Ocotber 31st, Camp Ripley will be opened to bow and arrow hunting beginning Saturday, October 13th.

Colonel Dean K. Torney, State Quartermaster at Camp Ripley, advised state game officials that it would be necessary to postpone the opening until October 13th due to the military activity on the reservation during the last week in September and the first two weeks in October.

In order that archery enthusiasts might be provided with the maximum number hunting days possible during the month, military authorities have also consented to permit hunting on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday of each wek after the opening. Saturday the 13th. This adds up to eleven days of hunting during the month of October, namely; October 13-14-15-19-20-21-22-26-27-28 and 29.

Keith Jorde Wins Snowball Special

Keith Jorde, sinking a four-foot putt for a par three on the fourth extra hole while Ron Kvikstad's four-foot putt just rimmed the cup for a bogey, won the championship flight honors in the "Snowball Special" golf tournament played over the wind-swept local course on Sunday.

In the 27-hole medal play championship flight competition, Jorde and Kvikstad were deadlocked for first place, each having a 116-stroke total. In the playoff holes, both golfers scored par fours on the first and second holes, with Kvikstad being inside of Jorde with his second shot on both holes. On the third hole, with both golfers needing a chip to get on the green in three, they were long with their chip shots and halved the hole with bogey fives. On the fourth hole, Kvikstad, short of the green, made a fine chip to within four feet of the pin. Jorde, on the green but beyond the pin with his tee shot, shoved his approach putt just an inch beyond Kvikstad's. Jorde, showing the steadiness of his greater tournament experience, dropped his putt, while Ron's putt just curled away from the pin.

Kvikstad was plagued by an erratic putter throughout the tournament, taking five putts on number seven during his second round, and missing a two-footer on the same hole in his third round.

Grand Forks Cliff Yagla won third place honors with a 122-stroke total; while Roseau's Harry Peterson and Grand Fork's Dale Younggren shared fourth place honors with 123-stroke totals.

In the competition below the ten-man championship flight (Jorde, Kvikstad, Peterson, Yagla, Younggren, Herman Allen, Reid Stromberg, Leo Wieland, Jim Haugstul, and Cliff Olson) match play was used. The local club's Stan Larson won the first flight honors, with the veteran shooting a steady brand of golf. Larson defeated Ron Johnson in a first-round match, and then side-lined Jack Shires before beating Grafton's Gene Bennett in the finals.

Editorials . . .

"For ourselves, we might be tempted to say that the deepest patriotism is best engendered by giving unfettered scope to the most crotchety beliefs—But to the legislature no less than to courts is committed the guardianship of deeply cherished liberties—To fight out the wise use of legislative authority in the forum of public opinion and before legislative assemblies rather than to transfer such a contest to the judicial arena, serves to vindicate the self-confidence of a free people."

—Felix Frankfurter

Our Advantage

A United Press survey of regional trends in the production of turkeys indicates that here in the North Central states we have an advantage in the growing of this crop. Turkeys, particularly those grown to heavy weights, can't stand hot weather and our climate is better suited for their production.

Frozen turkeys have gained wide acceptance in recent years and this has been a favorable factor for our area. Turkey production is seasonal and with the freezing process, turkeys are steadily increasing in year-around demand. And lower feed costs also favor us.

These are the factors that have brought about greater production increases in the North Central region than in other turkey growing areas.

From 1955 to 1961 turkey production nationally increased 64 per cent. During that six year period production increased 125 per cent in the West North Central states and 86 per cent in the east North Central states. South Central increased 72 per cent; Western up 59 per cent; South Atlantic unchanged and North Atlantic down 29 per cent.

The future for the turkey industry in this area appears to be encouraging.

Old Fashioned Idea

Eric Nicol, in a Winnipeg Tribune editorial, recently took out after "progressive" education in the Canadian public school system. He disagrees with the prevailing idea that school is the place for children to become skilled in the creative arts. He snorts:

> "Let the little tykes daub paint on some inoffensive pulp product. Set the eighth-grader to writing a journalistic essay. Encourage the toddling tuba player to improvise his own melodies. These are the ways to produce tomorrow's artists, we are told."

Referring to this as pure hogwash, he maintains that:

> "School is the place to discipline the intellect, to train the mind, to lay the solid foundation on which creativity can build to a height above the mediocre fraud that passes for art in our time.
> "Consider creative writing. I have heard professors of education argue that grammar and the traditional discipline of English stifle creative literary expression. They would have the high-schooler pour out his shapeless prose or poetry unhibited by rules of composition. And the high-schooler does. And twenty years later, if he sticks with it, he is still pouring out shapeless prose or poetry.
> "The foundation for effective verbal communication is laid not in "creative writing" courses at all, but in mathematics (for logic), in history (for background), in literature (for models of excellence) — i.e., in the traditional disciplines of pre-university schooling."

He thinks the function of the regular school, within the five-hour day, is to produce literate individuals, trained to think, and equipped with a reasonable amount of basic information. Maybe he has a point. Certainly any youngster who qualifies as a literate person, who has learned how to think, and who is fairly well stocked with basic information, probably would do fairly well in the absorbing of higher education either in a college or by a self-help effort while he is earning a living.

Tax Reform Needed

It is encouraging to know that Minnesota liberals are finally recognizing the facts and now are willing to at least support a statutory guarantee to the Taconite industry that it will receive fair tax treatment in Minnesota. A constitutional guarantee would be better and, under the circumstances, would be justified, but a legislative act may serve the purpose.

The guarantee would give assurance that the Taconite industry would not be subjected to taxes more onerous than those imposed on other industries. The mining industry generally, has not complained about state taxes. The companies have complained pitterly apou the injustice of local taxes and these complaints appear to have been justified.

Stupid political leadership in Minnesota has been a retarding influence that has slowed down our economic development. Our entire tax structure needs an overhauling to bring it in line with the taxes imposed by other states and which are more favorable to industry generally. Our polifical atmosphere is unwholesome and as a state we are suspect. Unfortunately the prospect for improvement is not good.

Not Interested

Our rocket to Venus is several million miles from home but still many weeks away from its destination. Venus, as we understand it; is our nearest neighbor in our own little solar system, but, as far as we are concerned, we'll be well satisfied if we never get any closer.

The distances in outer space are inconceivable to a fellow who thinks he has made a long journey when flying to the coast. Outer space is not for man, as we see it, simply because man doesn't live long enough to get very far from home.

Our sun is big and bright for us, but it is small compared to most of the bright stars we see at night. It takes about eight minutes for the light of the sun to reach us, but in outer space distances are measured by light years. We have learned how to travel faster than sound but not as fast as light. Our voices are telephoned around the world as fast as sound travelling across the room, but even the Russians haven't boasted that they soon will be travelling at the speed of light.

So, personally, we are not interested in outer space and would just as soon that the government limited its expenditures for outer-space exploration to whatever sum they thought they might be justified in spending foolishly. Not even the moon interests us as a place we would care to start a newspaper.

Truckdriver Censors

(Duluth Publicity)

In Cleveland, the Machinists and the Teamsters Union were campaigning for the privilege of representing the employees of a manufacturing firm. As the representation election approached, both unions placed advertisements in Cleveland newspapers, stating their arguments and criticizing the arguments of the opposing union.

Then the Teamsters Union objected to an ad placed by the Machinists Union, and their members who drive trucks for the Cleveland papers refused to deliver the newspapers in which the ad appeared.

This is a situation which will bear watching. Supose union reporters refused to cover speeches by men with whom they disagreed? Suppose union printers refused to set type or edittorials with which they disagreed? Or stereotypers to cast the plates or pressmen to produce the copies?

So far, all these unions have realized that such actions are not their rights or privileges. Now the Teamsters have violated the general understanding. Threats to a free press, it appears, don't come only from governments.

Russia Is Learning

(Sleepy Eye Herald Dispatch)

Surprise!

Russia has learned a lesson from capitalist history. The Soviet Union has decided that trademarks, although a foundation of free enterprise, must be made part of the Communist economy.

It seems that the government discovered its "no-name firms" were turning out poor products, despite constant inspection. Entire industrial groups were producing shoddy material. Lack of identity resulted in lack of incentive, and was clearly responsible for lack of quality.

So the government has given each state-owned firm a name, to distinguish one from another. And it has required many firms to identify their products with a trademark.

A Soviet economist, V. A. Nikiforov, explains the Russian switcheroo this way:

"The trademark makes it possible for the consumer to select the goods which he likes.—This forces other firms to undertake measures to improve the quality of their own product in harmony with the demands of the consumer. Thus the trademark promotes the drive for raising the quality of production."

In the U. S., government planners are urging that we embark on the program the Soviets are abandoning. They would have our government mark a product A, B, or C, with no other identification by which consumers could determine whether they were getting manufacturer Jones' products which they prefer, or manufacturer Smith's item which they don't like.

The program is one which inevitably leads to mediocrity of performance, as the Soviets have well learned.

Must we go through the miserable experience, too?

The human hair crop is not adequate to meet the needs of the present wig fad, according to the Wall Street Journal. Most of the hair for the better grade wigs is imported and one Chicago wig maker is now paying $10 an ounce for top quality hair, roughly $4 more than a year ago. According to official estimates however there will be a substantial increase in the cotton surplus this year.

Little Men from Outer Space

Lock Up Your Children, Folks!

Here They Come Again!

Once more our city is being visited by the "little men from outer space." From whence they come and whither they go—nobody knows. Here today and gone tomorrow. But what a tale they have to tell while they are here. "Lucky numbers," "free surprisis," "free portraits," $1.89 portraits." You've heard it many times before.

But we're just foolin', folks. It's only another bunch of wandering photographers out to make a fast buck. You've probably seen it advertised aleady telling you how lucky you can be. Our advice is — get all you can for free, but don't pay out any money.

Somebody has to pay for the "free" gifts, and the "lucky" numbers, but don't let it be you.

When the chips are all down and the dust is all settled your old broken down home town photographers will still be on the job 365 days of the year, and you'll always know where to find them.

Prof. Commends Local School on Ag. Course

Compliments to the Thief River Falls school system for the adult agriculture program carried out under the direction of Fred Sorensen, agricultural coordinator, have been received by Supt. M. R. Hankerson in a letter from R. Paul Marvin, assistant professor in the Department of Agricultural Education at the University of Minnesota. The letter is as follows:

Dear Mr. Hankerson:

It was my privilege to participate in a Farm Management Workshop on August 9th and 10th, conducted in your area school under the direction of Fred Sorensen. I would like to take this opportunity to commend the administration and the school board of the Thief River Schools for conducting a school program to meet the needs of the people in your area. My interest is primarily in the Adult Education Program for farmers.

Mr. Sorensen had organized a very excellent workshop. It was especially helpful to the beginning teachers in your school area to help with the start of their work in farm management for adult farmers. I am sure that the future will prove that the schools of Thief River Falls had real foresight in providing education in this very worthwhile area. The agriculture production of the United States is one of the greatest real strengths and the greatest deterrent to Communism that we have. When a local school such as yours recognizes this need and offers an excellent program as you are now doing, I am sure that the future of agriculture will continue to strengthen.

I think you are indeed fortunate to have a man of Fred Sorensen's ability. He had done a great deal with the farmers and shows keen insight into developing new methods and techniques to be used in this rather complex, but important job. Ed Sisler was also available for a real contribution at this conference, and I am sure he is going to prove a very capable staff member for you.

I am sorry that I was unable to see you at the time I was there, but I do want to take this opportunity to congratulate you on a very excellent school and especially the agriculture department which I had the opportunity to work with.

Sincerely,
Paul Marvin

Big Demand for Trees from State Nursery

After the first six days of accepting orders for the annual spring shipment of trees from state-owned nurseries, the conservation department's forestry division reports they have already sold 10 million of them.

A short time ago the department announced that on September 1 it would begin accepting tree orders for spring delivery and reported that approximately 36 million trees would be available this year.

Forest nursery chief Ray Clement said in St. Paul this week that if the present rush of orders continues, most of the available stock would be exhausted within a short time He said everyone planning on ordering trees this year should send their application in without delay to insure that the order could be filled.

All available tree species, both evergreen and broadleaf types are being sold at a cost of $10 per thousand. Orders must be for quantities of at least 500 trees. Trees may be ordered in any quantity over the 500 figure, subject to available stock.

The department reserved the right to reduce or reject any order to insure an equitable distribution of the various species.

At the present time the types available in the best quantities are Norway, white and scotch pine, white spruce and white cedar. Good supplies of green ash, box elder, caragana, silver maple and black walnut (seed) are also on hand.

Clement said that application blanks may be obtained by contacting forest rangers, county agents, soil conservation service offices or the Conservation department, forestry division, Centennial Office Bldg., St. Paul 1, Minnesota.

Coated Tongue No Sign of Sickness

Minnesota Medical Assn. Clears up Misconception

"Stick out your tongue!"

For hundereds of years doctors and parents have issued this command, then peered intently at the protruding tongue to see whether it had a "coat" or not. If it did, the unlucky child was supposed to have an upset stomach or intestinal troubles.

But does the tongue really tell the truth? Can it really act as a medical detective to tell when there is trouble in the stomach and intestines?

Well, according to the Minnesota State Medical association, the tongue has nothing to do with the state of the stomach or the intestines. To be more specific, it has nothing to do with constipation, peptic ulcers, poor appetite, upset stomach, diarrhea, indigestion, or too much to eat or drink the night before.

In fact, according to the association, some people always have furry tongues but are perfectly healthy.

Tests reported in the British Medical Journal indicated that if a furry tongue is related to anything, it is due to smoking, infection of the mouth or respiratory tract, or to a fever. In fact, about one out of 20 nonsmokers had furry tongues, about one out of five of the moderate smokers had them, and one out of two of the heavy smokers.

The thing that was most commonly found to produce a coated tongue, however, was inflamed tonsils. Other infections of the respiratory tract and mouth that caused a furry tongue were the common cold, sinus trouble, inflammation of the middle ear, bronchitis, pleurisy, pneumonia, influenza and mouth ulcers. A fever can also cause a coating on the tongue.

Gentlemen ... your sleeves

Surprising, how finicky little things can make a big difference! A half-inch too much sleeve can botch a man's appearance just like a half-truth his character. A collar gap can mar a master crafted suit. Surprising, too, what wonders a fluent fit can do for a coat of modest cost. We say: when it comes to fitting, it's fine to be finicky. State Boasts Million Non-farm Jobholders

Employment in Minnesota's non-agricultural occupations passed the million-job mark in August for the first time in the state's history, according to Frank T. Starkey commissioner of employment security. The August job-total of 1,004,000 represented a gain of 6,600 from July and a 26,000 increase from August 1961.

As is true in passing most milestones, crossing the one million job mark was based on a long record of economic growth, which included yearly seasonal fluctuations along with periodic cyclical swings, said Starkey. The seasonal high is usually reached in September, and the low in February, with the normal variation amounting to about 80,000 jobs.

The influence of the business cycle is evident in the nonfarm employment trend during the recessions of 1958 and 1961. Employment during those years, instead of showing the usual gain from the previous year, actually showed a drop as a result of the recessions.

In 1960 nonfarm employment approached the million mark; however, it just fell short at the seasonal peak as September employment reached 997,000 workers. The recession of 1961 then prevented employment from reaching the milestone last year. In July of this year it was at 997,000 again; in August it crossed the mark; and in September employment should climb to the seasonal high of approximately 1,010,000 workers. Based on past trends, employment should hover above the million mark through October, but then drop lower as seasonal contraction sets in towards the year's end.

The most important influences affecting the 26,000 job gain from a year ago came from the machinery and paper manufacturing industries, construction, department stores and government. Affecting the nominal one-month gain between July and August were canning industry jobs (up 1900), special trade contracting (up 100), and service occupations (up 700). Also affecting the total was the return to jobs of workers involved in a printing industry three-month labor dispute. Tempering the gain from July was a decline in transportation equipment manufacturing employment due to the temporary shutdown of one large firm.

Production workers in Minnesota's manufacturing industries earned an average of $99.96 per week in August.

Unemployed in Minnesota decreased to 53,600 in August, down 5,800 from the previous month and 18,800 below a year ago. The rate of unemployment was 3.5 per cent in August compared to 3.8 percent in July and 4.8 percent a year earlier.

Foreclosures in U.S. Increasing

Mortgage foreclosures on nonfarm properties are continuing to increase and have reached the highest level since the Depression, the government reported Tuesday in Washington.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board estimated that there were 21,665 foreclosures in the April-June quarter. This was 16 per cent above the 18,608 foreclosures in the same period last year. It was the highest number since 1939.

OPERATION of the blending and packaging plant for wild bird food in Thief River Falls is expected to begin in about two weeks with contract grains being accepted this week. George Plitt, president of Valley Feed & Supply Co., Inc., of Spring Valley, N.Y., who organized the local plant, is shown at left in the above photo. He is demonstrating the packaging procedure to Gene Gaer and Donald M. Olson (right), members of Jobs, Inc., the organization which helped the plant to locate here. Production equipment is geared to produce 30 bags of bird seed per minute. The firm will employ a manager, two other men and three women for its initial operation.

New TRF Plant Will Begin Operation Soon

Sunflower and Millet Plant Is Now Taking Delivery of '62 Crop

Delivery of sunflowers and millet grown under contract in the Thief River Falls area this year is being taken this week. Processing is expected to begin in two weeks at the local plant. The processing operation will be a branch of Farmers Grain and Milling company of Wellington, Ohio, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Valley Feed & Supply Company of Spring Valley, N. Y.

George Plitt, president of the New York firm, was in the city Tuesday to look after affairs for the local concern. Cleaning and blending equipment is being installed in the warehouse purchased this spring from Farmers Co-Op Grain and Seed association just south of Lincoln high school. The plant will process sunflowers, millet and other seeds for wild bird food.

Wendel Corbett of St. Hilaire has been hired as manager of the local plant. The firm will also employ two other men and three women when the processing operation gets underway. Assembly-line procedure will be followed with equipment geared to the packaging of 30 sacks per minute.

To Pay Premium

Plitt stated Tuesday that a premium above the contract price will be paid this year. Adverse crop conditions resulted in a small percentage of the contract acreage being planted this year, but it is not yet known just how much local sunflowers and millet will be available. Purchases will be made from other than contract growers, Plitt said, with farmers holding contracts being given priority.

Local supply this year will not be great enough to provide the plant with sufficient material, and additional seeds will be purchased in other northwest areas for carload shipment here. There will be a supply for continuous operation of the local plant.

The company president said that plans are to serve the area of the United States west of Chicago from the Thief River Falls plant. In addition to the wild bird food packaged here, other products of the company will be shipped here for storage and shipment to wholesale hardware and grocery distributors for re-sale.

Bird food will be packaged in five, 15, 25 and 50 pound bags at the plant here and will bear Pride of the Valley brands. Plitt also plans packaged lawn and grass seed and other seeds. Next spring he hopes to introduce production of Trinity creeping red fescue which can be grown and harvested locally. Other seeds which could be grown locally will be planted on a trial basis next year also.

Council Sets Hearings on Assessments

Union Reply Ordered Requesting Proof for Adjustment Panel

October 18 was set as the date for hearing on the assessment roll for four city projects when the Thief River Falls city council met Tuesday evening. The assessments were prepared by the office of D. H. Stewart, city engineer, and notices will be prepared and mailed to each property owner affected by the assessments. The hearing will begin at 7:30 p. m. and each project will be covered separately.

In further negotiation in regard to wage increases requested by Local 664 of the Municipal Drivers and Helpers union, a letter was read from Thomas Kachelmacher, legal counsel for the union. Kachelmacher has previously requested the formation of an adjustment panel to work out grievances.

Council members earlier replied to the attorney that they desired proof that a majority of local union members requested the panel. The letter read on Tuesday was a copy of minutes from a union meeting at which the panel had been requested. Since there was no indication as to the type present or form of vote taken, the council again requested Robert Wurst, city attorney, to advise Kachelmacher that more conclusive proof was needed.

Wurst also called attention to an Attorney General's opinion which had been received in regard to rights of the city in constructing a natural gas transmission line. An agreement was also approved by the city fathers for joint use of poles in the city with Northwestern Bell Telephone company.

City Engineer Stewart called attention to an accelerated public works bill which has ben passed by Congress in the amount of $900 million and was instructed to write a letter requesting application forms and listing local projects which may qualify for federal funds. The course would include a review of nursing procedure, information on new equipment and medications and instruction on changes in the profession during recent years. A review of the hospital disaster plan would also be included.

Coffee will be served during the afternoon registration and all registered nurses not now practicing but interested in new nursing trends are encouraged to register.

Conservation Officials Outline Future Plans

Five Divisions Review Development Projects Scheduled State wide

One of a series of regional meetings called by Clarence Prout, commissioner of the state department of conservation, held here at the city Auditorium Tuesday evening, was attended by a representative group of about 300 Northwestern Minnesota public officials and citizens. Purpose of the meeting was to outline the plans for statewide development by the department and its five divisions, forestry, land and minerals, game and fish, parks and waters.

Commissioner Prout presided and opened the program with a general statement of past experience and future development. "Whether we move forward by intelligent foresight and united effort or by the stress of necessity is ours to choose," he said.

"The history of our state's resource management is replete with examples of both wise foresight and unwise action; many of the benefits of past foresight are part of our heritage of today, while hindsight now clearly indicates tragic examples of misunderstanding and lack of planning for the future."

He explained briefly how the department is organized and how it functions through its various bureaus and divisions. "Preliminary studies and discussions with concerned organizations and citizens indicate the avenues of development on which Minnesota must concentrate programs of development over the next decade," he said.

Speakers for the five divisions were Edward Lawson, director for the division of forestry; Gordon Wollin, deputy director for the division of game and fish; Richard Hultengrehn, land administrator for the division of lands and minerals; Director U. W. Hell for the division of state parks; and Director Sidney Frelson for the division of waters. A concluding statement was made by Richard Knox, deputy commissioner of conservation.

Announce Study

Of special interest to this area was the announcement that a special study of the conservation problems existing in four northwestern Minnesota counties is now well along and reports on this study will be submitted later this fall at four public meetings. The special studies cover areas in Kittson, Roseau, Marshall and northwestern Beltrami counties. The Marshall county study is being conducted by Wayne Hanson, area forester, Warroad; Elmer Andersen, land appraiser for the division of lands and minerals; and Robert Farmes, area game manager, both of Thief River Falls.

The reports, with the recommendations of the study committees, will be available for county officials and other groups for their consideration prior to the meetings. The meetings will be held in the county seat of each county with the possible exception of that covering northwestern Beltrami

Features from the kitchen of

MRS. OSCAR C. KNUTSON

A cake which stays deliciously moist even after several days, but is so delicious as to make this particular feature unnecesary, is this orange-raisin cake. It places emphasis on healthfulnes as well as on taste.

Contributing it was Mrs. Oscar C. Knutson, who is a teacher of English in the Plummer school system.

ORANGE-RAISIN CAKE

1 cup sugar
½ cup butter
2 eggs
2 cups flour
½ cup sugar

1 cup sour milk
1 tsp. soda
¼ cup ground orange rind
1 cup raisins, ground
juice of 1 orange

(Keep these last 2 ingredients in reserve)

Cream sugar and butter until smooth and fluffy. Add eggs and mix well. Sift flour into above mixture. Stir soda into sour milk and add to above. Add ground raisins and orange rind. (We added one-third cup chopped nuts and found it extra good with this addition.) Mix thoroughly. Bake about 45 minutes at 350 degrees. When cake is done, mix the orange juice with the ½ cup sugar you reserved, and boil the two together for about 1 minute. Pour over hot cake. This makes a kind of glaze, and is the secret of the cake's amazing moistness and keping-qualities.

This cake requires no frosting, but if you want to be extra generous, you could use a thin orange icing or caramel, if you prefer. We like them both.)

Mrs. Knutson did not list her hobbies as such. (We taught school at one time, and could probably list a few "hobbies" that she has acrquied, such as correcting papers, preparing tests, etc.,) In addition to this, she is much interested in crocheting and in music; she plays the piano and chord organ. Her husband's hobbies are bowling and recording.

The Knutsons are the parents of two daughters, Mrs. Ferrl Ranum, of this city, and Mrs. Martin Solseng, Jr., of rural Thief River Falls.

Visiting with their sister and aunt, Mrs. Caroline Walter, at the Gresmond Bruggeman home and with other relatives this past weekend were Mrs. Walter's sister, Mrs. Arnold Blake of Hampton, N. D., and Harold Blake of San Diego, Calif.

Returning this week from a two-weeks' vacation to Mellen, Wisc., were the Florian Kritz family. While there they attended the silver wedding anniversary celebration of Mrs. Kritz' brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Sackett, and visited with relatives. They were visited there by former residents of this city, the Lyle Boges.

Friday and Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bennes were the Charles Shelgrens of Freeborn. Mrs. Shelgren, the former Esther Bennes, is a sister of Mr. Bennes.

Miss Anna Ahlberg, who accompanied Rev. and Mrs. Charles Erickson of St. Peter to the Twin Cities on September 10, has returned to her home after consulting an eye specialist there.

Misses Hilda and Anna Ahlberg entertained the Oscar Nelsons of Solvang, Calif., at Sunday breakfast and dinner. Other dinner guests of the Ahlbergs were Mrs. Sigurd Griebstein and Mrs. C. W. Mattson.

HAPPY HOMEMAKING

Any time is apple time — breakfast, snacks, lunch and supper. Eaten in generous quantities, raw apples especially make an important contribution to the diet. The sugar in the fruit is ready for immediate absorption to supply the body with energy. Some minerals and vitamins are found in apples but the vitamin content varies with the variety of apple, storage conditions and the way the fruit is served.

Good digestion and intestinal activity is provided when an apple is consumed. It stimulates acids, juice and bulk within the human body. Because of their crisp texture, eating raw apples provides exercise for the jaws and at the same time helps to stimulate the gums and clean the teeth.

Apples served in salads add extra flavor to the meal. One of many easty-to-make apple salads uses the following recipe.

2 cups chopped unpeeled red apple
2 cups shredded cabbage
½ cup raisins

Moisten with French dressing to which crumbled cheese has been added. Toss lightly and serve on crisp lettuce.

There are several ways to serve apples—with meat, glazes, garnishes and desserts. It has been said there are as many ways to serve apples as days in the year.

Wire hangers from the drycleaners should not become a permanent accessory in your clothes closet. These hangers aren't correctly shaped for most clothes that are to be hung for some time. They can cause the garment to lose shape and droop. They may cause threads to distort and stretch, leaving a bulge. If a garment is hung on these wire hangers while wet they often leave rust marks.

Use good judgement in selecting a wooden or plastic hanger. The design of the hanger is important. A slim contour hanger is not much better than a wire one. Hangers with extra thick ends will keep coats in shape even if they are wet or damp. It is not necessary that your hanger be fabric covered for good service.

Never hang knitted garments on hangers. Fold them carefully in drawers.

Don't forget about the children; use hangers that are especially scaled for their clothes.

Orange Juice and Pears Plentiful

'U' Marketing Specialist Discusses Food Outlook

Count on plenty of concentrated orange juice as you change from summer to fall menu planning.

Frozen orange juice and fresh pears share the featured spot on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods, reports Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, extension consumer marketing specialist at the University of Minnesota.

This year's record-breaking pack of frozen orange juice is already 40 per cent above last year's large pack. Since September is Better Breakfast Month, it's a good time for homemakers to make sure the family starts the day with a glass of orange juice for the vitamin C everyone needs. But use orange juice at other times, too, Mrs. Loomis suggests. Serve orange juice for a refreshing snack in afternoon and evening. And use orange juice in gelatin salads and dressings, and for sauces for ham, poultry and desserts.

Fresh pears and Thompson seedless and Tokay grapes are both September plentifuls, made to order for school lunch boxes and after-school snacks.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture expects the best crop of Bartlett pears the West Coast has had for several years — both in quality and quantity.

Turkey continues to be an excellent protein buy in Minnesota markets. A turkey purchased for the freezer now — during Minnesota Turkey Week September 10-15 — will make delicious and easy-on-the-budget eating later.

Fast milking—Of dairymen who replied to a Steel county survey, half of those operating two milker units milked 20 or more cows per hour. But only about half the dairymen operating 3 units milked more than 23 cows in the same time. Question is whether you can afford the risk of leaving machines too long to milk just three extra cows per hour.

Lower machinery costs on large farms? Yes, say John Ying and S. A. Engene, University of Minnesota agricultural economists. In a study of farms in the SE and SW Farm Management Asociations, they found machinery and power costs on farms of 141 to 180 acres averaged $18.80 per acre. That compared to only $12.20 per acre on farms of 401 to 500 acres.

However, the 141 to 180-acre farms had higher yeilds than those of 401 to 500 acres. The yield increase amounted to $6 per acre—nearly enough to offset the higher machinery cost.

More than 10 million people today have jobs involving storing, transporting, processing and merchandising farm products, according to E. T. York, Jr., administrator of the Federal Extension Service. York recently told the Alpha Gamma Rho annual convention meeting in Minneapolis that farmers now spend more than $26 billion a year for goods and services to operate their business. That's about four times the amount spent for those purposes 20 years ago.

One in seven—that's how many Minnesota dairymen are members of their local Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Extension Dairyman Clifford L. Wilcox points out that lack of accurate records and failure to use records were listed as two of the most important factors in a recent survey of business failures. Are you the one in seven who's testing?

Rotary District Governor Speaks In TRF Monday

Eldon Lum, Wahpeton, Cites Ethical Standards And Community Service

Eldon Lum of Wahpeton, N. D., Governor of District 558 of Rotary International, was guest speaker Monday at the noon meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club. A governor's conference was held prior to the meeting in the Elks club rooms.

"Life is most meaningful and men are most successful when they work and live in an atmosphere of helpfulness, friendliness and service," Lum told the club Monday. "The high ethical standards advanced by Rotary are examples to be followed in the individual business of Rotarians throughout the world."

The district governor went on to state that a Rotary club is a recognized leader in the community because its membership is made up of community leaders. He urged members to "put Rotary to work wherever you work.

"Rotary is a great force toward peace," he added, noting that Rotary clubs are now located in 128 countries although the organization was founded only 57 years ago. Nitish Laharry, Calcutta, India, was recently elected president of Rotary International—the first dark-skinned man to hold that position in the history of the organization.

The classification system used by Rotary provides the organization with a cross-section of not only the community but the entire world, Lum said. He stressed avenues of service and concluded by reminding members that the more they put into Rotary the more they will get out of Rotary.

Holter Tells Lions of Chamber Week

Sinding Also Speaks in Behalf of United Fund

J. B. Holter, president, and Roland Larson, manager of the TRF Chamber of Commerce, supplied the program at the luncheon meeting of the Lions club Wednesday noon in the Elks club rooms.

Holter called attention to the current observation of Chamber of Commerce Week, and he invited Lions members to attend a dinner meeting in the Elks club this evening, sponsored jointly by the senior and junior chambers and Jobs, Inc.

Larson showed a motion picture depicting the large amount of volunteer labor that goes into the accomplishments of a typical chamber, and showed its relationship to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Sig Sinding, president of the Pennington County United Fund, spoke briefly on the coming fund drive, and solicited the cooperation of the Lions club in making the campaign a success, adding that more than moral support is required. The club adopted a resolution affirming its support.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Harris spent a week at International Falls at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, the John Harrises, who just became the parents of twins, a boy and a girl.

For C of C Week

C of C History, Purpose Reviewed

In recognition of Chamber of Commerce week, it is only fitting and proper that we attempt to portray the origin and history of Chambers of Commerce throughout the world since their beginning.

The Organization

The urge to build cities is elemental and one of the oldest instincts of man. Although of European origin, the modern chamber of commerce is essentially an American institution. In a real sense, the Chamber is an epitome of the free enterprise system. It incarnates the American idea of progress and growth. It provides an agency through which men may collectively accomplish what they cannot do alone and it affords a means for the development and expression of business opinions. Since a Chamber of Commerce's main objective is to build the city, it has two major fields of activity:

1. Increasing the wealth and prosperity of the community by facilitating the growth of existing businesses and fostering new ones.

2. Employing the wealth thus created in establishing and improving the civic, educational and cultural facilities of the community in order to attract more business and industry.

The organization that fails to function in these particulars is not a true chamber of commerce. Whatever a member may expect from his chamber in the way of personal services or service to his business, his first demand is that it shall protect and develop the best interests of the community as a whole.

Historical Background

As long as commerce has existed, traders have probably banded together. The first purpose of their associations was, perhaps, that of seeking common protection against enemies and marauding bands of robbers. Later they established codes to govern the conduct of trade, and still later they attempted to exert influence on legislation. But these early associations of traders have little in common with the modern chamber of commerce which is, in fact, a twentieth century product.

Origin of the term came from Marseilles, France, where such an organization was established by the city council toward the close of the 17th century. The oldest chambers in the British Isles are those of Glasgow (1783), Edinburgh (1785) Leeds (1785) and Manchester (1794). It was not until 1881 that a chamber of commerce was established in London. In 1700 Louis XVI ordered every trading center to organize such an organization. In 1789 Louis XVI ordered the business organizations suppressed because he thought they had become too powerful. When, however, Napoleon took over, he ordered them restablished in an effort to stimulate trade. Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany gave great impetus to the chamber of commerce movement in that country. Perceiving the usefulness of such organizations in promoting trade and training young men for commercial careers, especially overseas, Bismarck encouraged their establishment in principal German cities. Other European countries promptly followed Germany's example. The European or continental chambers of commerce have, however, little in common with the modern American organization.

The early American Chambers began with the establishment of the State of New York, organized in 1768 and chartered by King George III in 1770. The second oldest is Charleston, S.C., chamber formed in 1773. The New Haven and Philadelphia chambers were organized shortly thereafter. By 1870, the number of local chambers had increased to forty. But their activities were limited to those directly connected with commerce. The emergence of the chamber of commerce as a true community organization came much later as businessmen began to realize that their own prosperity depended upon the development of a prosperous, healthy and happy community.

The modern chamber evolved about 180 and the growth of the movement since has been rapid. In 1950 there were about 4,000 such organizations in the country. The chamber has changed in scope and philosophy as well as in numbers, however. By 1925, it was perceived that chambers, in order to be true to their purpose must remain primarily business organizations and express the point of view of business. It was recognized that industrial development required civic and commercial development as well. The importance of balance in the chamber of commerce program began to be recognized.

Another major change took place with the advent of the New Deal in 1933 when the chamber became somewhat of an interpreter of government to business and conversely, of business to government. In this field of activity the chamber of commerce is assuming growing responsibilities and achieving increasing usefulness.

The modern chamber has been defined as "Men, working together, to make their community a better place in which to live and make a living." The modern chamber is extremely flexible but they still express business opinion and concentrate their efforts on promoting the best interests of the community along civic, commercial and industrial lines. It is this flexibility of the modern chamber of commerce — its ability to adapt itself to any local circumstances—that is the great source of the chamber's strength and general appeal.

Chambers of Commerce are not static organizations. They are highly dynamic, capable of meeting local emergencies as they arise, without sacrifice of regular functions. Their history has been one of constant modification to meet the demands of the new day without surrendering essential principle. The modern chamber is a highly skilled organization, with definite techniques embodying the same "knowhow" in the field of community development as American trade and industry have achieved in the fields of production and distribution.

The first law of chamber operation is that it must be responsive to and reflect accurately the thinking of the local community and particularly, its business element. Secondly, the chamber must provide a vehicle for the expression of community aims and aspirations. Third, it must always remain predominantly a business organization serving the business interests of the community. The Chamber of Commerce is the "voice of business" but this is not in conflict with generally accepted doctrine because enlightened business people today know what "If it isn't good for the community as a whole, it isn't good for business."

which may be held at Grygla.

Following the talks by department officials, questions from the audience were invited and there were brief discussions on various matters of general interest that were prompted by the questions.

At a dinner meeting with a committee representing the special problems of land transfers in eastern Marshall county, held at the Rex Cafe prior to the general meeting, Prout explained the department's position. He expressed the belief that matters now controversial would be cleared up at the public hearings to be held later this fall, based on the land-use studies that now are under way.

Minnesota Guard to Stage Practice Alert This Month

10,000 Men in 68 Cities to Share In Exercise to Check Readiness of Units

A state-wide, practice alert will be conducted by the Minnesota Army National Guard in observance of Muster Day, 1962.

The practice alert involving approximately 10,000 men in 68 communities will be conducted during the period September 15 to 30 at a time and date to be selected by the adjutant general. There will be no announcement of the time or actual date prior to the alert.

The objectives of the practice alert are:

1. To determine the readiness of the Minnesota Army National Guard for performance of emergency missions.

2. To test the alert and rapid assembly plans of all organizations and units.

3. To point out to the public duty in time of state or national emergency.

Alert orders will be issued by The Adjutant General to major commanders who will, in turn, issue orders to those organizations and or units subordinate to them.

The following actions will be taken by all units upon receipt of alert orders:

1. Assemble all members of the unit at the unit armory as rapidly as possible.

2. Arm weapons and issue to individuals.

3. Notify next higher headquarters of the assembled strength and time the unit is ready to move out.

4. Move the unit out of the armory to a pre-selected site to perform a security-type mission.

Security missions will include state and federal government buildings, public utility stations and plants, TV and radio transmitters and stations, arterial bridges and railway stations.

Services Held Wednesday For Joe Weber, Sr.

Joe Weber, Sr., a Newfolden resident for over three decades, died on Saturday afternoon, September 15, at Northwestern Hospital at the age of 83 years.

A requiem high mass was celebrated on Wednesday morning, September 19, at 10:30 a. m. in St. Bernard's Catholic Church. Rev. Father Keough Patnode was the celebrant. Burial took place in the church cemetery. Arrangements were by the Green Funeral Home.

Mr. Weber was born in Budapest, Hungary, on December 24, 1878, where he attended school and grew to manhood, and where he also married Miss Maria Kaufman. They came to America in January, 1905, and settled on a farm near Watkins. To this union were born two sons and one daughter. Mrs. Weber passed away on September 10, 1920. The following year, Mr. Weber moved to Gatzke and continued farming operations.

On November 11, 1924, he was united in marriage to Mrs. Ovidia McDonagh at Gatzke. In 1928, they moved to Newfolden, where they have since resided.

He is survived by his wife, Ovidia; by one son, Joe, Jr. of Newfolden, and by three step-daughters, Mrs. Joe (Ida) Weber, of Newfolden; Mrs. Adelstin (Myrtle) Mugaas, of Nales, Fla., Mrs. Edward (Dorothy) Dietrich of Oaklawn, Ill. First Frost Is Recorded Tuesday

First frosts of the fall season were experienced this week when temperatures plummeted to 30 degrees Tuesday night and a frigid 27 degrees last night. The freezing readings were not unexpected since they were forecast, but were not welcomed by farmers with late crops or persons with late gardens.

Last year the first frost came on September 23 and the mercury then dropped to 21 degrees on September 28. In 1960 the first frost didn't arrive until a 30 degree recording was made on October 3. In 1959 there were consecutive lows of 29 degrees on September 15 and 16 and a monthly low of 24 degrees on September 17.

High and low temperatures during the past several days were 67 and 40 on Monday, 61 and 42 on Tuesday, 53 and 30 on Wednesday and a low of 27 degrees last night. The forecast calls for mostly fair today and tonight with warmer temperatures today and not so cold tonight. Highs today will range from 62 to 68 degrees with lows tonight from 38 to 46.

C of C General Meeting Slated at Elks Tonight

Community Welfare — Discussion of the United Fund campaign and the local Better Business Bureau solicitation control program. Plans were made for October Safety Month with Fire Safety Week to be observed October 7-13.

Agriculture — Plans were made for the annual 4-H awards banquet to be held November 1 and the possibility of a turkey barbecue in October. A meeting will be held on Monday with John Lang, manager of the Land O'Lakes turkey processing plant in this city, to make further plans.

Business and Industrial Development — Review of progress made in the industrial survey was conducted and recommendations made on improving the use of information and the compiling of needed information.

Education — American Education Week plans were discussed with George Stockman, director of elementary education, who was a guest at the meeting. Elementary school needs were discussed and it was pointed out that letters have been received from the state board of education and director of vocational schools indicating that the present high rating of the school is in jeopardy due to crowded conditions.

Government — Ways and means were discussed to bring Chamber of Commerce opinion to government bodies on matters of local interest and concern.

Public Relations — Problems affecting the city were discussed and some time given to study of the 4-H awards banquet which is sponsored by the committee in cooperation with the agriculture committee.

Retail Trade — Awarding of free turkeys on October 20 Turkey Day was approved with registration to be held on October 18, 19 and 20. Another meeting was planned for the immediate future to plan November and December promotions and store hours.

Transportation and Communication — Main consideration was given to a recent development whereby it now takes an extra day for parcel post shipments to reach Thief River Falls from the Twin Cities. Construction plans for area highways and Centennial Park were also reviewed. The committee decided to request the city street department to avoid over-use of calcium chloride on streets this winter since considerable damage has been done to some store floors as a result of the chemical use.

All committees but one were within their budgets, the lone overage resulting from street banner purchase not budgeted for at the beginning of the year.

WAREHOUSING of products manufactured by the Valley Feed & Supply company but not produced at the local plant which will soon open has also been arranged in Thief River Falls. George Plitt, president of the parent company (standing), stated that the local plant will serve the area from Chicago and west with all products that the concern manufactures. The sacks above, received in a carload shipment here this week, contain a natural mineral which has been processed to provide a better replacement for sand in boxes for house cats. Plitt stated that labeling the sacks with "for your cat's potty box" was the initial sales stimulant.

Maintenance Cost on Highways Soars

Increase $2½ Million This Year to $15 Million

Routine highway maintenance costs on Minnesota's trunk highways during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1962 were almost $2½ million higher than in 1961, according to a report released today by the highway department, with $15¼ million being spent in 1962 compared with $12¾ million in 1961. Total maintenance costs, including betterments and special projects, reached almost $18½ million.

The greatest increase was in snow and ice removal costs, occasioned by the very severe conditions encountered last winter. A "normal" winter requires approximately $3 million to clear the trunk system of snow and ice; last winter's protracted storms required $5,600,000 for this item alone.

The department pointed out that increased maintenance costs result in a greater drain on available state funds and, with more than $5½ million required for snow and ice removal alone — which is money literally "down the drain" — the Department's financial resources for construction purposes are reduced by a like amount.

In a study made several years ago, it was estimated that annual maintenance costs would not reach the $18 million level until the 898 miles of Interstate highways were completed and in service. Adverse conditions as experienced last winter, sky-rocket maintenance costs which must be borne 100 per cent by state road monies without any assistance from federal aid.

100 At Retriever Club Field Trial

Floyd Ball Dog Wins Derby Class; Williams Wins Hunter Special

Approximately 100 spectators were on hand Sunday afternoon to watch 18 dogs perform in the first field trial conducted by the Thief River Falls Retriever Club at the Glenn Jorde farm. Three classes of competition were held during the afternoon.

Live pigeons and ducks were used in the trial with Harry Pluth of Thief River Falls and William Froehlich of Grand Forks serving as judges during the trial. Following the competition, Pluth and Froehlich demonstrated handling with their older dogs. Pluth owns a Black Labrador and Froehlich has a Golden Retriever.

First place in the puppy class for dog under one year of age went to 'Buddy", a Golden Retriever owned by Dr. James Erickson; second place to "Boots", a Black Labrador owned by Stan Gibson; third place to 'Kip", a Golden Retriever owned by Ole Ekeren; and fourth place to 'Rip" a Golden Retriever owned by Bill Pederson.

In the hunter's special class for dogs with less training, first place went to "Gubber", a Golden Retriever owned by Russell Williams; second place to "Rusty", a Britany Spaniel owned by John Moum; third place to 'Pepper", a Black Labrador owned by Gordon Anderson; and fourth place to "Duke", a Golden Retriever owned by Bobby Johnson.

Ribbon prizes were awarded to the top four entries in each class.

Newfolden Eleven Edges Stubborn Stephen Team 13-7

Nordics Overcome First Half Deficit to Win; to Play Karlstad Friday

Coach Sheldon Elseth's Newfolden Nordics scored their second win of the season and their first in "Top-of-the-State" conference play on Friday when they defeated a stubborn Stephen Tigers squad, 13-7, on the Newfolden field. The Nordics will continue play on their conference schedule on Friday when they travel to Karlstad for a game against the youthful and inexperienced Rabbits.

Friday's win for the Nordics was a come-from-behind effort by Newfolden as the Stephen Tigers, rated as a pre-season favorite for the conference title, held a 7-0 first half lead. In the second-period, Stephen unleashed a four first down drive that culminated in a touchdown on a four-yard plunge by fullback Bill Hanson. A Bill Davis to Rick Thompson pass was completed for the conversion point, giving the Tigers a 7-0 lead.

The Nordics evened the game at 7-all by scoring a touchdown and the extra point in the third period. The Newfolden scoring play found Jerry Strandquist hitting Kenny Anderson with a 12-yard pass completion for the TD. And when Merlin Anderson slashed through the line for the conversion point, the game was in 7-all knot.

The game-winning touchdown was marked up midway in the fourth period, and again it was a Jerry Strandquist to Anderson pass completion that was a factor in setting up the score. From the Stephen 12-yard line, Strandquist passed to Anderson for ten yards and a first down on the Tigers' 2-yard stripe. Strandquist, on the option play, rolled out along the line and then dived through tackle for the touchdown. Alan Leigh's attempt to add the point, on a run, was stopped short of the goal.

During the game the Nordics picked up nine first downs while limiting the Tigers to but five first downs. Coach Elseth's team gained 98 yeards by rushing and picked up 104 yards by passing.

CO-CAPTAINS of the 1962 Lincoln high school Prowlers football team were elected this week by their team mates. In the above photo is Jim Ranum, an end being converted to a tackle position this year although seeing some service as a receiver. At right is Paul Klungness, speedy halfback who is equally effective at running the ball or being a deep receiver for quarterback John Aune's aerial attack. Both boys will be in the thick of the action Friday night when the Prowlers meet East Grand Forks in the annual homecoming football battle on the local field. It will be the first Northwest Conference game for Coach Joe Mrkonich's squad this season.

This week's schedule:
Friday, Sept. 21
East Grand Forks at Thief River Falls.

Coach Ken (Red) Wilson's Bemidji Lumberjacks, scoring their third successive win of the young season, defeated coach Ron Thompson's East Grand Forks team, 27-7, at Bemidji on Friday night. The game was the opener of the Northwest football conference schedule.

The Lumberjacks, with a liberal supply of lettermen available for this season's campaign, held a 14-7 lead at the half, and added a pair of touchdowns in the second half for their well-earned 27-7 win.

This week's conference schedule will find the Green Wave of East Grand Forks meeting the Prowlers on the Lincoln high school field here. The Prowlers eked out a 13-7 win over the East Siders in last season's game between the two long-time rivals.

Hunting-Camping Rules for Parks

Most of Itasca Park to Be Open to Deer Hunters

Rules and regulations governing camping and hunting in Minnesota state parks this year were released today by the Conservation Department.

With the exception of Itasca and St. Croix state parks, all state parks will be closed to hunting this year; they will be open to camping for those who may wish to hunt nearby areas outside the park boundaries.

Hunters camping in state parks will have to keep their guns cased while in the campgrounds and abide by other state park regulations.

St. Croix state park will be open to deer hunting only — with bow and arrow from October 13 to October 31 and with legal firearms for one day, November 18.

Certain portions of the park will be posted with signs reading "Restricted Area — No Hunting". A maximum of 600 hunters will be permitted in the park on November 18. They will be chosen from a list of applicants who will register at the town of Hinckley during the preceding week. Details of the registration procedure will be announced shortly.

Itasca state park will be open only to deer hunting during the regular firearms season for the zone in which it is located. Portions of Itasca will also be posted and closed to hunting for the protection of visitors and employees.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The Conference Opener

The football Prowlers will begin play on the 1962 Northwest conference schedule on Friday night when they meet coach Ron Thompson's East Grand Forks squad on the athletic field here. Kickoff time is at 8:00 p. m.

The conference, which is now a five-team league, was organized in 1955, with Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Crookston, and East Grand Forks as the charter members. In 1959 the Roseau Rams were admitted to membership in the circuit. The league was originally a football conference, but it has now been extended to include golf and track.

The conference football champions, since 1955, have been as follows: Bemidji, 1955; Thief River Falls, 1956; Crookston, 1957; Crookston, 1958; Roseau (in its first bid) in 1959; Bemidji, 1960; and Crookston, 1961.

And make no mistake about it, the Prowlers will be up against a toughie on Friday night. The East Siders were beaten by Bemidji, at Bemidji, 27-7, last Friday night, but that score does not truly indicate the stubborn opposition that coach Ron Thompson's squad provided the Jacks. The score at the half-time intermission was 14-7 for Bemidji.

Leading the East Siders in their invasion of the Prowler field on Friday night will be Bob Kobetsky, perhaps the conference's most powerful backfielder. Kobetsky, a 190-pound plus halfback, and he is possessed of good speed as he competes in the dash events for the East Siders during the track season, is the work-horse of the Green Wave offense.

Should be quite an interesting duel between the Prowlers' guard, Tom Morben, and Kobetsky, as the two youths are cousins. I'll give a slight edge to the Prowlers, and Tommy, in Friday night's tilt.

You can be sure that Friday night's game will be in the hard-nosed tradition that is the trademark of the Prowlers vs. East Grand Forks rivalry.

Captains, Captains

The Prowler football squads, the varsity and the 'B' squads, elected co-captains this past week. On Monday afternoon, coach Joe Mrkonich's varsity Prowlers named halfback Paul Klungness and tackle Jim Ranum as co-captains. And the two boys, who are very popular with their teammates, and top-flight football players, merit the honor of co-captaining the 1962 Prowler football team.

And the Prowler 'B' squad named quarterback Bruce (Buzz) Olson and fullback Dave Froehle as co-captains.

The 'B' squad marked up their second win in three starts on Tuesday night by scoring a 25-6 win over the Crookston Pirates 'B' team in a game played on Crookston's Highland Park field. The local 'B's held a 19-0 first half lead. Dick Nelson swept around left end for ten yards and a touchdown to open the scoring in the first period, and later in the period, left halfback Mike Benke, on sweep of right end, made an 8-yard touchdown run. In the second period a completed aerial, Nelson to Benke, gave the 'B's a touchdown, and Buzz Olson added the extra point, giving the locals a 19-0 lead.

In the third period, Nelson's return of a Crookston punt, to the Pirates' 5-yard line set up a touchdown. Nelson dove over right guard for two yards and the touchdown. Crookston averted a shutout by scoring a touchdown late in the fourth period, with hard-running Miles Mueller driving four yards for a touchdown.

The Prowler 'B' team will travel to Roseau on Tuesday night, Sept. 25, for a game against the Roseau 'B' squad.

In Section Thirty-Seven

As the late Frank Rinkel used to answer, when queried as to the whereabouts of the best sharp-tailed grouse shooting: "The grouse are in section thirty-seven". And just try to find a section thirty-seven on a plat book.

And that's the best answer to give to this season's grouse hunters, too, the birds are in section thirty-seven. But there will be a number of hunters moving out of town on Saturday morning in quest of a bird or two, and the hunters who are fortunate enough to find a covey (and there are some birds in evidence) may fill their limit of three.

The consensus of the hunters who have made pre-season scouting trips into the prime grouse hunting areas, is that the season should have been closed or drastically curtailed.

I hope that Saturday turns into a fine day for a picnic lunch.

Traffic Safety Conference Held

Four Area Students Take Part In State Meeting

Young people from this area who attended the third youth traffic safety conference called by Gov. Elmer L. Andersen Monday in St. Paul, were instructed in four traffic safety projects they can put on in their own communities.

In calling the conference, Governor Andersen said that the increasing number of young people driving crowded highways "emphasizes the importance of our state's Youth Traffic Safety program." He said, "it is imperitive that every thoughtful Minnesotan support this endeavor."

One of the projects the delegates were encouraged to stage locally consisted of setting up a vehicle check lane for mechanical defects. Faulty brakes, worn-out windshield wipers and defective tires — frequent causes of accidents — if detected and corrected quickly will help save lives on the highways. Exhaust systems, horns, lights and glass are included in the inspection.

How to conduct a brake reaction test, demonstrating the time and distance a driver takes in an emergency to stop his car at 30 mph, is another safety effort in which conference delegates received practical experience.

Accompanied by Anthony Madunich of the Pennington county safety council to the St. Paul session were Eugene Fisher and Linda Cameron, students in Lincoln high school, and Lois Benson and Mike Johaneson of Grygla, students in Goodridge high school.

ON TOUR of the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge and adjacent Eckvoll and Elm Lake Wildlife Management areas Saturday were the above sportsmen and state legislators. At right, holding the portable loudspeaker, is Howard Kramer, East Grand Forks, tour chairman. About 17 legislators from all parts of Minnesota participated in the tour which included a total of about 65 persons. Herb Dill, Agassiz refuge manager (back to camera at left), reviewed work being done at the refuge and the attempts being made to manage the areas for effective production of waterfowl, upland and big game.

'U' Host Sept. 29 to Lawmakers, Newsmen

The 1962 legislators, editors and broadcasters day at the University of Minnesota Saturday, Sept. 29, will bring some 1,500 newsmen and legislators from throughout the state to the Minneapolis campus.

Events will include morning tours of university facilities, including the school of architecture, the college of pharmacy, the institute of technology's department of electrical engineering and the Minnesota Museum of Natural History.

Forty exhibits from as many university departments will be on display in Williams Arena during the morning. These will range from a display of how maple sugar is made (keyed to the fact that Minnesota is the third largest producer of this delicacy in the United States) to an exhibit of a model river-control project from the St. Anthony Falls hydraulic laboratory.

A barbecued beef luncheon will be served in the Arena, beginning at 11 a. m., by members of the university's Block and Bridle club, composed of animal husbandry students.

Following the luncheon, the newsmen and legislators will attend the Minnesota-Missouri football game at 1:30 p. m. in Memorial stadium. Pre-game and halftime entertainment will be provided by more than 6,000 musicians from 90 high school bands in Minnesota. The university band, directed by Bandmaster Frank P. A. Benerisćutto, will join with the younger musicians for the halftime entertainment, "Popular Varieties", which will conclude with Tschaikowski's "1812 Overture". Real cannons will be used, according to Beneriscutto.

Effects of Water on Health Cited

Medics Say Water Doesn't 'Flush out the Kidneys'

Water plays a vital role in the health of every human being. Nearly 60 per cent of the body's weight is water. Its importance to the body is only second to oxygen. Here are some facts about thirst and drinking water listed by the Minnesota State Medical Association.

Most persons need only to rely on their sense of thirst to tell them how much water to drink. During hot weather there may be exceptions to this rule of thumb. There may be times in very hot weather, during the course of work or play, when it is better to drink more water than you want usually. It can't do any harm and it will help the body to better withstand the heat.

Drink water when you are thirsty. Whether you drink water before, during or after meals, doesn't usually matter. The water requirements of the body may be satisfied by drinking other types of beverages. This need can be met as well by drinking tea, coffee, soft drinks, milk, fruit juices, or even by eating watery foods.

The idea that large amounts of water somehow "flush out the kidneys" has little basis. By and large, there is no great advantage to drinking a lot of water to keep the kidneys active in the normal, healthy individual in ordinary weather.

A sustained unusual thirst in either adult or child should be investigated by a physician. It could be an indication of diabetes.

Many of the bright metal parts on home appliances and automobiles are first tested for their corrosion resistance at the marine corrosion laboratory of The International Nickel Company, Inc., at Harbor Island, North Carolina.

Save all these things in the Constitution and let the Supreme Court stand behind it, and then you can let off all the hot air in Congress and in the Senate that you want to."

Humphrey is Happy

Senator Hubert Humphrey is very happy now that passage is assured for the wetlands bill. This bill will prohibit federal assistance for drainage of wetlands that are suitable for wildlife. We do not know as yet who will decide whether the undrained pothole is more desirable than the drained farmland. Presumably the farmer will still be required to pay taxes on it and maybe he should have the deciding vote.

But we are glad that Senator Humphrey is happy and we are sure the well organized sportsmen will thank him for his assistance. But we probably are getting a little closer to a more effective organization of farmers in the protection of their reasonable property rights. Washington cannot write all of the rules, and some of the most important decisions will still be made at the local level.

That's What He Said

We are happy to pass along the following statement made by a Montana man. Opposing construction by the Federal Government of Knowles Dam on the Flathead River in his state, he said:

"Perhaps it is necessary for a state or a governor to focus attention on our national need to reverse unnecessary Federal spending.

"Knowles Dam is an unsound expenditure of the taxpayers' dollars (that would) cost the people of this country $259 million they do not need to spend."

Believe it or not, the speaker was the Governor of Montana, the state in which the dam was to be built. He actually opposed the spending of federal money in his state for this project because the project wasn't worth while. His name is Tim Babcok.

It is a name to be remembered.

Too Much Fumbling

Our country was accused last week of endangering the authority of the West by continuing to supply arms to Indonesia during the recent negotiations over the future of West New Guinea. The bitter charge was made by Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns in a debate in the lower house of the Dutch Parliament, before members ratified the agreement of August 15 transferring the administration of Dutch-held West New Guinea to Indonesia.

He stated that the Dutch Government was fully justified in being disappointed about the American attitude. The former United States Secretary of State, the late John Foster Dulles, had pledged United States support to the Netherlands in the event of armed aggression by Indonesia. The Kennedy administration claimed the United States had not changed this position. But, as reported by Reuters, Professor Luns stated, "It gradually became clear that the Dutch Government could no longer count on United States support."

It appears that we are not getting along too well with our friends in Europe.

And it also is becoming increasingly evident that we are not getting along as well as we should with our neighbors of the Western Hemisphere. President Kennedy has hinted that he thinks our associates in the Alliance for Progress should now support our country in our opposition to Soviet infiltration in Cuba. So far not one of the Alliance members has indicated any interest. Canada did not join the Alliance and has no obligation in that respect. But Canada goes along with Britain in being unconcerned about Russian planes setting down in Canada in over-the-top flights to Cuba.

Obviously we have shrunk considerably in stature. We are not nearly as big as we thought we were. It is not pleasant to think that possibly our influence is shrinking too. But, pleasant or unpleasant, we should recoznize the facts.

It probably would be in the interests of world peace if we didn't talk quite so big. There are times when we are just as blustering as Khrushchev, and possibly just as unimpressive when we do bluster.

The defense of Berlin should not be our sole responsibility, but we conduct ourselves as though it were. We can see no good reason now for providing the leadership, and the bulk of the power for the defense of Europe. Let's turn Europe back to the Europeans, standing ready to help if help is needed. But let them now carry their own load and responsibility.

We are developing the bad habit of meddling too much in the affairs of others, lending support for the charge that we actually do have designs for world conquest.

And we can see no good reason why we should assume all of the responsibility for the development of nuclear weapons, or space ships that will be first to carry men to the moon and back. If the free world is concerned about Communism then let the free world join hands in a defense program in which all will participate.

There are times when we suspect that we are making fools of ourselves; that too many of those who are speaking and making the decisions for us are immature. They lack the sure touch. They are groping, and, too often, they fumble.

Commonwealth Debate

Will Britain join the European Economic Community? That is the important question that now is being discussed not only thruout the British Commonwealth but thruout the world. Prime Ministers and other representatives of Commonwealth countries have met with British officials and expressed their views. Most of them have opposed the European union, fearing that their own countries would be adversely effected. Each one, understandably, is concerned primarily with its own selfish interests.

But sentiment seems to become more favorable as the issues become more clear. That is the opinion of the New York Times as expressed in the following editorial comment:

"For the Macmillan Government and a majority of the British people, the die is cast. There is still much opposition at home and in the Commonwealth, and the British Government is seeking to reconcile many conflicting interests. But both Prime Minister Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Home have emphasized that Britain must join the Community because her own greatness and the life of the Commonwealth depend on her being at the center of power in Europe, and that her only alternative is to become an isolated and stagnant offshore island unable to preserve either greatness or the Commonwealth."

This opinion is supported by the liberal Manchester Guardian of England, which ordniarily does not favor the Macmillan government. Because it so often speaks for the opposition, the following comments by the Guardian are significant:

"How can Mr. Macmillan convince the others that his intentions are sound? Only—if at all—by asking them to think in terms of Europe and the world as they will be ten and twenty years hence, not simply as they are today. Of course he cannot entirely do so while the trading terms are unclear. He might well acknowledge at once to the visiting Prime Ministers that—deeply as he is committed and strong though his wishes are—the marriage may never take place. The negotiators in Brussels have still to settle contentious questions such as future price policy for food (affecting Australia's wheat, New Zealand's butter, and other vital commodities), the nil tariffs (including those on aluminium, lead and zinc), the voting system within the community, and a host of other matters. On these, the French may yet force the price too high, thereby ending the engagement."

Our neighbors to the north of us seem to be more favorable to the idea than they were when the proposal was first made. In Winnipeg, for instance, both the liberal Free Press and the conservative Tribune now support Macmillan's position. According to the Tribune:

"Britain has two main reasons for wishing to enter the Common Market. The first is to achieve greater economic stability and trade opportunities. The second, and perhaps more important, is that the U.K. may have a say in shaping the destinies of the New Europe, which now gives every indication of becoming a new world force.

"Two World wars were the fruits of a divided Europe—the move toward unity of economic and political purpose among European nations should be welcomed but it would be in the interests of the Commonwealth countries and the United States to have Britain seated at the European council table as a full-fledged partner and participant."

And the Free Press definitely does not like the Diefenbaker approach and his opposition to the Common Market plan. It makes its position clear in the following reprimand of the Canadian Prime Minister:

"Mr. Diefenbaker asked the prime ministers whether the strength of Europe could be maintained, if Britain joined the Common Market, and whether North America would feel the same obligation towards European defence. Surely the prime minister is aware of the western consensus that British entry into the ECM is the surest way to strengthen Europe. If he holds a different view it is his duty to say so clearly. To cast mysterious doubt on the effect of Britain joining is to sabotage the Macmillan government's application. It is to suggest to the Europeans that Britain's constant affirmations of a sincere desire to play a full part in the development of the new Europe are not to be trusted."

So maybe Britain is closer to membership in the European Union than we sometimes have thought possible. And the arguments about what is the proper course for the British to take are especially interesting here at home in that we may soon be arguing about the same questions.

from

Year Around Roads

There has been a good deal of discussion about our progress on the interstate highway system, particularly in the Twin city metropolitan area.

One needs only to drive around the area to know that an enormous amount has been invested and a great deal of progress made. In addition, the interstate program has been activated in the balance of the state, with much activity everywhere.

Actually, Minnesota is now doing one of the best jobs in the nation on the interstate system. We rank third among the states in mileage completed or underway. The Bureau of Public Roads allotted a substantial amount to Minnesota because our planning was in good shape, and we had matching funds available. This will further speed up the program. Minnesota could well become the first state in the nation to complete the total interstate program. I am well pleased with progress and anyone studying the record is amazed at how much has been accomplished in twenty months.

But the economic life line to the smaller communities of our state, all weather year around roads are also receiving special emphasis and need help.

We can no longer handicap communities of our state by having to impose load limits in the spring. This is a brake on economic activities and certainly discourages new industry from plans to locate in such municipalities.

I believe we need to take this problem firmly in hand and resolve it. I believe the legislature should release $60 million of voter approved bond issue authority to the highway department. Then a substantial catching-up job could be done. Expenditures can be scheduled over a three year period. The funds recently advanced to the state were almost entirely earmarked for interstate, with about three million to go to the counties.

A massive program to give all Minnesota year around roads would be a big factor in maintaining the rapid pace of economic growth we now have underway. Just think what a difference it would make in your own community or area to update all access to no limit year around highways.

You can help in this effort by visiting with legislative candidates and urging them to support the "year around highway program".

Let's talk about the DIFFERENCE in Fuel Oils
Midland Infra-Heat fuel oil with Cal-Rad looks like most other fuel oils. However, you can't see the differences in the fuel oil that are the result of refining and blending processes. These are the differences that can cost you money and heating comfort. Many fuel oils contain additives. They, too, are different. Cal-Rad in Midland INFRA-HEAT is a tested and proved additive that overcomes the moisture and sludge problems inherent with heating oils. With ordinary fuel oil in your tank, moisture can cause damaging rust and sludge formation. Let's see what that means.
The opening in your oil burner's nozzle is smaller than the period ending this sentence. That tiny hole must stay open and clean for efficient fuel atomization and combustion.
Here the tiny particle of rust or sludge is lodged near that small opening. Deflected fuel drips away unburned. Faulty burning makes soot and smoke. Finally the opening is plugged. Fuel is wasted, heat is lost. A service call results.
Incomplete Combustion
Cal-Rad in Midland INFRA-HEAT absorbs and disperses moisture, prevents rust and sludge. The moisture burns with the fuel. Your burner nozzle stays clean, inside and out. No smoke, soot, fuel waste or lost heat. Uniform fuel atomization like this gives you clean-burning, economical heating comfort.
When you are tempted to say, "oh, all fuel oils are alike" . . . think about those two little pictures. Remember the importance of these differences in fuel oil.
For the finest money saving, clean, home heating fuel, call the Midland cooperative. Only Midland has the Comfort Assurance Plan featuring both Budget Pay and Keep-Fill services and only Midland has petroleum products that are Midland controlled . . . from the oil well to you.
Through Your Purchases You Can Become a Stockholder at the Midland cooperative.

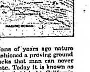
Tough new '63 Chevrolet Trucks are here!
...THE ONES THAT WHIPPED THE BAJA RUN...TOUGHEST UNDER THE SUN... TO SHOW THE WORTH OF NEW ENGINES, FRAMES AND SUSPENSIONS!

Sometimes the caravan crept along for hours in low gear. It took 17 days to go 1,066 miles! This is the road near Loreto.



Round trip from Detroit to the end of the Baja Peninsula is over 8,000 miles.

Millions of years ago nature fashioned a proving ground for trucks that man can never duplicate. Today it is known as the Baja (bah' hah) California Peninsula, Mexico.
These pictures give you only a bare idea of the place. The road is fine for 140 miles below the U.S. border. Then the beating begins. Rocks and hard-baked ruts bang, jab and jerk the trucks from stem to stern. Loose sand makes them struggle and strain. Dust chokes them. Heat roasts them. Rivers drench them.
The Baja Run took this Chevrolet truck caravan 17 days to go the 1,066 miles.
All the trucks performed magnificently. Not one was forced to drop out because of mechanical difficulty.
Trucks that can take this kind of beating can take on your toughest truck jobs. Come in now and see tough quality-built '63 Chevrolet trucks with all their new improvements.

Look out for School Bus, Drivers Warned

Minnesota motorists were asked today by the highway department to be especially on the alert when meeting or overtaking school buses along country roads and highways now that school doors are open again.

State law requires drivers, when meeting or overtaking any school bus which has stopped on a street or highway for the purpose of receiving or discharging children, to stop his car immediately upon the extension of a stop signal arm and display of flashing red signals by the school bus driver. The driver must remain stopped until the stop arm is retracted and the red lights turned off.

The driver of a motor vehicle on a highway with separated roadways does not have to stop upon meeting or passing a school bus which is on a different roadway. A separated roadway means a road which is separated from a parallel road by a safety isle or median strip.

The highway department pointed out that a "double yellow line" is not a safety isle or safety zone and only forbids a motorist from crossing the double center line, either in passing or leaving the roadway. Drivers meeting or overtaking stopped school buses along such a marked roadway must stop as required by law.

Motorists were also warned to stay alert for the signalling of school bus safety patrol members who help students walk across roadways to and from the buses. Minnesota law requires drivers to obey the signals of the young patrol members.

First Interstate Rural Highway to Open October 5th

11-mile Section West of Fergus Falls Was Built at Outlay of $5 Million

An 11-mile stretch of Interstate Highway 94 in Otter Tail county, costing over $5 million, will be opened Wednesday, October 3, in an official ceremony.

Governor Elmer L. Andersen, other government and local officials, and prominent citizens will gather at the TH 210 and TH 94 interchange west of Fergus Falls at 2:30 p. m. on that day with Governor Andersen as the principal speaker.

This 11.4 mile portion of TH 94, which skirts the city of Fergus Falls to the south and west, is part of the 21 mile section which is under construction in Otter Tail county and is among the first of the rural Interstate highways to be opened in the state. Three other sections, one near Austin, one near Moorhead and one west of Luverne had been opened previously.

The newly completed portion begins near the junction of THs 52 and 59 northwest of Fergus Falls and extends to the Dalton junction southeast of the city.

The construction, which cost over $5 million exclusive of right of way, has been accomplished by well known Minnesota heavy constructors including the John Dieseth Company of Fergus Falls, Megarry Bros. of St. Cloud, the Berghuis Construction Company of Prinsburg, two Wisconsin firms, Breckenridge Electric and Century Fence of Appleton and Biogan Construction Company, Des Moines.

The interchange with TH 210 will be lighted. Signs costing $44,000 have been erected and the entire roadway has been fenced. Grading is continuing on the next 10 mile segment of the route from the Dalton junction to one-half mile south of the Otter Tail - Grant county line. This section should be opened to traffic next year.

Bus Strike Rates AP Bonus Award

Coverage of the school bus driver's strike in Thief River Falls rated an Associated Press award for Marvin Lundin, city editor of the Times. A letter from George Moses, chief of the Minneapolis bureau of AP, stated:

"Your story about the school bus drivers strike tied for last week's best spot story in the state AP report. It was good work throughout. Most weeks it would have won the bonus alone by a wide margin, but last week was a pretty big news week."

Gourds

The interesting colors and shapes of gourds have made them increasingly popular for home decoration.

Usually it's a good idea to leave gourds on the vines until after a light frost. Cut off mature fruits, leaving stems attached. You can usually detect maturity by a browning and drying of the stem. Often the fingernail test is used to determine hardness of the skin. However, be cautious about using this test; taking off a bit of the skin with the fingernail may blemish an underripe gourd and destroy its future ornamental value.

After you've harvested the fruits, wash them in soapy water and rinse in clean water to which you've added a household disinfectant. The disinfectant will help control organisms that cling to the shell.

Now spread the gourds out on several layers of newspaper in a warm, dry place to allow evaporation of the surface moisture, to let the skin harden and to set the color. This process will take about a week. During that time rotate the fruits often so they will dry uniformity.

The next step is to wipe the gourds clean, then place them in a warm, dry but dark room to cure for three to four more weeks.

After the gourds are cured, you may want to give them a coat of wax, shellac or varnish. Several applications of water-base wax, each followed by a brushing with a soft cloth, will accentuate the natural color and produce a slight gloss. The waxing is an inexpensive and quick treatment.

Nickel, copper, gold and silver are the principal metals used for making coins.

do you remember?

Do you remember the first time you listened to a sea shell? And when you watched a sunflower turn toward the sun? And when you tried to guess where the pot of gold was at the end of the rainbow? Life is full of sweet mysteries for the young. Do you remember?

In fact, life reveals even more sweet mysteries as we grow older. When we think of these things, the mysteries of life, of God's care of us, of the wonders of the universe—you know, that's a way of praying! Yes, just thinking about God.

Fortunately, too, we have the Church—your church—a place to contemplate such things, to pray, to ask questions, and give thanks to Almighty God. Go to the church of your choice this Sunday. There you will find some of the answers . . . to some of these wondrous mysteries.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

150 Does Registered for State Convention in TRF

Mrs. Angela Speltz, Albert Lea, Elected 1963 State President

More than 150 members of the B. P. O. Does in Minnesota attended the 13th Annual state convention held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls. Presiding over the convention sessions was Mrs. Ferne Williams of this city, state president for the 1961-1962 year. Albert Lea was selected as the site for next year's state convention.

Mrs. Angela Speltz of Albert Lea was elected state president for the coming year at the Saturday business session. Other state officers elected at the session were Mrs. Beulah Pihale, Mankato, vice president; Mrs. Bernice Looker, Thief River Falls, secretary; and Mrs. Ruth Degrugillier, International Falls, treasurer.

Special guests at the convention included Mrs. Iola Barnard, Idaho Falls, Idaho, supreme president; M. J. Haack, Bemidji, state Elks exalted ruler; Floyd Spence, Crookston, district deputy grand exalted ruler, Minnesota North; and Ed Hamerski, Minneapolis, past exalted ruler of the local Elks lodge and banquet speaker Saturday evening.

Special Awards

Two special presentations were made at the Saturday evening banquet. A check for $100 was presented by the local Does drove to the Elks lodge in appreciation for assistance in staging the state convention. The donation was stipulated for use by the lodge's favorite charity. Presentation of a $100 check by the state, Does organization was made to the state Elks Youth Camp. Mrs. Bernice Looker made the first presentation to Edwin Broughton while Mrs. Thelma Coon of Rochester made the second presentation to Ole Engelstad, secretary of the local lodge and member of the youth committee.

About $40 collected in a "coin march" during the convention was received by the local Does and will be contributed by the Thief River Falls drove to the Pennington-Red Lake Association for Retarded Children for use in its program in these two counties. Assistance for retarded children is one of the Does projects in this city.

Floor show entertainment featuring local talent was provided in twice nightly performances at Friday and Saturday night dances. A general Polynesian theme was followed for the convention with appropriate dress and decorations.

All Incumbents Named To New One-Year Terms

All incumbent members of the Marshall county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee were reelected at the annual meeting held last week in the board room of PKM Electric Cooperative in Warren. A total of 35 out of 36 delegates were in attendance.

Relected were Edwrad A. Johnson, Warren, chairman; Marcel Dahl, Stephen, vice chairman; Francis Haack, Grygla, regular member; Luther Anderson, Grygla, first alternate; and August Nybladh, Stephen, second alternate. Luther Anderson was elected to preside over the county convention.

"Victory Drive"

GOP Slate Visits City on Thursday

Thief River Falls was one of more than 60 stops for Minnesota Republican campaignerst on a six-day whirlwind tour of the state as they appeared in this city Thursday. The 1,200 mile trip through 25 Minnesota counties was the first phase of the GOP's "Victory Drive" project.

Governor Elmer L. Anderson headed the group which included the entire slate seeking election on the Republican ticket. Others were C. Donald Peterson, candidate for lieutenant governor; Norbert A. McCrady, candidate for secretary of state; Stafford King, state auditor; Val Bjornson, state treasurer; Robert Kunzig, candidate for attorney general; and Robert M. "It is the first time in recent Minnesota political history," stated Robert Forsythe, state GOP chairman, "that the entire state candidate ticket including the governor has ever undertaken such a major project to bring the party's position and its candidates to the streets and homes of the state's citizens."

Following stops in Thief River Falls, Baudette, Warren, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Ada on Thursday, the group made key stops on Friday at Moorhead, Mahnomen, Erskine, Fosston, Bagley and Bemidji. DuPont Man Speaks to Lions Sept. 26

Wyatte DeLoache to Deal with Economic Problems

Wyatte F. DeLoache, Midwest manager of the DuPont company's extension division, and a widely known speaker, will speak on "The Menace of the Misinformed" at the Lions club luncheon Wednesday noon in the Elks club rooms. He will point out the dangers resulting from economic misinformation about many vital areas.

De Loache says that America's long-term danger stems less from some outside enemy than from our own diminishing regard for the principles which made this nation great.

A former newspaperman, Mr. DeLoache has been with Du Pont since 1940 in a variety of assignments in the field of public relations. He now makes his headquarters in Chicago.

$1,300 Stolen In Robbery at Piggly Wiggly

Daylight Theft Noted from Office Shortly After Noon Saturday

More than $1,300 in currency was taken from the safe in the balcony office of the Piggly Wiggly supermarket in Thief River Falls on Saturday during the morning or noon lunch period. Silver and checks were apparently left intact in the daylight robbery.

Unusual circumstances surround the theft which is being investigated by the Thief River Falls police department. Gordon Ballingrud and Otis Wold, partners in the operation of the store, were both away at the time of the robbery. Ballingrud was out of town and Wold was confined to bed with a severe cold.

Clifford Vigness, assistant store manager, had left the store about 11:30 a. m. for his noon lunch period and noted the theft shortly after his return to the store about 12:30 p. m. Under ordinary circumstances the office is either occupied or under observation. It was unattended at the time of the theft and no visitors were noted.

Auto Accidents In City Result In $550 Damage

Two Drivers Are Cited for Traffic Violations by City Police Dept.

Two auto accidents and a theft of hubcaps were reported by the Thief River Falls police department over the weekend. Damage estimates to the four cars involved in the two accidents totaled $550 with citations issued in both cases.

At about 8:10 a. m. on Saturday, a car driven by Roger Krogen of Moorhead was traveling north on Main Ave. N. and attempting to pass a car driven by Ray Ose, rt. 4, TRF, when the Ose car started a left turn near 13th street. The collision resulted in about $200 damage to the Krogen car and $250 damage to the Ose vehicle. Ose was tagged by the police department for making an improper turn.

At about 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, a car driven by Thorval Hamness of Strathcona was traveling south on Riverside avenue and skidded around the curve on Zeh street, crashing into a parked car owned by Julius Ingvalson of Euclid and parked on the east side of the road. About $100 damage was done to the Hamness car and no apparent damage to the Ingvalson vehicle. Hamness was cited for careless driving.

Police are also investigating the theft of four hubcaps from a 1962 Chevrolet parked at 214 Markley av. N. on Saturday evening. The hubcaps are valued at about $40.

RITES were held this afternoon from the Community Methodist church for Ole L. Ihle, pioneer resident who died Thursday morning. During his nearly 60 years of residence in Thief River Falls, he had served as sheriff 12 years and also was a former city alderman.

Rites Held Today for Ole L. Ihle, 83, Pioneer Resident

Served 12 Years as County Sheriff; Was Past Master of Local Masonic Lodge

Ole L. Ihle, a resident of Thief River Falls for nearly 60 years, passed away on Thursday morning, September 20, at Northwestern Hospital at the age of 83 years.

Funeral services were held today, Monday, at 2:00 p. m. in the Community Methodist church. The Rev. A. Dean Hendley officiated and interment was in the Greenwood Cemetery. The Green Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Ole Ihle was born on October 23, 1878 in Norway and came to this country with his parents, settling in the Newfolden community in 1880, where his parents homesteaded. He grew to manhood and attended school there. In 1902 he was united in marriage to Anna Gast and shortly after their marriage they moved to Thief River Falls where he had since resided.

His wife Anna passed away in 1944, and on October 1, 1951 he was married to Clara Seaverson. In his early years he was in the construction business including well drilling and house moving. In 1922 he was elected sheriff of Pennington county and served in that capacity until 1934 at which time he started a real estate business, which he operated until the time of his death.

Mr. Ihle was active in civic affairs. He served on the city council, and was very active in the Masonic lodge and in the Shrine; he was a past master of the Northern Lodge, and a trustee for many years. He was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge and also the Sons of Norway.

He is survived by his wife Clara and one daughter (Ruby) Mrs. Theodore Wold of Minneapolis; and three sons, Lee Ihle of Knox-

PARKING a car abruptly on the front steps of a house at 2:45 a.m. Friday resulted in $75 in fines being assessed to Darlene Thoreson of Thief River Falls. The car was owned by Julian Pokrzywinski of Warren, one of three passengers also riding in the car. The vehicle was traveling north on Highway 59 when the driver attempted a right turn on First street, jumped the curb on the north side of First street, crossed a lawn and crashed into the front steps of the Med Mercil house at 103 Pine ave. N. An estimated $200 damage was done to the Pokrzywinski car and $150 to the house where a stone flower box was smashed by the impact. Miss Thoreson appeared in municipal court Friday and was fined $50 for careless driving and $25 for not having a driver's license. Other passengers were not identified.

22 Pints in One Day!

Blood Bank Donors Respond To Life-Saving Emergency

by Marvin Lundin
City Editor

Response to calls for emergency blood donors by members of the Northern Blood Bank association resulted in the saving of a life at Northwestern Hospital recently. Coupled with skillful medical and nursing techniques and special duty performance by blood bank technicians, the situation proved the value of blood bank service.

The patient involved was admitted to the hospital in the early evening. Due to a massive internal hemorrhage, emergency surgery was performed for nearly two hours until about 5:35 a. m. The patient received a total of 15 pints of whole blood in approximately six hours — Seven pints prior to surgery, six during surgery and two pints following the operation.

One laboratory technician was called at 1:15 a. m. and another called at 2:40 a. m. to assist with drawing the blood needed. Eleven members of the blood bank were contacted and 10 reported to the hospital to donate blood between 2 and 5:30 a. m. One was unable to donate because of being a recent donor for a patient other than a blood bank member and this donation was not on record here.

More Donors Called

Technicians called and contacted 12 other donors later that day and drew 12 pints of blood for replacement of units used. Three technicians were on duty from 7 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. the day of the operation to bring the regular supply back up to normal. The nature of the case was such, that whole blood rather than plasma was a necessity.

This was not the first time that emergency cases have resulted in calls to donors to provide needed blood to patients, but it is believed to be the largest amount of whole blood needed for any one patient since the blood bank was organized.

Valuable Service

A case of this type indicates the value of a blood bank organization. Technicians have at their fingertips a record of donors available and blood types which may be needed. Members of the blood bank also serve as regular donors in rotation. In the past this has been about once every two years, to maintain a supply on hand at the hospital.

At present the Northern Blood Bank association has a total of 1,006 members, according to Douglas Kemmer, president of the association. Additional membership is being solicited by personal contact among local groups to bolster the total membership, and individuals are also encouraged to join the association.

Persons between the ages of 18 and 60 are eligible for membership if they meet health qualifications, and most people will. In return for donating blood when called upon, the member, his or her spouse, children and parents are eligible to receive blood needed for transfusions at any place and at any time at no charge for the blood used. This is made possible through affiliation with the Minneapolis War Memorial Blood Bank.

Persons interested in becoming members of the blood bank are encouraged to call Kemmer or the blood bank laboratory at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls. Being a member could save a life—possibly even your own.

Chamber General Meeting Reviews Current Topics

Talk turned to topics of current concern at the general meeting of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening at the Elks club rooms. Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Jobs, Inc., were also present at the gathering which was part of Chamber of Commerce Week in this city.

Roy Lee, chairman of the city council, and Arthur B. Christianson, alderman, presented their views on the proposal to bring natural gas to the city under either a franchise or municipal operation. Lee noted the possible tax relief which a successful municipal system could provide and added that such operation would fit in with the present municipal ownership of water, electricity and sewage departments.

Christianson asked the question of "whether or not the city is ready" for natural gas service. He called attention to the number of persons deriving a living from sales of other fuels, trucking and related business. If gas is to be received in the city, he favored a franchise operation.

Gene Belto appealed for support of the United Fund campaign, noting that it is a worthwhile project and eliminates a number of individual drives. It is impossible to force all agencies to participate, he said, since the Fund is a voluntary organization, but united support for the united Fund could result in all agencies seeking financial assistance to participate.

Reports were given by Warren McIntosh, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce; William LaFave, president of Jobs, Inc.; and Roland Larson, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The reports covered projects completed and work done during the year and plans for the future in Thief River Falls.

In other Chamber of Commerce Week activities, about 140 persons attended the Courtesy Day sessions at the Falls Theater. Films were shown on proper telephone procedure and customer courtesy and talks were given on effective methods for success in business.

Merchants sold a number of items at ridiculous prices through the number-matching promotion which was part of L. P. A. days. Last Monday's Times and the Shopper published on Tuesday carried consecutive numbers which entitled shoppers to attempt matching them with numbers in city stores.

New 18-Month Course To Open December 3; HS Graduates Eligible

Applications are now being accepted for the next aircraft mechanics course offered by the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school. Training will begin on December 3 and the class is open to high school graduates and those with average mechanical ability may apply and expect to graduate if they apply themselves, according to Arnt Aune, director of the school.

Successful completion of 18 months training entitles the student to a certificate of graduation and permission to take the FAA examination for an A and P license. The course is approved by the Federal Aviation Agency.

Application forms and further information may be obtained by writing to the director of the area vocational-technical school Thief River Falls, Minn.

St. Jospeh's Catholic Church of Oslo was the scene recently of the wedding of Miss Arlene Pokrzywinski to Norris Thune, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Thune of this city. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Thune of Oslo.

Officiating at the nuptials was Father Edward Harold. Music for the nuptial high mass was furnished by Mrs. Maynard Fanier at the organ.

The bride's gown was floor-length with flowing cathedral train. It was simply styled, with scalloped scoop neckline and long sleeves. She wore a short veil held in place by a pearl crown, and carried beige orchids on her prayerbook.

Attendants to the bride were Mrs. Jerry Pokrzywinski of Grand Forks, N. D. as matron of honor; Mrs. Marlan Pokrzywinski of Crookston; the groom's sister, Arlene Thune, of Red Lake Falls, and Yvonne Rgoalla of Warren.

Attending the groom were the bride's brother, Jerry Pokrzywinski, as best man; groomsmen were another brother of the bride, Marlan Pokrzywinski; Ernie Thune and Dale Sevre, the latter two of this city.

Flower girl was Carolyn Pokrzywinski, the bride's niece, and little Myron Narlock, the bride's cousin, was ring-bearer.

A three-course dinner was served to approximately 250 guests at the church parlors following the ceremony. The parents of the bride were hosts.

Marie Peterson, Wayne Johnson Exchange Vows

In an August wedding at Our Savior's Lutheran Church of Virginia, Minn., Miss Marie Peterson pledged wedding vows with Wayne A. Johnson. Rev. Arthur Dale, formerly of Argyle, performed the ceremony before a large group of friends and relatives.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Peterson of Virginia, and of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson of Eveleth, formerly of Goodridge.

The altar was banked with baskets of yellow gladioli and mums, in a setting of ferns, and lit with tapers.

Wedding music was furnished by Mrs. H. McCullough of Virginia at the organ. She accompanied Miss Linda Ping in a vocal rendition of "Whither Thou Goest," "The Lord's Prayer," and, "O Perfect Love."

The bride, whom her father gave in marriage, wore a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace and silk organza over taffeta. Lace formed the basque bodice, which was fashioned with scalloped Sabrina neckline. Long sleeves tapered to a point over her wrists. The bridal veil was of imported silk illusion, elbow length, and was attached to a spray of silk orchids detailed with brilliants of French beads. Her bouquet was fashioned of white orchids and white mums.

She was attended by Misses Jeanette Mayknen and Laurel Ronkainen, both of Virginia, who wore gowns of fern green organza fashioned with shirred necklines, the shirring extending over the shoulders to form sleeves. The gowns were designed with full skirts. Short, circular veils of illusion were fastened with roses in the attendants' hair. They carried bouquets of yellow mums.

Attending the groom were Will Galliart of Dubuque, Ia., as best man, and Alvin Peterson, a brother of the bride, as groomsman. Samuel Moscatelli, Chisholm, and Homer Moscatelli, Duluth, seated the guests.

The mother of the bride chose a dress of blue chiffon, with which she wore white accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother wore a blue printed dress of dacron, with accessories of white, which she complemented with a corsage of yellow roses.

A reception was held at Miner's Memorial Building, Virginia, in the social rooms, for over 200 guests. Glads, sweet peas, and mums decorated the tables. The serving table featured a bridal cake.

Guests attending were from St. Paul, Aurora, Hibbing, Chisholm, Duluth, Eveleth, Canby, Minneapolis, Cherry, Gilbert, Two Harbors, Princeton, Thief River Falls and Goodridge.

Following their wedding trip to Minneapolis and other points in southern Minnesota, the couple are at home in Urbana, Ill.

The bride graduated from Virginia Jr. College and from Concordia college, Moorhead. She taught school in Minneapolis last year, and this term will teach in the Urbana, Ill. school system.

The groom is a graduate of Goodridge high school, later receiving his bachelor's degree in business and accounting from Concordia college, and his master's from the University of Illinois, where he is presently working toward his Ph. D. degree.

Dean Headley of Thief River Falls, formerly of Anoka, in a candlelight ceremony Aug. 16, at the Anoka Methodist church. The bridegroom's father performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by Rev. Paul E. Folkers and Rev. Russell Pierce. Soloist was Gloria Johnson, organist, Mrs. Frank Petersen.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white silk organza with bouffant skirt and chapel train. A beaded spray of flowers on the fitted bodice was repeated on the sheath front of the skirt. Her fingertip veil of imported silk organza fell from a crown of pearls and crystals and she carried three white orchids and ivy in a cascade arrangement.

Beverly Ranger, maid of honor and Joan Headley, bridesmaid, wore identical street-length dresses of hyacinth silk organza with matching headpieces and carried bouquets of off-white glamellias with foliage.

Mrs. DeJarlais, mother of the bride, wore a sheath dress of pastel pink Irish linen with corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations. Mrs. Headley, mother of the bridegroom, chose a beige chiffon and lace over taffeta sheath with corsage of yellow sweetheart roses and white carnations.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony.

The bride, a 1958 graduate of Anoka high school and 1962 graduate of Hamline university, will be employed as medical technologist with the medical laboratories at the University of Iowa, Iowa City. KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the kitchen of

MRS. CLIFF DAHLE

Busy? Unexpected company coming? The kids home from school with a doleful, "Hey, the cooky jar is empty"?

Relax, Mom. Give that hungry guy a rolling pin and let him go to work rolling our some graham crackers. While he's at this, start the first of your ingredients boiling, and in "jig-time" your dessert bars will be ready.

Junior'll love 'em. You hope there'll be enough left over for those guests. . . (Aren't you glad you made a double batch?)

Powder your nose. Flick off that apron; put on that company smile, and start the percolator. And, incidentally, thank Mrs. Cliff Dahle for coming up with the ready solution to your double-barreled problem. To be sure, you did have a bit of work in the meantime, but not much! and you chocolate marshmallow bars are so delicious!

CHOCOLATE MARSHMALLOW BARS

1 cup cream
2 cups white sugar
2 squares chocolate

Bring this to a boil and cook for about three minutes. Remove from heat and add 2 tablespoons butter and 1 tsp. vanilla. Let cool. Set(the pan on a tray of ice cubes to hurry the process.) When cool, add:

2 cups crushed graham crackers 1 cup chopped walnuts
1 pkg. miniature marshmallows

Mix well and spread into a large buttered pan. Pat down, chill, and cut into bars.

The Dahles have three children, Christie, Lori, and Jeffrey. Mrs. Dahle enjoys being a homemaker, but suggests in her letter that she is not averse to a few wife-saving food suggestions like the above.

Her husband is employed at the Tunberg Motor Company in this city. Their residence is listed as Holt.

A Summer in Greece . . .

Carole Ewing Studies Under Span Program

By Flora Allison,
Times Society Reporter

It has been given the name SPAN, (Student Project For Amity Among Nations), this program which is uniquely Minnesotan, and which is dedicated to the ideal that it is "Better to light one candle than to curse the darkness." One of our local girls, Miss Carole Ewing, was the SPANer who gave us the interview upon her return from Greece, where she put the project's aims into action this past summer, while furthering her studies. There she absorbed, first-hand, knowledge of other countries, their culture, and their people. And by living among them, she, in turn, gave them a new concept of America as it truly is.

Thirteen students went to Greece this summer; others journeyed to Nigeria, Africa, Morocco, also in Africa, and to Peru, So. America. Miss Ewing left for Greece early in June, flew from New York to Paris, proceeded by train to Italy, and from there to Greece by boat. She had applied for the privelege some 2½ months previously, scarcely daring to hope that she might be chosen.

We concur with the judges that the unaffected, completely natural warmth of this blonde girl made her an apt choice for "selling" America abroad.

The journey was not without incident: her first night in Europe, Miss Ewing lost the rest of her group. "European trains are on a tight schedule: when they say 8, they leave at 8, not a minute later." For some reason, the other students got onto the train in Paris, France, without her. "I just stood there helplessly, watching the train leave. My money was on it, my tickets, my passport. Without them, I could never get out of France." A man from Yugoslavia, seeing her plight, directed her (in good English) to the telegraph station. The Swiss-French border guards understood her college French, and she managed, after much pleading, to get onto another train. "I had no idea where I was going; it was 2:30 a. m. when I arrived to find that everyone ahead had been alerted, and my things were waiting for me there at the border."

Once in Greece, she went by train to Athens. "All the signs were in Greek, the people speaking only Greed. (Pardon our pun, but it "wasn't all Greek" to our Miss Ewing; she had studied Greek at the U of Minn.; it was one of the requirements for her selection. . .) "But I felt so lost; I just sat there like a statue, dumbfounded by it all. . It took 5½ hours to travel 100 miles; the Greeks do not have Diesel-powered trains. The whistle was the wildest thing, and it screamed so often: we stopped and started, stopped and started. The heat was oppressive. The people came aboard in droves, with chickens and other animals, huge trunks, jars of olive oil which they parked in the aisles. . .and they were always eating lunches, which they carried in brown paper bags. They held greasy, dripping meat on a stick, something like a shisk-kabob. . .and held their bread underneath to catch the grease."

"They eat beef, pork, lamb. No ham, wieners, or cold cuts, mostly roasted meat in cubes, and all of it horribly greasy." (Shish-kabob, with Grecian adaptations.)

At Petra, Greece, Carole was met by the family of the Greek girl who was an exchange student in Thief River Falls several years ago, and lived with the Ewings, Mary Demetrellous, her Grek "sister." There was a joyous greeting, and an overnight stay at the girl's home, with weekend visits occasionally in the weeks that followed.

Carole and a fellow-student rented an aprtment in Athens, "a very nice place, with hot and cold water (and a shower, which later went 'pffft'.") But it cost theme only a dollar a night! Carole had planned to pursue ART ("with capital letters") but found it not as easy as she had planned. She concentrated on national costumes, to earn her 12-quarter credits. The museum was her workshop. There she spent most of her mornings for seven weeks, doing research on the political, cultural, and religious significance behind the costums, taking to hundreds of people, many of them students, absorbing enough information to write her thesis.

The students took numerous side-trips, for they were entirely on their own. "But that term paper is to be anywhere from 60 to 200 typewritten pages, so you knew you had to make the best use of your time."

The girls dressed like the Greeks "sandals, no slacks . . only skirts." We assimilated their culture, even wearing bikinis like all the rest of them (and that included some tremendous women!) But we WOULD NOT condescend to wearing heels at the beach, like so many of their girls did!"

Carole's Impressions

Their reaction to the historic Greek ruins? "We were awed, naturally. It was tremendously impressive to stand amid the ruins of another civilization. In the Acropolis, the Parthenon, the Pantheon. . "

Miss Ewing got the impression that Greece is a land of austere poverty, for the most part. The poor are VERY poor; there are no middle clases. The people depend laregly in tourism; they have little industry, outside of agriculture, and little of that because of the mountainous terrain. American aid is essential to their economy; we consider it a necessary investment because of the strategic location of Grece, to keep it in the western column and out of Commie hands.

"I believe royalty in Greece is almost a thing of the past. The younger people tend to hold it in slight contempt. Only the older Greeks cling stubbornly to the past." (Carole thought the lavish wedding of Don Carlos and Princess Sophia an extravaganza, quite out of keeping with the country's poverty) The prime minister wields tremendous influence in government affairs. The people feel that America is far more democratic than their own country. They have some misconceptions of our country, as do, she felt, most Europeans, who think us to be filty-rich. "And I suppose that, judging by their standards, we probably are"

The young people do not take religion very seriously, Miss Ewing fels. There are churches (largely of the Byzantine rite) on every block, practically, but you find mostly old women in them, she said.

"In Athens, the old is giving way to the new. Building is going on everywhere - but all of it UP; there is no room for building OUT - the people all live in apartments; there are few yards. They have no TV, but that will come—perhaps next year. Most of Europe has it, you know."

The young people are being well educated. Among the older generation there is much lack of education, but the children and young folks study very hard; their schedule is terribly rigid, their curriculum tough.

The food Miss Ewing found different from ours; decidedly! She was ill from the heat and the richness of the diet, and lost considerable weight while there. "The meat is so greasy; the sweets dreadfully sweet . . . and gooey. Dessert is usually fruit — There is fruit in great variety and abundance. But when there is dessert, it is usually a rich pastry baked in layers, the layers filled with honey, sugar, and nuts, respectively. Their mainstays are bread, fish, and fruit." The bread seemed to Carole, under-baked. In the villages, it is baked in community ovens; in the cities, the bakery supplies it. Most Greek kitchens have no ovens; they cook on a Bunsen-burner type of stove. Furnishings are extremely simple; the essentials, and that is about all.

Their stay in Greece over, the girls did some sight-seeing on their own. "We loved Paris; doesn't everybody?" Carole commented. "In Switzerland, we stayed at the foot of the Matterhorn, and did some mountain climbing. In Austria we stayed at a German resort. We were the first Americans to have stayed there." They took a 45-minute ride to the mountain-top in a chair lift. . In England and Scotland they hitch-hiked, over 1400 miles. "It was out of one car, into a truck, and right back into another car."

They flew home on a chartered prop-job. "20 hours from Europe to Idelwilde in New York City! It was awful. Then we were informed there our flight was canceled due to bad weather, so we waited there a day. After three days sitting in our clothes — we did little sleepin, — we looked frighful when we got off the jet at Minneapolis."

The students met "many people — all of them so wonderful, and all of whom we'd love to see again. We hope we made a lot of friends for America. By being ourselves, I think we corrected a lot of the false impressions they had concering our countrymen."

Carole wants to go back — and stay a long time. But, wonderful as Europe is, she wouldn't want to live there permanently, of course. "It's an adventure to live there, but who. . .who could give up America?"

HOME AGAIN for a brief stay after a summer spent as a student in Greece is Carole Ewing, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Ewing of Thief River Falls. She is shown with a number of colored prints of Greek costumes which will be a part of her thesis. The dolls shown are indicative of native dress costumes, the man shown wearing a "fustanella" which is still used by palace guards. The prints were given to Carole by the Benaki museum in Athens where she worked during the summer. The skirt she is wearing is also of Greek design and the colorful weaving in the background has been done on carrying bags "which are mostly made for sale to tourists."

SURE IS FUN TO RECEIVE LETTERS from readers when they have items of interest that they believe should be published. Most of the writers of such news notes have a pretty good idea and many have a keen perception of what we would or would not use. Just the other day we received the following clipping from the Minneapolis Tribune "Reporting at Large" column written by Bob Murphy.

"Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gagnon of Minneapolis were riding a cab in New York and the driver asked them where they were from. When they told him Minnesota he said he once worked for a garment factory that used to ship its product, among other places, to Thief River Falls, Minn. The name fascinated him. He asked about its size, its location and so on and said that he'd planned to spend his honeymoon there but couldn't afford it at the time. "Before I die," he wound up, "I hope we can visit Thief River Falls. What a name!"

Comments Mrs. Marlene Austad Cecka of Minneapolis, sender of the clipping. "I think this is worthy of a comment in the Times. The people of Thief River should be proud that a cab driver in New York City would like to vacation in Thief River Falls 'before he dies'. THAT—my dear—is fame a long ways away, and not even from a native of Thief River, as I am."

We cannot accept all this without adding a word of hope that the cab driver in question someday makes the trip to Thief River Falls. We are sure that if he did so he would not only be able to say, "What a name!" but also, "What a town!" He would find a far different personal spirit than in the big city, but we would be willing to bet the friendliness, courtesy and personal warmth which is characteristic of our fair city would be a welcome change to him.

Speaking of readers (bless them all), greetings today go to an avid reader of this weekly literary masterpice. She is Laura Vogt of Cincinnati, Ohio. She is an across-the-street neighbor of Mrs. Barbara Cannizzaro (daughter of Mrs. Harold Elofson of this city) and reads Barbara's Times as regularly and religiously as a transplanted old-home-towner. This week she gets a chance to see her name in print.

"I hear you can get an indication of a person's sanity by asking a few simple questions," gushed the free-loading matron as she cornered the famous psychologist. "Yes, very simple ones," he replied. "Such as: Captain Cook made three around-the-world voyages and died on one of them. Which one was it?" She blushed, "But doctor, I'm no good at history."

Understand the following essay was turned in by a local grade schooler assigned to write briefly on the subject of her choice: "My subjek is Ants. Ants is two kinds, inseks and lady uncles. Sometimes they live in holes and somtimes they crall into the sugar bole, and somtimes they live with there maried sisters. That is all I know about Ants."

Interesting Opinion: One reason so many children are seen on the streets at night is because they're afraid to stay home alone.

IS THIS INJUSTICE?

Behold the mighty sportsman
Bedecked in high-priced clothes,
His cap tipped at an angle and
New boots around his toes.

A shiny station wagon
Will whisk him where he wills
And his double-barreled magnum
Has a maximum of frills.

He owns a boat and motor,
Paid a big price for his dog,
Maybe leases half a section
For his private shooting bog.

With proper preparation
And a fair amount of luck
He can fill his daily limit
(Which this year is just one duck).

By Edwin Stengelson

This is the strange story of a famous poem which was begun during the Dark Ages and wasn't finished until more than 700 years later." It begins:

Wake! For the Sun, who scattered into flight
The Stars before him from the Field of Night,
Drives night along with them from Heav'n and strikes
The Sultan's turret with a shaft of light.

The story begins in Baghdad some time between 1050 and 1125. Three friends of humble estate were able to perform some signal service for the caliph. He sent for them to come to the palace and there told them that as a reward for what they had done, each would be given one wish, and whatever it was, it would be granted.

One asked for wealth, and got it. The second wished for appointment to high political office. He was given a post just below the rank of grand vizier. But the third said:

"All I desire, your majesty, is permission to occupy, unchallenged, unhindered and undisturbed, for as long as I shall live, the space beneath the great tree which grows outside the wall just beside the gate to the palace, and there carry on my trade of tent-maker."

The caliph said: "Yours is, indeed, a modest request, considering how much more you might have asked, but if such is truly your wish, it is granted."

Thereupon, the man moved his materials and tools to the great tree and resumed his briefly interupted trade of tent-maker.

Folk passing through the palace gate, who had heard of the caliph's gift, stopped and talked with him. They found him a man of singular charm and intelligence. Of the considerable number who thus stopped, there were many who came back. Betwen these and the tentmaker, friendship developed. Ere long, he had a group of friends who visited him regularly. They would sit in a semi-circle on the ground before him, listening as he expounded his philosophy of life or read his poems, the while he busily plied his needle.

He died in 1123, and for seven centuries or more lay in his tomb, forgotten . . .

. . . Until the 1800s, when Edward FitzGerald, a well-educated, wealthy young Englishman, ran across a fragment of one of the tentmaker's poems, which had, somehow, been preserved. Deeply impressed by the quality of the poem, he began a search for others, or fragments of others, by the tentmaker. Finally, when he had obtained all which seemed still to exist, he set to work.

He translated the material into English. Then, adding much of his own, he built the whole into a single poem. When published, it met instant acceptance throughout the literary world. The tentmaker's name became famous, as did, for the time, Edward FitzGerald's. The first poem was followed by four revisions, all together now known as the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth translations, respectively.

Then, in 1883, FitzGerald died. It's a strange quirk of fate that while the tentmaker's name, which had been forgotten for more than 700 years, is today well and widely known throughout the West, the name of the true creator of the poem — Edward FitzGerald—who had spent most of his adult life on it, has been all but forgotten.

Such is the story of "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayam."

4-H Safety Education Helps Cut Mishaps in County, Survey Shows

Safety education has helped to cut down accidents among 4-H members in Pennington county, but more emphasis is needed on organized safety programs for older members to prevent personal injury and property losses.

These are among conclusions in a one-year study conducted by County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk among 421 club members in the county.

The study revealed a decline in accidents as 4-H'ers remained in the safety project. Those with no safety training or only one year in the safety project sustained the most accidents — 56 per cent. Of the young people involved in accidents, 29 per cent were never enrolled in safety.

One member out of every five reported an accident. Medical treatment was needed in nearly half of the cases. Only two accidents were reported in which no one was hurt. More than one individual was hurt on the average, in each accident. And one out of five accidents involved machine loss or damage. In 16 per cent of the accidents in which hospital or medical attention was needed, the cost was over $100. In 38 per cent of the cases where machinery was involved, property damage amounted to more than $100.

Eight- to 10-year-olds had the fewest accidents. Although 24 per cent of the 4-H members were in this age group, they had only 8 per cent of the accidents. Older members had the most accidents. Though 17- to 21-yar-olds accounted for only 12 per cent of the total number, they sustained 27 per cent of the accidents — the highest proportional accident rate for any group.

Most accidents occurred in the farm home. Next most frequent place of accidents was the farm, followed by the school area and then the street or highway.

Stepping on or striking objects and falls were responsible for nearly half of the accidents. Causes of other accidents were attributed to motor vehicles, machines, animals, burns and hand tools.

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson
Manager Chamber of Commerce

The fall stimulus—what is it? Is it the air, the anticipation of the hunting season, the magnificent change into a different season or what? Judging from the way people have been reacting lately I have come to the conclusion that it can only be one thing—LPA!! The LPA promotion of course. It is very stimulating, exciting and unique to the point of being ingenious.

In fact, almost every retail business in Thief River Falls will be participating in this promotion in one way or another. And almost all of the folks in our trade area will participate by shopping for something here in town. Everybody is going to be a part of LPA and that is what the fall stimulus I sthat we all feel. We know that we are stirring and it is because of LPA. LPA means Lowest Prices Anywhere and that is just what TRF businesses mean. They aren't giving anything away but they're coming so close to it that you might just as well figure they are.

Everybody should take part in LPA by shopping and by looking to see if your lucky number matches up with one in one of the stores. It is posible that your number is worth a good many dollars and you surely want to take advantage of it if it is.

To digress just a bit we have to say that there are some who question the merits of such a promotion. To those we can only say that selling merchandise is good for the business community and buying merchandise at an agreeable price is most palatable from the consumer's standpoint. In this day and age of competitive prices, a businessman must operate a high volume turnover. This is healthy for his business and healthy for the consumer as well. We also like to see people shop here who presently shop elsewhere. Their spending is good for our local economy and as a result we will be able to build a better trade center to better serve our area. Therefore, promotion is basic, it is vital, and it is productive for the good of everyone in the community.

With these thoughts you will feel quite significant when you Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota, Thief River Falls.

His, All Alone

Undoubtedly the present administration in Washington inherited many of its problems, including the results of many stupid errors. And no doubt the next administration will inherit many problems created by the mistakes of the present officials.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman is not responsible for everything that has gone wrong in his department during his term of office. But in view of his general claims to perfection it might be well occasionally to remind him of some of his errors.

Last year Freeman encouraged farmers to reduce their acreage of corn and other feed grains in order to cut down on the surplus. But he encouraged them to plant soybeans instead, because at that time there was no surplus of soybeans. In order to get them to switch he increased the price support for soybeans from $1.85 to $2.30 per bushel.

Well, it worked. The farmers grew more soybeans. The output increased from 555 million bushels in 1960 to 693 billion in 1961, and the forecast for this year is a record 703 million bushel crop—which, of course, is much more than we need. Now Freeman has another surplus to worry about.

This particular headache is his own hangover. His, all alone.

A Big Question

Back in the Emily Post world of etiquette the gentleman would without question give his street-car seat to a standing lady. Street cars now are pretty much a thing of the past but apparently the question is still with us. At any rate, Amy Vanderbilt, who aspires to the position of authority once held by Emily Post, has recoznized it to the extent that she has descended from the 400 to the 4,000,000 in order to bring up a logical answer. She has been spending much time riding around in New York buses trying to find ways of improving manners in this debatable field.

According to the Christian Science Monitor, "She proved herself to be approaching the task with no misconceptions on current custom when she told reporters she didn't think men should give up their seats to ladies unless the latter were pregnant, elderly or laden with packages or children. She reasoned that competitive career women should just take their turn with career men at getting seats.

The Monitor does not complain because Miss Vanderbilt has decided to examine other fields to try stimulating less contentious forms of courtesy. "But" says the Monitor:

> "We object to her giving even tacit support to the notion that men—& even athletic teen-age boys—can have the Vanderbilt seal of approval for staying forever glued to bus and subway seats (which they have often gotten by pushing ahead of others in the boarding line). Such a notion is but one step from the reverse notion that the man, or youth, who does rise for a lady is some kind of traitor to his sex—is, in fact, breaking a rule of the modern etiquette.
> "We'd like to see the whole process left optional, so that the man who is not too tired to yield his seat—caught by the quaint idea that it might make him feel good to do so—doesn't turn out instead to feel sheepish under the glowering stares of other males."

Our guess is that whatever Miss Vanderbilt thinks about this isn't going to influence the conduct of the young fellows to any great extent. Most of them probably will conduct themselves as they were taught to conduct themselves in their own homes by their own parents.

Our First Obligation

After a two-day tour of space installations last week, President Kennedy answered the criticism of those who think we are spending too much in our outer space program. He told a St. Louis audience that "this nation can't afford to be anything less than first in space. We must be bold, and daring and unflinching," he said. And he stoutly maintained:

> "I regard the decision last year to shift our efforts in space from low to high gear as among the most important decisions I expect to make in the office of president.
> "The eyes of the world and its restless millions now look up and out to space, to the moon and the planets beyond. And we have vowed that they shall not see it governed by a hostile flag or conquest, but by a banner of peace."

Them's brave words son, but we still think that our first obligation to the next generation is a solvent government and a healthy economy. Being first to the Moon isn't going to be a legacy of much value for that next generation if they are going to be burdened with a top-heavy mortgage.

The Kennedy boys haven't had much experience in paying bills with bank overdrafts. They all are handy with fancy words but they don't know what it is to owe money and not have the wherewithal to pay the bills.

And so we do not agree with the President. Being first in space is not the most important goal of our generation. Our first obligation to that next generation is a healthy fiscal condition, giving to them a fair chance to make further advances for the betterment of mankind.

Meany's Arithmetic

George Meany, president of the A.F.L.-C.I.O., justifies his demand for a thirty-five hour week as a way of securing full employment. He says:

> "We are going to fight for the thirty-five-hour week, not because American workers are lazy but because it would create 6,000,000 more jobs in private industry when it is fully applied."

We are sure Mr. Meany's concern for the unemployed is sincere and it is nice of him to offer a share-the-work program. There is just one little thing wrong with the program he suggests, that would keep it from accomplishing its benevolent purpose. That little defect is his insistence that the men who cut their working week to thirty-five hours should continue to draw pay for forty hours.

This of course would result in a hefty per-hour wage increase and a correspondingly large increase in production costs. Higher production costs would mean higher prices. Higher prices would reduce the buying power of the dollar, resulting in reduced consumer demand which would reduce production, which would offset the temporary gains in the number of persons employed.

That would be the effect on our economy if we were isolated from the rest of the world. But we are not isolated, and foreign trade is a very imporant part of our industrial strength. Such an increase in production costs as Meany proposes would further reduce our ability to compete in international commerce.

His proposal, ridiculously unrealistic, indicates that he has little respect for the capacity of the American worker to think straight. His own arithmetic is surprisingly bad.

Conspiracy in Hot Dogs?

(New York Herald Tribune)

Is there a price-fixing plot in the field of kosher frankfurters and frankfurter rolls? An accusation to this effect has been made by a Federal Grand Jury, which has returned indictments against several wholesalers and trade associations. It is a proceeding which will be followed with profound interest by all who have tasted a frankfurter, whether kosher or not, and all who have nibbled a roll, be it hot dog or hamburger.

For the very thought of a frankfurter trust, a wienie cartel, a sauerkraut syndicate or a mustard monopoly, is enough to make a believer in the American system flinch. True, the hot dog represents a certain standardization in shape and in content. Whether it is known as a Coney Island chicken, a Polo Ground puppy or by some other affectionate and endearing term, it is likely to be built on the same longitudinal axis, possess tapering ends and a curving center, and be warm and spicy to the taste. A hot dog is, or should be, a hot dog the world over.

But this is not to say that variation is out of the question. Of hot dogs, as of other objects of human longing, it can be said that some like them big, some like them small; some like them with, some like them without. And price, certainly, would seem to be as likely an area as any for diversity. The government may have sunk its teeth into something here.

Dropping Tomatoes

(Milwaukee Journal)

U.S. agricultural department has come up with an astounding discovery: If a tomato is dropped on a hard surface it will be damaged more than if it is dropped on foam rubber.

Furthermore, says a press release announcing the results of a study on bruising injuries to tomatoes, "injury was found to be cumulative . . . that is, when tomatoes were dropped two or more times, the damage was found to extend to more and more internal parts." A tomato dropped often enough becomes inedible.

This all sounds reasonable. And the claim is that the information is of scientific value. The experiment was conducted to find out how tomatoes can best be packed to arrive on the consumer's table in the best possible shape.

The press release didn't provide one piece of information that taxpayers might be interested in: What grade does a scientist have to reach in civil service before he's qualified to bounce tomatoes?

Borrowed Nonsense

At a party, two men who had not been introduced, struck up a conversation.

"Gosh, I'm all in," said one after a while. "I think I will flirt with some good looking dame so my wife will take me home."

Gov. Elmer L. Andersen

Recreational Productive Forests.

When I became Governor, Minnesota ranked 9th among the states in forest area, 20th in productivity from that area. Obviously here was opportunity for economic growth — and also a way to take up the slack of unemployment in northern Minnesota.

We quickly brought to conclusion a plan for long range land exchange between our state and the federal forest service to consolidate ownership, improve management, and end the checkerboard of ownership that has prevailed for so many years. Now the state can intensify development in concentrated areas and expand ownership on such projects as the Minnesota Hardwoods Forest in southeastern Minnesota.

A second major project is a detailed land use survey now complete for four counties which should be extended to all counties. In forest areas recommendations will be based on the multiple use concept — soil and water conservation, wild life habitat, public access to waters, camp sites as well as sustained annual yield of forest products.

I suggest we institute state payments to counties and school districts to encourage cooperation between state and county government on state land acquisition for wet lands, wild life management and recreational park, camp site and public access use. Counties now naturally resist loss of taxable land for statewide use.

Likewise I favor state payments in lieu of taxes to counties so it will be easier for them to encourage greater use of auxiliary forest and tree growth tax laws. We need to provide reasonable tax relief to small land owners producing trees. Private industry is doing much to develop our forest products activity and should be encouraged to do more.

State tree nursery production is now at an all time peak and should be further increased to 100,000,000 trees per year, sold at cost for forest production purposes. Fire protection should be sufficient to hold losses at no more than one-tenth of one per cent.

We need more research on disease and insect control, to reduce the losses now seven times that from fire. Likewise we should expand research on wood utilization, wood chemistry and basic research. Market research will gear production to sales potential. Each year Minnesota imports as much wood as is harvested here — we need to recapture our own market.

Several miles of forest trails and roads should be added each year to facilitate movement of logs to main roads as well as for hunter and hiker use.

Our new conservation education program is important to reach young people with a practical knowledge, understanding and appreciation of Minnesota's unequalled outdoor resource.

I believe we should establish youth conservation camps to provide summertime wholesome outdoor employment for young people and to use their energy and ability to move this comprehensive recreational forestry program forward.

Financing will be aided by increased income to the state thru improved management of our forest lands, and through user fes for camp sites and other facilities People are willing to pay a fair price for good facilities.

Another week we'll discuss some specific park proposals, another phase of Minnesota's current exciting natural resource development program.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

HOPEFUL candidates for state offices are these Republican campaigners who visited Thief River Falls Thursday morning. Left to right are Val Bjornson, state treasurer; Robert M. (Bob) Johnson, candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner; C. Donald Peterson, candidate for lieutenant governor; Robert Kunzig, candidate for attorney general; and Norbert A. McCrady, candidate for secretary of state. Also on the tour was Stafford King, veteran state auditor, who has held a state office longer than any other official in the history of Minnesota. In addition to Thief River Falls, the candidates stopped Thursday in Baudette, Warren, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Ada.

Prowlers Defeat EGF Friday Evening 22-7

Football fans who were in attendance at the Lincoln high school's athletic field on Friday night witnessed a typical East Grand Forks vs. Prowlers "bruiser" as coach Joe Mrkonich's blue-and-gold squad scored a 22-7 win over the East Siders in a Northwest conference tilt, and Prowler Homecoming feature.

The Prowlers will continue in conference competition this week as they travel to Roseau on Friday night for a game against coach Ray Kavanagh's Rams.

In Friday night's encounter the Prowlers, defending the north goal and gaining the benefit of a brisk wind, accepted the game-opening kickoff, with Ron Olson making a 10-yard return to the Prowlers' 30-yard line. In eleven running plays the Prowlers picked up five first downs and a touchdown, with Paul Klungness cutting through left tackle for eleven yards and a touchdown. Klungness came out around left end for the conversion point to give the locals a 7-0 lead.

The East Siders, after receiving the ensuing kickoff, and with Bob Kobetsky doing the bulk of the ground-gaining, moved from their own 35-yard line to the Prowlers' 30-yard line, where the locals held four downs.

The Prowlers, with Klungness, John Aune, and Steve Mittelstadt chewing up the yards, drove for three first downs to the East Grand Forks' 20-yard line as the period ended.

Opening the second period, Mittelstadt picked up two yards over left tackle, and Aune drove center for six yards. The Prowlers quarterback then slanted around left end for twelve yards and a touchdown. Mittelstadt's try for point, on a plunge, failed.

East Grand Forks unleashing a passing attack, with Lynn Stauss hitting targets Norm Bolstad and Bob Kobetsky, reeled off four consecutive first downs only to have the scoring threat halted by Aune's interception of a Green Wave pass on the Prowlers' 9-yard line.

With the score 13-0 in favor of the Prowlers opening the second half, coach Ron Thompson's East Grand Forks club took possession of the ball on their 40-yard line after a short Prowler kickoff and in nine plays carried for a touchdown. The scoring play was a Stauss to Bolstad pass completion that gained 29 yards. Kobetsky hit the line for the extra point and the Prowler lead was pared to six points.

The Prowlers tallied a touchdown in the early minutes of the fourth period when they culminated a drive that started from a mid-field recovery of an East Side fumble. Klungness, on a left tackle cutback, drove seven yards for the TD, and Mittelstadt marked up the extra point on a line plunge, boosting the Prowlers into a 20-7 lead.

The game's final points were tallied on a safety when, after holding the Prowlers for downs on the East Grand Forks' 4-yard line, Dave Lohn, on an attempted sweep around left end, was tackled behind the goal-line, giving the Prowlers their 22-7 point margin.

The Prowlers racked up twenty first downs, all by rushing, during the game, while East Grand Forks had thirteen first downs, with four gained by rushing, seven by passes, and two on penalties.

It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN MINNESOTA, hearing of the gallant fighting of the 1st Minnesota regiment against the Confederacy, during the Peninsular campaign, folks all over the state toasted their troops' bravery with foaming steins of beer.

For then as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides real enjoyment for folks in Minnesota, and a good living for the employees and suppliers of the Brewing Industry.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

QUARTERBACK for the Thief River Falls Prowlers is John Aune, senior letterman and veteran performer for Coach Joe Mrkonich' football squad. Aune had a busy night Friday in the Prowlers' homecoming victory over East Grand Forks, carrying the ball constantly for good gains, scoring a touchdown on a 12-yard end run and stopping an East Grand Forks touchdown bid with a pass interception at the Prowler nine-yard line. Friday night's win was the first contest in Northwest conference play for the Prowlers who ground out a 22-7 victory over a strong Little Green Wave team.

Joey Poole, making his debut as a member of the Elks Club bowling team of the Tuesday night Business league, racked up a huge 690-pin three-game series last week.

Joey, rolling as the anchor man on the Elks squad, had games of 213-223-254, for his 690-pin total, averaging 230 pins per game. In his three-game series, Joey had only one open frame, that being a blow in the 8th frame of his second game. And during his series he crushed Carl Onnka's pins for twenty strikes, getting four strikes in his first games, and eight strikes in both the second and third games.

The Elks, giving up a 98-pin handicap to Carriere's Cities Service team, won two of the three games. The Elks dropped the first game, 873 to 863, but came back to win the second, 826 to 783, and the third, 936 to 877. And the Elks added an extra point to their league total by their 2625-pin aggregate to the Cities Service 2533-pin total.

Joey will be in action with the Elks again on Tuesday night. No admission charge.

Why the Asterisks?

On Sunday, in the Los Angeles Dodgers 156th game of the season, Maury Wills stole his 96th and 97th bases of the season, breaking Ty Cobb's mark of 96 stolen bases. Cobb set this mark while a member of the Detroit Tigers in 1915, when the league schedule was 154 games. Wills' mark will be qualified by an MEL stating that it was made in a 162-game schedule.

But in this 1915 season of 154 games, the Detroit club played a pair of tie-score games, and these games were re-played, with the result that Cobb was given the benefit of a 156-game schedule. His 96 steals should carry a notation or qualification, too.

With six games of the schedule remaining to be played by the Dodgers, and all at home against Houston and St. Louis, it is probable that Wills will reach the 100 mark in steals. A remarkable record.

And speaking of baseball. The Linesman for the East Grand Forks vs. Prowlers football game here on Friday night was Clark (Corky) Johnson of Bemidji. Corky, a righthanded pitcher with the league-champion El Paso Sun Kings of the Texas league, is continuing his college education by attending Bemidji State college during the off season. Corky, who was given a bonus when signed to a San Francisco Giants baseball contract some years ago, isn't entirely happy as a Giant baseball chattel. And he wouldn't have any objections to being traded to another organization, but such prospects appear quite slim.

For the Record

The 'Sniff and Snort' golf tournament, a closed affair with the entries limited to four players, was won by the Nick Carlson and Bob Craik duo. Bob had a score of 48, while Nick came in with a 49, giving the pair an aggregate of 97 strokes.

Finishing in the runner-up spot in the four-man tournament, were Lloyd Brunsberg and Art Langseth, who carded an aggregate of 106 strokes. Brunsberg scored a 51, while Langseth, counting his whiff, had a 55.

Clair (Shorty) O'Hara was the tournament's umpire, and he forced the players to putt out all putts. No concessions were permitted.

All the players shared in the tournament trophy, donated by O'Hara.

Why a Sharptail Season?

If the mallard duck population is in such an alarming decline as to warrant the U. S. Wildlife Service making a drastic cut in the daily limit, to one mallard a day, then the sharptailed grouse situation in northwestern Minnesota, and particularly in Pennington and Marshall counties, is such as to merit a daily limit of one-half bird per day!

That's the consensus of the hunters (that is, the out-of-towners who came in to this area for the season opener on Saturday) who worked the heavy cover northeast of here.

I spent most of Saturday with a loaded camera in the car, driving the ditch grades and gravel roads in the Germantown, Mavie, Espelie, Goodridge, and Grygla area, hoping to find a party with a limit or near limit of sharptails. But such was not the case. There were a few birds bagged (and we heard of several limits being taken by hunters who found the widely-scattered coveys and where the hatching areas hadn't been flooded by last spring's rains), but the complaints about the lack of birds were many and emphatic. The state game and fish department certainly didn't create any good will by having an open season on sharptailed grouse this year.

But what is more puzzling is that the state officials claim that the hunting pressure has little or no effect on the relative scarcity or abundance of game birds. And they believe this. Yet the federal officials apparently feel that the hunters are a factor in "harvesting" the bird crop for they have limited the mallard take to one mallard a day. The two groups should at least be consistent in their beliefs. Perhaps politics has something to do with the opening and closing of hunting seasons? And of course the license money!

Duluth Hunter Causes Concern, Takes Long Walk

Les Gilberts, 70, retired attorney of Duluth, caused considerable concern to the hunting party of which he was a member Sunday, when he failed to make an appearance. The party have moved in an easterly direction from the Gully Road in Star township, and by ten o'clock he had not reappeared. At three o'clock Sunday afternoon he arrived by car, driven by Knut Hanson, who had picked him up at Orbin Good's farm on the Reservation south of the Red River.

How he got there is a short story but it involved a long walk. He had strayed from his fellow hunters and decided to walk back to the road. But the sky was overcast and instead of moving west he took off to the southeast, arriving eventually at Evelyn Coud's home on the Red Lake River about three miles into the Reservation. From there he was driven to the Good farm. Erling Torgerson, one of the searchers, estimated that he had walked from 12 to 15 miles under most difficult walking conditions.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota

by JIM KIMBALL
Director of Game & Fish

It is hardly news any more but, in case you haven't heard, yours truly has resigned as state director of game and fish to accept a position on the national staff of a metropolitan daily newspaper. I told my new employers that I knew nothing about the newspaper business and, now that I think of it, this was a silly thing to say.

All things considered, I hardly think that editors are looking for the likes of me to advise them on the fine points of running a newspaper. Someone apparently has convinced these editors that I do know something about conservation on the local and national level and about outdoor recreation. This is fine with me because the job is exactly to my liking and offers unlimited opportunity to pursue my lifelong goals of selling conservation and promoting outdoor recreation.

It happened that a couple of other good conservation job opportunities were being considered during August, but the chance to write for the paper made the decision easy. This choice means I can stay in my native state of Minnesota and, more important, that I can devote full time to promoting an understanding of conservation and to helping develop the unlimited recreational and economic potentials of the natural resources of the upper midwest. To my delight I learned that the editors of this daily newspaper plan a substantially expanded program of reporting on all fields of resource conservation. They also believe, as I do, that developing our great outdoor recreation potential is going to supply an essential human need and, at the same time, go a long way toward solving some economic problems.

Leaving my post as your state game and fish director is not easy. These have been the most productive, educational and enjoyable seven years of my life. Nowhere can one find a position with greater opportunity to make mistakes. And you don't have to tell me that I made a few. I'm just glad you don't know how many. I do hope a little progress was made toward professionalizing resource management.

At the time of this writing I can't even guess who my successor will be. The rumor mill has ground out a score of names but your guess is as good as any.

The most important thing I could tell my successor is that he will be blessed with the opportunity to lead the most dedicated, hard-working group that can be found anywhere. Most of them have learned, as I have, that being a public servant is a most rewarding occupation. Serving humanity yields gratification to be matched only by that gained from wisely using and perpetuating our natural resources.

To the editors of this newspaper and to the some 200 editors who have used this column, my sincere thanks. They have done it as a public service to you, the reader. In my travels on the new job I hope to get acquainted with many of these editors.

Well, I'll be seeing you Sundays. And remember, I still consider myself a public servant and still want to hear from you. Give me your ideas, your suggestions — and your advice!

Traffic Mishaps Noted Thursday

Two Parked Cars Struck By Other Cars in City

Two traffic accidents, both involving damage to parked cars, were recorded by the Thief River Falls police department on Thursday. Estimated damage totaled more than $250 to the four cars involved.

At about 2:50 p. m. Thursday, a pickup truck driven by Edward Battenfeld, rt. 1, TRF, was traveling south on Main avenue near the intersection with First street when it struck a parked car owned by Ray Boe, city. Damage was estimated at $50 to the Battenfeld truck and $150 to the Boe car with the case under investigation by the police department.

At about 4:45 p. m. the same day, a car driven by Elmer K. Johnson of rural St. Hilaire was attempting to park on the west side of Main avenue between Second and Third streets when it struck a parked car owned by Leo Kalinoski of Red Lake Falls. Damage to the Johnson car was estimated at more than $50 while damage to the Kalinoski vehicle was not determined. Johnson was tagged by the police department for leaving the scene of an accident.

A third mishap early Friday morning is covered in a picture caption elsewhere in today's issue of the Times.

Meeting Series Arranged To Show Conservation Plan

Resource Development To Be Aired at Four Meets in N.W. Minn.

Public meetings to discuss a Minnesota Conservation Department resource development plan for Kittson, Marshall, Roseau and northwestern Beltrami county have been scheduled for later this fall, it was announced today by Dick Knox, Deputy Commissioner of Conservation.

Under the plan, state land in the four counties would be classified in one of the following categories: (1) intensive management areas — To be placed under control of one of the Department's divisions for long term management for multiple use. (2) extensive management areas — These lands could be sold in the future with the concurrence of the operating divisions for uses other than conservation purposes wherever other needs are deemed greater. (3) custodial lands — These lands would be placed under control of the Department's division of lands and minerals and could be sold at public auction upon application by an interested party.

At each meeting only the plan for the county in which the meeting is being held will be discussed. The schedule of meetings is as follows: Roseau, Oct. 17; Hallock, Oct. 31; Warren, Nov. 20; and Grygla, Dec. 4. Exact time and place of each meeting will be announced later.

At the meeting the conservation department's long range acquisition and development plans for each county will also be explained.

The proposals are the results of a year's effort by the Northwestern Minnesota Planning committee consisting of Wayne Hanson, area forester, Warroad; Elmer Anderson, district land appraiser; Robert Farmes, area game manager, Thief River Falls; and Don Burcalow, division of game and fish, St. Paul.

Copies of the preliminary plan for the county will be sent to county officials, government agencies and various groups and associations about one week prior to each hearing.

Vivian Spray Is Presented 40 et 8 Scholarship Pin

Local Girl Completes Nurses Training Under Scholarship Program

Miss Vivian Spray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Spray of Thief River Falls, was presented with a diamond pin symbolizing graduation from the 40 et 8 nurse's training program at a meeting of the Pennington county voiture Tuesday evening in the American Legion club rooms.

The second graduate under the local 40 et 8 scholarship plan, Miss Spray recently completed a three-year course at Swedish Hospital school of nursing in Minneapolis. She reviewed her training for the voiture at Tuesday's meeting and expressed her thanks for the scholarship.

Annually the local voiture provides funds to one girl interested in nurse's training to take a three-year course at the school of her choice. There is no requirement that the scholarship must be repaid. In her remarks to the voiture Tuesday, Miss Spray stated that she planned to return at least part of the scholarship money to help the 40 et 8 continue the program for other girls in the future.

In a letter to the 40 et 8 written before graduation, Miss Spray stated:

"This climaxes the three years of my life that have just so quickly passed — the long-awaited graduation is almost here. I'm looking forward to it with many mixed emotions—gratefulness that I had such a wonderful opportunity — thankfulness that I'm soon through — and sadness at the thought of leaving all of the girls I have grown so close to in these three years.

"I am, however, eternally grateful to you, the 40 et 8, for making these three years possible for me, and I hope I will be able to help you keep up the good work in the future. One of my best friends here is also in training under the 40 et 8 program and we both agree it is a fine service."

4H Fall Festival Slated Saturday

Pennington county 4-H club families, leaders and friends will unite in staging a hobo party at the fall festival to be held Saturday evening at the county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. Starting time is set for 8:30 p.m., according to Paul Stelmaschuk, county agricultural agent, and Miss Laura Duerst, home agent.

As many persons as possible attending the festival are asked to wear old clothes and dress the theme of the event. Sunday or Monday best clothes are acceptable as well, but emphasis is being placed on the hobo theme.

Included in the program will be films for the youngsters, including such cartoons as "Chip and Dale", "Goofy's Glider", "Mickey's Date" and "Midnight Patrol". Also part of the festival will be an apple diving contest, several novelty acts, pop and hot-dogs for all attending and square dancing for those who wish to participate.

Each club is asked to bring one cream pie or blueberry pie, furnish one adult leader to help serve the lunch at 10 p. m., furnish one junior leader to help decorate the building at 1 p. m. Saturday, and contribute 25 cents per member to help defray the costs.

Speech Teachers At Clinic Here

More than 25 speech teachers from area high schools are in attendance at a speech clinic being held today at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. The clinic is sponsored by the Minnesota State High School League and is designed for all extra-curricular speech advisors with the exception of debate.

Mrs. Jaycees to Stage 'Operation Identification'

Chapter to Distribute Order Blanks to School Children Next Monday

The TRF Mrs. Jaycees are again sponsoring the program called "Operation Identification", which is designed to give as many students as possible the opportunity to secure identification bracelets.

With the recommendation of civil defense authorities that every man, woman and child in the state of Minnesota have and wear a permanent-type identification on the wrist, the Mrs. Jaycees have been cooperating to help bring this about. They will bring order blanks to the schools Monday, October 1, and will pick up the completed blanks on Monday, October 8. They ask the full cooperation of the parents in filling out the blanks and sending with the child the nominal fee required.

Made of stainless steel, the bracelets will have on them, permanently stamped, the information requested by the parents. The charge is 50 cents per bracelet. Finished bracelets will be sent directly to the home.

Whether it be a national or local disaster, family separation, an accident requiring immediate medical attention, or a little child lost, an identification bracelet could prove of invaluable assistance, and the Mrs. Jaycees strongly urge everyone to avail himself of this protection.

Parents' Night Set by Vo. Ag. Students Oct. 3

Parents of 40 freshmen students in vocational agriculture at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls will be guests at a parents' night to be held Wednesday, October 3, at 8:30 p. m. in the high school cafeteria.

Included in the program will be a sample Future Farmers of America meeting, showing of two films, and explanation of the FFA program. The session is designed to acquaint parents with the program and aims of the Future Famers of America on local, state and national levels, according to Peter Probasco, vocational agriculture instructor at the school and FFA advisor.

Community Polio Immunizing Plan to Continue Here

The community polio immunization program will proceed as scheduled, according to Dr. Paul Wendt, city health officer, but the Sabin oral vaccine for the virus type two will be given on October 12 instead of the type three which will be scheduled later. Dr. Wendt discussed the matter with state health department officials Wednesday and was assured that the department is firmly in favor of the Sabin vaccine program being continued.

LHS Students Qualify for Merit Program

Larry Helgeland and Brian Mostue Listed Among Semi-Finalists

Larry Helgeland and Brian Mostue, senior students at Lincoln high school, have been named semi-finalists in the 1962-63 Merit Scholarship competition, according to Richard Edlund, senior high school principal. The boys became semi-finalists through their outstanding performance on the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test, the first step in the eighth annual merit program.

They are among approximately 11,000 seniors throughout the country who attained semi-finalist status. Each semi-finalist now moves a step closer to winning a four-year merit scholarship to the college of his choice. The qualifying examination, a test of educational development, was given in more than 16,000 high schools last March and the group selected is composed of the highest scoring students in each state and in United States territories.

John M. Stalnaker, president of the nonprofit National Merit Scholarship Corporation, described the semi-finalists as "representative of the best of a new generation of young people who are increasingly conscious of the importance of intellectual achievement. The qualities and aspirations of the semi-finalists typify the abilities and goals of the country's most able youth."

To increase their opportunities to obtain financial assistance if they need it, the corporation sends the names of semi-finalists to all accredited colleges and universities and to other scholarship-granting agencies and financial aid sources. Studies show that about 50 per cent of the semi-finalists obtain financial aid from sources other than the merit program.

In the past about 97 per cent of the semi-finalists have become finalists after taking a three-hour test and being endorsed by their high schools. As finalists they become eligible for scholarships sponsored by NMSC and about 150 business corporations, foundations, union, professional associations and individuals.

Red Lake River Group to Meet at Crookston

Col. W. B. Strandberg of Army Engineers To Review Study Plan

Col. W. B. Strandberg, district engineer for the U .S. Army Corps of Engineers, will attend a meeting of the Red Lake River Improvement association to be held Tuesday, October 16, at 7:30 p. m. in the Elks club rooms at Crookston. The meeting has been arranged by Earl Enright, East Grand Forks, chairman of the association.

In an earlier letter to Enright, Col. Strandberg stated the following:

". . . I understand that the House Public Works Committee has under consideration a resolution requesting our review of prior reports on the Red Lake-Clearwater basin. Thus, ample authority should be available for our consideration of the flood and related water problems in the area of primary concern to your group.

"I will be pleased to meet with the members of the association and would suggest a date of Tuesday, October 16, 1962. A date in mid-October is suggested since Congress is late in taking action on the Civil Works appropriation bill for the current fiscal year. I anticipate that the appropriation bill will have been passed and advice received on our allotments for construction and studies by that date, making it possible for us to discuss more factually our current study program and our future plans."

Eagles Auxiliary State President Will Visit Here

Marian Johns of Minneapolis, state president of the Eagles Auxiliary, will be a special guest at the meeting of the local group to be held Monday evening at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls. All members are urged to make a special effort to attend.

Officers of the organization are planning to entertain the state president at a dinner prior to the meeting. Other auxiliary members wishing to accompany the group are requested to call MU 1-4660 or MU 1-2614 for further details.

DFL Activities Set for Tonight And on Friday

DFL Executive Board and women's group will meet Thursday, September 27, at 8:30 p. m. at the courthouse meeting room to discuss the DFL rally of October 5th, and make luncheon plans for the appearance of Dr. Harding Noblitt, DFL candidate for Congress, who will be in the city on Friday.

A report on the fund-drive will be discussed. The luncheon for Dr. Noblitt will be held Friday at 12:30 p. m. in the Rex Cafe during his tour of Pennington county and is sponsored by the Pennington county DFL.

Top of Nation Dairy Sale Set for Oct. 18

Calves and Yearlings To Be Offered This Year for First Time

In keeping with the highest traditions established at previous sales, the Top of the Nation Dairy Association has a number of excellent dairy animals consigned to the fourth annual Top of the Nation dairy sale to be held on Thursday, October 18, at the livestock pavilion on the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls.

One new feature has been added to the annual event this year which should find favor with 4-H and Future Farmers of America members in the area, according to Martin Carrico, president of the association and sales manager. In addition to cows and springing heifers, this year's sale will include a number of calves and yearling heifers which would make excellent project animals for 4-H and FFA work.

Invitations are being sent to about 30 vocational agriculture instructors and extension agents throughout the area this week to have judging teams participate in a morning judging program on the day of the sale. If enough interest is shown, a 4-H and FFA judging contest will be held with judging of one class of calves, one of yearlings, one of two-year-olds and one of cows.

Same High Standards

Standards for the sale remain the same as in previous years. Cattle consigned must have records of 400 pounds of butterfat or higher if grade animals and 480 pounds of butterfat or higher if registered animals. Springing heifers, yearlings and calves must come from dams with these minimum requirements. Calves and yearlings consigned to the sale include the following:

Sheldon Erickson of Badger has consigned a grade heifer born Nov. 1, 1961, to a dam with a production record of 20,569 pounds of milk and 647 pounds of butterfat, and a registered heifer born July 4, 1962, to a dam with a record of 13,920 pounds of milk and 519 pounds of butterfat.

Darrell Lundeen of Trail has consigned a grade heifer born Oct. 11, 1961, to a dam with a record of 13,980 pounds of milk and 469 pounds of butterfat.

Nelson Brothers of Hallock have consigned a registered heifer born April 3, 1962, to a dam with a record of 12,840 pounds of milk and 509 pounds of butterfat.

Selmer Nordine of Karlstad has consigned a grade heifer from a dam who produced 11,830 pounds of milk and 470 pounds of butterfat as a two-year-old. The yearling was born July 12, 1961, and has a grand-dam which produced 541 pounds of butterfat and a great-grand-dam which produced 574 pounds of butterfat.

Patrick W. Culkins, office manager of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Thief River Falls, announced today that delegates from the fourteen ASCS communities in Pennington county assembled Friday evening for the purpose of electing a county ASCS committee consisting of three members and two alternates.

He said that the county ASCS committee members who were elected would serve from Oct. 1, 1962, through Sept. 30, 1963. County committee members serve as a policy-making body for all active ASCS programs administered by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Members and alternates elected Friday night include the following:

Clifford Vad of Highlanding township was elected vice chairman of the committee. He operates a farm consisting of some 500 acres. His farm operations also consist of the production of grain, cattle and sheep.

Oscar J. Houske of Wyandotte township was elected to the committee as the regular member. He owns and operates a 480 acre farm and his farming operations consist of the production of beef cattle and grain.

Harry Oen was elected as first alternate to the committee and will serve as a committee member only in the event that one of the regular members discontinues his farming operations, establishes residence outside of Pennington county, declines to serve, files for an elective office or becomes deceased.

Wallace Tieman of Cloverleaf township was elected second alternate to the committee, and will serve only in the event that one of the three members or the first alternate fail to serve for one of the reasons stated above.

Committee members will meet twice each month to review the progress of the various programs and establish policy pertaining to various ASCS programs operating in the county.

Mrs. Marian Davis of Detroit Lakes spent several days at the Amanda Larson home in this city.

Results of a business-climate survey will be reviewed with emphasis on what 70 per cent of all Minnesota manufacturers think of taxes, labor, community facilities, people's attitudes and other matters. Details will also be given on a University of Minnesota study on out-migration of the state's young people and a suggested plan of action will be offered.

Red Lake Co-op. Plans To Retire Capital Credits

Red Lake Electric Cooperative has voted to make a partial retirement of capital credits as allocated to the members in the year 1958, according to Charles Kleven, manager of the cooperative. Such action by the board of directors was authorized by the membership, which approved a change in by-laws at the annual meeting.

At present the board has authorized the retiring of one-third of the amount allocated to members in 1958. That allocation was for the years up to and through 1958 and the amount to be retired at this time will total approximately $27,000. Each member who has capital credits coming and was notified of his allocation in 1958 will receive one-third of the amount in a cash payment at this time.

"Your cooperative is happy to be in a position to consider capital credits retirements at this time," Kleven said. "This is made possible, of course, by the successful operation of your cooperative which is in the main due to the members' past and continued use of their electric service. It is hoped that this will continue in order that further payments may be made at periodic intervals.

Elaine's CHATTER

We have always thought a sheep ranch would be a nice easy way to make a living. Sit back, let the sheep graze, shear off the wool, send it to market and you have it made.

Apparently "wool-gathering" isn't that easy. Ranchers are hiring scientists to help them control the sheep's diet so they can produce wool that will not shrink and also be moth proof. Just like everyone else the little lambs will be urged to take their vitamins and shots. No telling where this will end.

Synthetic materials have their place in a women's wardrobe . . . many things about them that can't be beat but we still like ALL WOOL, SILK and GENUINE COTTON.

L'Aiglon's all wool jersey dresses in new fall colors in regular, half, petite and junior sizes are designed to fit the figure perfectly. Jersey is wonderful fabric, easily draped, shirred and gathered to fit just about any silhouette.

Elaine's also invite you to see the all wool knit dresses. One, two and 3-piece sets from Butte and Lofties. Nothing takes the place of wool. If you want sweaters, skirts, slacks or coats . . . it's wool at Elaine's and just about any color there is on the market to-day.

Let's leave the little lambs alone and let them grow their wool as they always have so far they've done a pretty good job of it.

If you have a problem, put it on a table; you may not solve it this way but at least you'll know where it is. This we like.

Norse Author Is Visitor This Week

Visiting relatives in the area this week was Alfred Hauge, Norwegian author and poet, and foreign correspondent of the Daily Aftenblad of Stavanger. Cousins whom he visited were Sam Hauge of East Grand Forks, formerly of St. Hilaire and prominent in northwestern Minnesota as creamery operator, and Mrs. Otto Johnson and Mrs. Elmer Carlson of St. Hilaire.

He is visiting this country primarily for research on Norwegian emigration and the contributions to the development of our nation by Norwegian immigrants. As he puts it, he is here to assemble information of historic value about the "vanishing Norwegians," probably the last generation of the descendents of the pioneers who will have a personal tie with the land of their forebears.

He is particularly interested in what has happened to the descendents of the first Norwegians to migrate to this country, a group of fifty who landed in New York on October 9, 1825. The voyage, by way of England and the Madeira Islands off the coast of Portugal, extended over a period of more than three months.

The small 50-foot ship in which they sailed has been referred to as the Norwegian Mayflower because, as with the Pilgrims, the Norwegian emigrants were leaving their homeland to escape religious persecution. According to Mr. Hauge they were members of a then unpopular sect known in England as Quakers and from where William Penn had led the group that settled in Pennsylvania.

The 38-ton ship in which the Norwegian Quakers sailed was named the Restauration and, because it was the type of ship known as a sloop, the group formed a society known as The Sloopers. They settled originally in what became known as Kendall on the shore of Lake Ontario in New York State, but ten years later they established a more permanent home in the Fox River valley southwest of Chicago. From there individuals and groups have moved to other areas.

One member of the original party, Cleng Peerson, died in Norse, Texas, in 1865, and there are several descendents of the Sloopers in Utah. Mr. Hauge plans to visit such places in the hope of learning more about the pioneers and their succeeding generations. He already has written the first of a series of books that will deal with the story in the form of historical novels. He has published 18 books, most of them of this type and dealing with other phases of Norwegian history and culture.

Mr. Hauge speaks English fluently and told the Times reporter, who observed that his English was less the English of England, generally taught in Europe, and more the English of America, that he was deliberately changing to the American version which seems to be increasing in general worldwide use.

Referring to the problems of present-day Norway, he was hopeful that his country would become a part of the Common Market. He stated that membership would be contingent on Britain's entry, the Norwegians probably being unwilling to join unless Britain was a part of the organization. He was satisfied that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had been very effective in the redevelopment and defense of Europe, and attributed much of the recovery of Europe to the American Marshall plan.

Mr. Hauge came to this country by freighter by way of Hudson Bay and the port of Churchill, from where he travelled by train to Winnipeg. He left yesterday for Moorhead from where he will proceed to Illinois, stopping enroute to visit points of interest in his search for information and background material.

One of the things that had interested him most during the few days he had spent here is the turkey operation. He was amazed at the size of the flocks and the method used in their production. Nothing in Europe equalled it, he said.

DuPont Official Cites Dangers to Economy in Address to Lions

If the American traditions of personal and economic freedom should ever succumb to an alien philosophy, it will be because Americans are unwilling to pay the premium on their country's "survival insurance", Wyatte F. De Loache, midwest manager of the Du Pont Company's extension division, said here Wednesday.

Addressing the Lions club at its luncheon meeting, he siad that the long-term danger to America stems less from overt action by some outside enemy than from our own diminishing regard for the principles which made this nation great.

Pointing out that "liberty must be earned anew", Mr. De Loache said that "we must rearm ourselves with a knowledge of the principles and ideals upon which our country was founded, and must rededicate ourselves not only to the defense of these freedoms, but to their propagation."

The gravest danger "is the misinformed American, because he may unwittingly assist in his own enslavement," he said, warning that "the darkness of economic misinformation continues to enshroud many vital areas." The fact that economic freedom is the one least understood by the public gives rise to special concern, moreover, "since it is the productivity of our economic system which provides the physical bulwark of freedom's strength."

The grave and complex problem of protecting our economic structure "transcends narrow political partisanship," the speaker declared. "There is no sound basis for believing that the people in one major party love their country less dearly than those in the other. Both presumably seek the same ends. The basic difficulty usually centers on the selection of proper means to accomplish these desired ends."

A major threat to the economy shows up in the form of inflation which, he said, presents a very real problem to industry and the individual alike. To keep on a par with where it was 12 years ago, for example, a corporation wearing out a $100,000 machine must earn double that amount just to replace it, he explained. Though the replacement costs $150,000, the tax law allows only $100,000 to come from accumulated depreciation. The remaining $50,000 must come from profits. But in order to have $50,000 after taxes, the corporation must earn in excess of $100,000 because 52 per cent of its earnings is taken by Federal taxes on corporate income. Thus, the present tax law doubles the effects of inflation against industry.

Rotary Hears of Problems Caused by 'Hard' Water

Arnie Christensen Tells Water Story; United Fund Plans Reviewed

Arnie Christensen, owner of Falls Building & Supply in Thief River Falls, provided a program on the effects of hard water at the Monday noon meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club in the Elks club rooms.

An appeal for participation in the United Fund campaign was made by Gene Belto, member of the United Fund board, who stated that workers were needed to conduct a successful campaign. L. B. Hartz explained the pledge method used by employees of his firm and noted that a similar pledge by other employees in the city would result in the United Fund surpassing its goal.

A letter was read from Miss Jeanne Dahlen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Dahlen of Thief River Falls and Rotary Foundation Fellowship student in Switzerland. She had toured several European countries before traveling to Switzerland to begin her studies.

Christensen illustrated his talk with a film strip on water which showed "lime spots" left by evaporated hard water and how they are not only unsightly but harbor disease germs and cause mechanical defects in equipment and damage to plumbing and fixtures.

He stated that a federal survey of 15,000 wells in all 50 states showed that 52 per cent yielded water which was considered unfit for human consumption. He noted that average hardness of water in the United States is seven grains and that water in Thief River Falls varies from six to 12 grains.

Judy Larson In UND Honors Plan

Local Girl Among 30 Freshmen on Listing

Judy Larson of Thief River Falls was among 30 freshman students admitted to the four-year honors program at the University of North Dakota for the first semester, according to Dr. Donald M. Gillmar, program coordinator. The students will join 28 sophomores who began the first such program at UND last year.

Selection began after high school students who had scored in or above the 96 percentile in the American College Testing battery were invited to test for the program. Following English tests, a series of psychological tests were given by the UND counseling center under the direction of Dr. Roger Myers. High school records and recommendations also played a large part in selection, Dr. Gillmor said.

In the honors program, stress is placed on the academic program with attempts being made to minimize extra-curricular distractions, according to Dr. Gillmor. A student is required to maintain a B average to remain in this program.

The program stressed new theories and devices for the sorting, cataloging and indexing of information and presented current devices and techniques, their relation to traditional library and indexing procedures and probable lines of future development.

Upon motion by Lindberg seconded by Hanson the meeting was then adjourned until 7:30 P.M.

September 11, 1962

At 7:30 P.M. the Board convened in the Court room to conduct a hearing on designation of Pennington County as ARA territory pursuant to notice duly advertised and called for.

In addition to the Board and Auditor, eighteen interested persons appeared and Hal Rudstrom, Minnesota ARA Fieldman was present.

Mr. Rudstrom presented the ARA story and after a question and answer period the Board adjourned the hearing and convened to consider the problem.

Commissioner Almquist introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

RESOLVED, that after a full hearing held upon due passage and publication of a resolution giving notice thereof, all in compliance with Laws of Minnesota 1961, Chapter 629, Section 4, Subdivision 2, the County Board of the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, finds that:

1. There has existed in this area substantial and persistent unemployment for an extended period of time.
2. The rate of unemployment, considering the extent of migration of employees out of the area, and excluding unemployment due primarily to temporary or seasonal factors, is currently six (6) percent or more as determined by available state or federal statistics.
3. The annual average rate of unemployment has been at least:
   - (a) Fifty percent (50%) above the national average for three of the preceding four calendar years, or
   - b) Seventy-five percent (75%) above the national average for two of the preceding calendar years or
   - (c) One hundred percent (100%) above the national average for one of the two preceding calendar years.
4. There exists in the area a substantial number of low income farm families unable to augment their income through off-farm employment, causing migration out of the area, and that a substantial number of such families require public assistance from the federal or state governments to maintain minimum adequate standards of living.
5. Financial assistance necessary to develop local resources and facilities to provide stable long-range employment opportunities is not available from private sources.
6. The establishment of a municipal redevelopment agency in accordance with the provisions of Laws of Minnesota 1961, Chapter 629, will encourage and promote the growth of industrial, recreational, commercial, and manufacturing enterprises in the area, and will enhance the prosperity of the community by providing employment opportunities through the development and expansion of new or existing facilities and resources.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, hereby declares that there is need for a municipal redevelopment agency to function in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota; and, in order to carry out the provisions and objectives of Laws of Minnesota 1961, Chapter 629, and to receive the benefits of Public Law No. 27, 87th Congress, 1st Session (May 1, 1961) that there is hereby established within the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, a public body, corporate and politic, to be known as "THE PENNINGTON COUNTY REDEVELOPMENT AGENCY" to have and to exercise all of the powers conferred upon it by Laws of Minnesota 1961, Chapter 629.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hanson and upon being put to a vote was declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Lindberg seconded by Hanson that meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M., October 2, 1962.

Carried.

GLENN TASA, Chairman,

Hunting Season on Goose Opens Oct. 6

Bag Limit This Season Is Set at Five Per Day

Waterfowl hunters were reminded today that Minnesota's goose season opens at noon Saturday, Oct. 6, with the prediction that the number of birds heading south will be about the same as last year.

Department of Conservation game officials said the early goose season, which was initiated last year, has found favor with hunters since it enables them to take advantage of early fall goose flights into the state.

With the exception of a noon opening on Oct. 6 and again on Oct. 13 (opening of the duck season) shooting hours will be from sunrise to sunset.

Bag limits this year are set at five daily and five in possession. The limit may not include more than two Canada geese or subspecies or two white-fronted geese or one of each.

The principal goose flights in Minnesota usually take place through the western areas of the state. Chief game warden F. W. Johnson cautioned hunters that all game birds must be transported with head and feet intact so that wardens can identify the species.

Minnesota 2d to Calif. in Fishing Licenses in 1961

Minnesota ranks second among the 50 states in number of 1961 fishing licenses sold, Gov. Elmer L. Andersen reported today.

California, with three times Minnesota's population, headed last year's list, although in recent years the two states have alternated in leading the nation in angling permits sold.

Here are the figures for 1961: Minnesota, 1,355,512; California, 1,475,377; Wisconsin, 1,079,277; Michigan, 952,852.

Newfolden Eleven Tips Karlstad 19-0

Nordics to Play Hallock Saturday Evening at 8

The Newfolden Nordics, piling up a yardage total of 349 yards, defeated the Karlstad Rabbits, 19-0, in a football game played at Karlstad on Friday. It was the third successive win for coach Sheldon Elseth's Newfolden squad, and gives the Nordics a first place tie, with Hallock, in the Top-of-the-State conference. The two leaders, Newfolden and Hallock, will meet at Hallock on Saturday, September 29, with kickoff time at 8:00 p. m.

In Friday's game at Karlstad, a recovered fumble set up the Nordics' first touchdown. Karlstad, receiving the game-opening kickoff, fumbled on the third play of the opening series, with the Nordics recovering on the Rabbits' 30-yard line. Terry Strandquist erupted through the line for a 30-yard touchdown run. Harlon Halvorson scored the conversion point on a line plunge.

Opening the second half, Newfolden, with a drive started on the Nordics' 25-yard line, made a sustained march that culminated in a touchdown, with Halvorson hitting the line for three yards and the TD to cap the nine-play drive. A pass play for the point was incomplete.

The Nordics racked up their final touchdown midway in the fourth period when, after holding the Karlstad club for downs deep in Newfolden territory, Newfolden, on a long run by quarterback Jerry Strandquist, scored the games, final six points. A placement kick for the extra point was wide.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The Prowlers Are Favored

Since 1948, when football competition between the Prowlers and the Roseau Rams was placed on a varsity game basis, twelve games have been played between the two squads. The series, which has been on a yearly schedule since 1951, had its beginning in 1948.

The rivalry between the two clubs is a good one, and in addition to being a competition between a couple of old-time rivals in athletics, it has been, since 1959, a game between Northwest conference rivals. It was in 1959 that the Rams joined the conference, and that year Roseau won the conference title.

In the twelve games played between the two squads, the Prowlers hold a decisive margin, having won ten of the games. Roseau, in 1958, by a 32 to 13 score, and in 1959, by a 25-12 score, marked up the two wins that they have on the record book. In last season's game between the Rams and the Prowlers, played here, coach Joe Mrkonich's locals won by a 21-0 score.

The Prowlers, while they were subjected to rugged play by East Grand Forks last Friday night, came out of the fray in pretty good shape. Fullback Steve Mittelstadt, who turned in a stellar game for the Prowlers in the 22-7 win, came out of the contest with a gash in his right hand. Steve missed the Monday afternoon drills, but he was back with the squad on Tuesday, and will be ready for action on Friday.

Coach Ray Kavanagh's Roseau team has been making rapid progress, and the Rams, playing on their home field and before their home fans, may prove troublesome for the Prowlers, who will enter the game as favorites.

There is only one certainty, and that is that the game won't end in a scoreless tie.

Stock-car Finale

The Falls Speedway will conclude its 1962 stock-car racing season on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 30, with a program of championship events. These races had been slated for last Sunday, but the threatening weather and light rains forced a postponement of the program.

With the championships of the various divisions at stake, racing fans should enjoy an action-filled afternoon on Sunday, and it is probable that some records will be broken.

Bowling Note

Joey Poole, the Elks Club 230-pin average anchor man, turned in a creditable series on Tuesday night against the Hamm's Beer in a Business league match, but he didn't come close to his last week's record-breaking series.

In a man-to-man series against the Hamm's Wally DuChamp, Joey had games of 163, 174, and 178, which is good enough. The Elks, and Joey, lost the odd game and the total-pins point to the Hamm's.

Seventy-Five Years Young

Bill Sponheim celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary on Tuesday, and it was the manner in which he celebrated the date that made it noteworthy.

Bill, an inveterate and experienced hunter, went out west of town in quest of a sharptailed grouse or two, and this is what happened: hunting the edge of a clover field adjacent to a poplar thicket, Bill flushed a small covey of grouse, and after he had triggered three shots at the birds he had grassed three birds, with two of the grouse being outright kills, and the third being a wing-tipped bird which he found after short search.

That's the way to celebrate a 75th birthday anniversary, and I hope that his 76th, 77th, and so on, are just as happy, and that he continues to exhibit such fast-reflex shooting.

Saddle Club Plans Big Evening For October 7

A hayride and wiener roast will be highlights of the Sunday evening, October 7, meeting of the Thief River Falls Saddle Club. Starting time will be 7 p. m. sharp at the Dan Keefe farm.

The party will take the place of the meeting which had been scheduled for Tuesday evening, Oct. 2.

Coach Joe Mrkonich's Thief River Falls Prowlers moved into a first-place tie with the Bemidji Lumberjacks in the Northwest conference standings by scoring a 22-7 win over coach Ron Thompson's East Grand Forks eleven in a Homecoming game played at Thief River Falls Friday night. The week previous, coach Ken Wilson's Bemidji club had scored a 27-7 win over East Grand Forks.

Only one game will be played on the conference schedule this week, and this tilt will be the Thief River Falls vs. Roseau game at Roseau. Roseau, in four pre-conference games, is undefeated having scored victories over Baudette, Hallock, Sacred Heart, and Crookston Cathedral.

The Prowlers have a season's record of three wins and one loss, having scored wins over Warren and Red Lake Falls in addition to their triumph over East Side last week. The Prowler defeat was by the Dilworth Locomotives.

Land Appraised over Market Values When Bought for Highways

Private property acquired for the construction of highways in Minnesota is usually appraised above market value, according to a recent study by the University of Minnesota.

However, this higher appraisal leads to some overcompensation which is not always spread in equal proportion among different properties.

These conclusions are based on data collected by a team of agricultural economists and geographers who studied land acquisitions along trunk highways in Scott county and along an Interstate highway segment in Otter Tail county.

When land is acquired for highways, the owner is paid for the property according to the appraised value per acre required, plus compensation for damage done to the rest of the property from which the highway land is taken.

In Scott county, payments averaged $590 per acre. That was three and one-half times the appraisal rate, which in turn was 50 per cent above market value. If appraisals had been equal to market level, payments would have ben only $391 per acre — assuming the same relationship betwen appraisal and final payment.

In Otter Tail county, payment rate was $392 per acre, but would have been $90 less if appraisals had been at market value.

What would appraisals at market value mean in over-all highway costs? With about 24 acres per mile taken in Scott County and 48 in Otter Tail County, the estimated reduction in route costs would be $4,800 and $4,320 per mile, respectively.

Rate of overcompensation — with "overcompensation" defined as difference between appraised and market value — seemed to vary from one property to another. This variation did not depend on location, type of property or amount of land taken.

Also, there was about as much variation in payments for damages (above appraised value) as there was variation in difference between market and appraised value itself.

Because of the inconsistency in the variation, the researchers say there is no definite indication that reducing the total level of payment would change the distribution of damage payments among individual properties.

The researchers suggest there would be little concern among property owners if payments rates were moved closer to market value rates. It might be another matter, however, to reduce the level of payments for damages to remaining property — a reduction which would occur at the lower rate.

In Scott County, 4.6 per cent of the farm land in the study area was taken for the highway. Estimated damage payments were enough to offset an 11.7 per cent reduction in value of remaining land. In Otter Tail County, 7.6 per cent of the land was taken and estimated damage payments would cover a 17 per cent reduction in remainder value. The researchers reason that these relationships would be unaffected by a downward shift in appraisal levels. Therefore, relatively speaking, if damage payments were adequate at the higher level, they should also be adequate at the lower appraisal level.

The study was conducted under contract with the Minnesota Highway Department, in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. The team included H. R. Nelson, Everett G. Smith, Jr., and James Schwinden.

Let's talk about the DIFFERENCE in Fuel Oils

Midland Infra-Heat fuel oil with Cal-Rad looks like most other fuel oils. However, you can't see the differences in the fuel oil that are the result of refining and blending processes. These are the differences that can cost you money and heating comfort. Many fuel oils contain additives. They, too, are different. Cal-Rad in Midland INFRA-HEAT is a tested and proved additive that overcomes the moisture and sludge problems inherent with heating oils. With ordinary fuel oil in your tank, moisture can cause damaging rust and sludge formation. Let's see what that means:
The opening in your oil burner's nozzle is smaller than the period ending this sentence. That tiny hole must stay open and clean for efficient fuel atomization and combustion.
Here the tiny particle of rust or sludge is lodged near that small opening. Deflected fuel drips away unburned. Faulty burning makes soot and smoke. Finally the opening is plugged. Fuel is wasted, heat is lost. A service call results.
Cal-Rad in Midland INFRA-HEAT absorbs and disperses moisture, prevents rust and sludge. The moisture burns with the fuel. Your burner nozzle stays clean, inside and out. No smoke, soot, fuel waste or lost heat. Uniform fuel atomization like this gives you clean-burning, economical heating comfort.
When you are tempted to say, "oh, all fuel oils are alike" . . . think about those two little pictures. Remember the importance of these differences in fuel oil.
For the finest money saving, clean, home heating fuel, call the Midland cooperative. Only Midland has the Comfort Assurance Plan featuring both Budget Pay and Keep-Fill services and only Midland has petroleum products that are Midland controlled . . . from the oil well to you.
Through Your Purchases You Can Become a Stockholder at the Midland cooperative.

Providing fun for the whole family, and individuality for Mom and Dad, the top offering in Ford's 1963 station wagon line, the Country Squire, will have optional bucket seats. A nine-passenger car, the Squire has the only forward-facing third seat in the low-priced car field, and one of the widest tailgate openings in the industry—more than 50 inches.

Described as "the most service free standard-size American car ever produced," the 1963 Ford Galaxie features complete re-styling, a new 260-cubic-inch Challenger V-8 engine, 36,000-mile major lubrication intervals and 6,000-mile minor lubrication intervals, and "cushion link" suspension. Through use of improved lubricants, a complete "run-in" of each engine while it is being electronically analyzed, and an engine flush procedure, Ford has been able to eliminate the historic 1,000-mile inspection on all of its 1963 cars, except the three van-type vehicles in the Falcon line.

The 4-door hardtop (bottom), is one of the 14 models in the 1963 Galaxie line that will be introduced in dealer showrooms on Friday, September 28.

Aid to Dependent Children Mounts

10,932 Families in State Now Getting Assistance

The number of families receiving aid to dependent children grants is on the increase, Welfare Commissioner Morris Hursh reported.

An analysis of the trend in the last 10 years shows that the period of decline in 1952-54 occurred when the economy was characterized by a tight labor market during the Korean war.

Hursh said the lowest fiscal year average was 7,085 families in 1953-54. Since then the average number per year has consistently increased, reaching 10,932 families in 1961-62 or an increase of 54.3 per cent over 1953-54.

The number of ADC families in the rural counties as a group for 1961 is 4,854, or 15 more than the average for the fiscal year 1949-50 when the number was 4,839.

The average declined to 4,268 in 1954-54, the low period statewide, and accounted for 60.2 per cent of the statewide total. The rural county average for 1961-62 of 4,854 families represents an increase of 13.7 per cent over 1953-54 but accounted for only 44.4 per cent of the total for the state.

New Law Governs Lighting of Farm Vehicles on Roads

Should Be Lighted for Safety of All Concerned, Says Highway Department

The Minnesota highway department warned farmers today to double-check their farm equipment and make certain that lighting systems and reflectors comply with the new state law that went into effect this year.

The law states, that at the times when lighted lamps are required on vehicles, every farm tractor and self-propelled unit of farm equipment shall be equipped with at least one lamp displaying a white or amber light to the front, and at least one lamp displaying a red light to the rear. Every self-propelled unit of farm equipment shall also display two red reflectors, each at least 15 square inches in area, visible to the rear.

Every combination of a self-propelled and towed unit of farm equipment shall also display two red reflectors, each at least 15 square inches in area, visible to the rear.

Every combination of a self-propelled and towed unit of farm equipment shall be equipped with at least one lamp mounted to indicate as nearly as practicable, the extreme left projection of the combination while displaying a white or amber light to the front and a red light to the rear. The last unit of every combination of farm equipment shall display two red reflectors, each at least 15 square inches in area, and visible to the rear. This means that each reflector must have at least four and three-eighths inches in diameter of reflective surface.

These requirements applied to new farm tractors and equipment so described on and after January 1, 1960. They also apply to all farm tractors and equipment, regardless of age, on and after January 1, 1962. In effect, a two-year grace period was allowed for a gradual adjustment to the requirement.

The highway department pointed out that farmers will be working longer hours in darkness because of the change in seasons. Due to the increased traffic of the hunting and harvest seasons, vehicles operated along rural roads should be well-lighted for the safety of all concerned.

"Unless we can discipline government, we shall have the triumph of the rules that voting might makes for social right. Such a rule can scarcely provide the foundation for a truly prosperous society. Yet the so-called 'welfare-state', however noble the intentions of many of its advocates and supporters, has been progressing politically because it has become a respectable way of purchasing the votes of the immediate beneficiaries."

Here to Stay?

Auto safety belts are increasing in popularity. About 4.5 million cars are now equipped with them—nearly twice as many as a year ago, according to estimates made recently by the Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee. The Wall Street Journal accounts for the increase by the activities of such groups as the National Safety Council, women's clubs and junior chambers of commerce that have put the weight of their organizations behind the program.

One Chicago bank gives free seat belts to persons taking out auto loans. An oil company has sold 170,000 seat belts since spring at an installed price of $5.95, about half the usual price.

Could it be that the auto safety belt is here to stay? Probably so. Their effectiveness is pretty well established.

Yes, Maybe.

Members of Congress in increasing numbers seem to be catching on to the fact that the old patriotic reference to "The Land of the Free," was not intended to encourage the distribution of free American dollars to all of the needy thruout the world. A majority of the members, by their votes on the foreign aid bill, strengthened the hope that we are still the "Home of the Brave." It does take a little courage sometimes just to say "no".

The opposition in Congress to the administration's foreign aid bill was based largely on the failures of our aid programs in the Latin American countries. Many members are disillusioned with the Alliance for Progress, and the manner in which it is being conducted. The failure of Latin governments to make reasonable efforts to help themselves, and their lack of interest in the Cuban situation, have not been helpful to the cause of lavish spending.

Maybe common sense will prevail again some day after all.

No Shortage

According to the New York Times, 3,500 students who registered with the College Admissions Center in New York, after failing to gain admissions to the colleges of their choice this fall, received an average of ten invitations per student from colleges with openings in their freshman classes. According to Robert L. Lincoln, executive director of the Council of Higher Educational Institutions in New York City, which sponsors the non-profit center, "This experience proves that there is a place to be found in college for every qualified high school graduate who wishes to attend."

Well that certainly is good news for the qualified high school graduates—and for the taxpayers. Our guess is that here in Minnesota there would be ample college facilities for all qualified high school graduates during the next five years if not one more classroom were added at the University or at the State Colleges. With better utilization of exisisting facilities we might get along for ten years.

$900 Million Raid

Karl Rolvaag, candidate for Governor on the DFL ticket, made political hay on the Iron Range last week with the $900 million public works appropriation that was rushed through Congress recently by the Democratic majority. He scolded Minnesota's Republicans in Congress for voting against the measure.

The pressure for speedy action behind this bill was to get the money in circulation as much as possible by election day. If there were any questions about it being a contribution of taxpayers' dollars for campaign purposes, Rolvaag dispelled them by the manner in which he used the issue in his Iron Range speech.

A more astute politician, we think, would have been a little less noisy than Rolvaag in talking about this nearly a billion dollar boondoggle. He wouldn't have pointed up the fact that after nearly two years of Kennedy we are confronted with an unemployment problem that calls for drastic, emergency action.

As we see it, there is not now a great national emergency, and the special needs of the recession that has slowed down our economy, we think, could better be handled by the regular agencies that have been set up to take care of such problems. But this is a campaign year, and, unfortunately, we have many Rolvaags to contend with.

The following observations by the National Observer sum up pretty well the impartial reaction to the raid:

"Immorality in government was further demonstrated in a little White House ceremony the other day when the President signed the new law authorizing the spending of $900,000,000 on 'emergency public works.'

"Foes of the measure had charged in Congress that it would be used as a political slush fund for the November elections. This, of course, was hotly denied by its Democratic advocates. All the same, the Senate felt it necessary to state explicitly that the law would be administered in a fashion free of partisan favoritism.

"What is certain is that this legislation authorizes pure pork-barrel waste. Not only is the Government constantly spending enormous sums on ordinary public works; it also has a "depressed areas" program intended to accomplish the same ostensible purposes as the new "emergency" project.

"The pork barrel is as old as politics, but that does not excuse a needless additional handout at a time when taxes are so excessive and the budget is so deep in the red. It might be supposed that in such circumstances the Government would be able to exercise some restraint and show a little moral courage."

Starting to Move

It now appears certain that Britain will seek admission to the European Common Market. Whether or not Britain will be admitted probably is a little less certain.

The recent Conference of the British Commonwealth countries has resulted in a better understanding of the position of these nations if Britain is admitted. The people of the Commonwealth nations seem to want to be counted in.

By a one-sided vote our Congress has granted to the President unprecedented authority to reduce tariffs, which, in effect, gives him the authority to negotiate for Common Market participation. In other words, barriers to participation have been removed.

From now on more consideration probably will be given to the general pattern and extent of the Common Market. Will the European Economic Community be limited to the nations of continental Europe or will Britain be included? Will it be extended still more and include all industrial nations of the free world, including the United States and Japan? This broader base probably would provide the greatest security for peace. Khrushchev has already indicated that the Communist world is very much opposed to it.

The Common Market approach would require some difficult adjustments, but the advantages, we are sure, would greatly offset the disadvantages. Our country has become great because we have operated as a Common Market with a free exchange of goods and services among all of our states, encouraging mass production and lower costs. This has been the foundation upon which we have built our higher standard of living.

It is important, however, that we recognize the adjustments we probably will have to make, and be prepared to take then in stride. Our guess is that the overall transition, coming gradually, would not be as painful as some fear. At any rate we now are starting to move in that direction, and, as the plans develop, there will be much to talk about.

No Favoritism?

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has assured us that Billie Sol Estes received no favored treatment from his department. Maybe we should feel good about that. We think that those who are tossing our dollars around down in Washington shouldn't show favoritism.

But there are some things about this Estes deal that put Freeman and his department on the spot. When the scandal started getting headlines Freeman shrugged it off as nothing to be concerned about. He was sure it did not need a congressional investigation. His department would look into the matter. There was no justification for all of the publicity. And it is noteworthy that the Democrats in Congress have decided now that it would be well to drop the matter until after the election.

But getting back to Freeman's statement to the effect that Estes received no favored treatment, we have what we think is a justifiable concern about how the Department of Agriculture has been operated under his direction. If the Department has been as lax in all of its dealings as it obviously was in the Estes case, then a general shake-up is needed to rid the service of a lot of incompetent officials.

Our Congressman Odin Langen is to be commended for having tried to get a few answers that, when put together, would make some sense.

Congress seems to be getting anxious to end the session and get back home. The terms of all of the House members expire at the end of this year, and one-third of the members of the Senate. They have important business to attend to in their home districts. There isn't much time left between now and election day, and they are aware of the fact that their opponents are working hard. Being a successful politician does have its drawbacks.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

"Heavens, man, why didn't you come to see me sooner" cried the doctor to his patient who said he had been walking around for a week with a broken leg.

"Well", he answered, "I would have, but every time I say something is wrong with me, my wife says I have to give up drinking."

'63 CHEVROLET IMPALA SPORT SEDAN

Tomorrow-GO JET-SMOOTH CHEVROLET for '63

If it didn't say Chevrolet on the flanks of the superb automobile you see here,–you'd have a hard time proving it's a low-priced car. It offers luxurious styling, extremely comfortable, spacious and silent interiors . . . plus a lot of invisible ways to keep it looking and running like new when a lot of others have started to sag and sigh: new flush and dip rocker panels under the doors to guard against rusting . . . self-adjusting brakes . . . Delcotron generator for longer battery life. If you ever wondered why Chevrolets lead the field, a drive in this '63 should answer all your questions.

IT'S EXCITING!

GO CHEVY II for '63-IT'S EXCITING!
'63 CHEVY II NOVA SPORT COUPE

GO CORVAIR for '63-IT'S EXCITING!
'63 CORVAIR MONZA CONVERTIBLE

Hard as it may be to believe, this year's Chevy II is better, better than last year's and better than anything in its class. It combines all the new easy-care features of the big Chevrolet with its own wonderful attributes of parkable size, four- or six-cylinder fuel economy and interiors that'd do justice to cars with twice its price and half its charm.

CHEVROLET

Change it? Calm yourself, nobody's going to mess with a winner like this one! We did add self-adjusting brakes and a more fully aluminized muffler; interiors and outside trim are refined a bit, but the rest is pure Corvair with all the over-the-road goodness that implies. Oh yes, we changed the taillights so all those people you pass will know you're driving a '63.

Wheat Quotas Win OK by Margin of Two Pct.

A final tally by the Agriculture Department shows that 68.4 per cent of the farmers voting in the Aug. 30 referendum favored marketing quotas on the 1963 wheat crop.

The narrow margin favoring the program — less than 2 per cent more than the required 66.7 per cent or two-thirds majority — was due primarily in the major Midwest wheat states to the voting in North and South Dakota.

The final vote in the 39 state commercial wheat producing area was 169,348 for and 78,160 against. North Dakota wheat farmers cast the biggest vote, with 71,214 favoring the control program and 16,371 against, or a favorable vote of 69.4 per cent. The South Dakota vote was 11,691 for and 2,256 against, or a percentage for of 83.8 per cent.

The 68.4 per cent favorable vote for the 1963 crop compares with the 79.4 per cent favorable vote cast in the 1961 referendum for the 1962 marketing quotas.

Wheat farmers operated this year under a mandatory program requiring a minimum cut of 10 per cent in acreage, but go back to the old program for 1963 with a national wheat acreage base of 55 million acres. Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has set the price support for the 1963 crop at $1.82 a bushel compared with $2 for the 1962 crop.

80 People Attend T. R. Falls Picnic at Oakland, Calif.

The annual Thief River Falls picnic was held in Live Oak Park, Berkeley, Sept. 9th. A group of eighty people enjoyed the potluck dinner. Jack Van Pelt presided in the absence of Oscar Fjeld who had resigned due to a transfer of his job to Vancouver, Wash.

Mr. Van Pelt called on members to give an account of their activities during the year. Six members who were at the first meeting were present.

A letter from Dr. F. H. Gambell was read and a return one with greetings from the group was sent to him.

Edna Sten told of her class reunion in Thief River, and George Rice brought a large box of grapes, his usual contribution to the picnic.

Officers elected are Ray Miller, Oakland, president; and Emma Singer Napa, secretary-treasurer.

More Fats Eaten, But Less Butter

Amount of Butter Used Per Person Down Sharply

Americans may have changed the kinds of fat they eat, but percentage of calories from fat in the average diet is at an all-time high. However, per capita consumption in pounds is about the same as it was 40 years ago.

Cholesterol-and diet-consciousness apparently has had little influence on the amount of fat people eat—about 45 pounds per person, according to Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, extension consumer marketing specialist at the University of Minnesota. On the average, Americans get more than 40 per cent of their total calories from fats. Yet intake from fats should be only 20 per cent of the total calories per day, Mrs. Loomis says.

A tendency to shift from solid to liquid fats and from animal to vegetable fats is about the only indication of fat consciousness.

Americans have cut down on table spreads, but they are using more salad and cooking oils and about the same amount of cooking fats as was the case 40 years ago.

Use of margarine reached an all-time high of 9.5 pounds per person in 1961 compared to 4 pounds in 1946, but use of butter has declined steadily. According to studies by economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, last year the average American ate 2.1 pounds more margarine than butter; in 1946, butter was the leader by 6.6 pounds. Butter consumption dropped from 17 pounds per person in 1940 to 7.4 pounds in 1961, a new record low.

Insurance 'Living Benefits' in State $91 Million in '61

Total Includes $13 Million In Matured Endowments; $14 Million Annuity Payments

"Living benefits" in Minnesota to policyholders themselves from their life insurance companies were $91,200,000 in 1961. This was 62 per cent of the year's total life insurance benefit payments to the families of this state, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.

These payments were in addition to $55,600,000 of death payments to the families of this state, and compare with payments of $85,500,000 in "living benefits" the year before. The living benefits include matured endowments, annuities, disability, cash surrender values paid out and dividends to policyholders.

Last year the total of all payments to policyholders and beneficiaries in this state amounted to $146,800,000 compared with $236,700,000 the year before.

Of the total living benefits received in 1961 by the families of this state, $13,000,000 was for matured endowments; $14,300,000 for annuity payments; $2,400,000 for disability payments; $28,000,000 for policy cash surrender value payments, and $33,50,000 for dividends to policyholders.

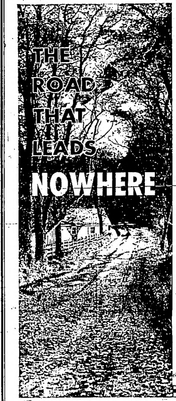
FOR CUSHIONED COMFORT



The road pictured here bears the time-worn marks of many travellers. Apparently it leads to some distant village or serves perhaps as a link between more vital thoroughfares.

But in reality this road does neither. Once, no doubt, it had a destination, but today it fades away into the woods a few miles beyond—a "dead end."

How many lives are like this road? They have promising beginnings, but instead of continuing to worthwhile goals, they wander aimlessly to final dead ends.

The Church teaches us to build useful lives and guides us toward noble achievements and ambitions. Regular attendance at church services gives greater assurance that our pathway of life will not lead us astray. On the contrary, it leads straight to the house of the peaceful mind and the contented heart.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

TEST CHART

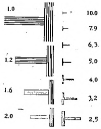
19 Lafayette Avenue, Hingham, Massachusetts

INSTRUCTIONS Resolution is expressed in terms of the lines per millimeter recorded by a particular film under specified conditions. Numerals in chart indicate the number of lines per millimeter in adjacent "T-shaped" groupings.

In microfilming, it is necessary to determine the reduction ratio and multiply the number of lines in the chart by this value to find the number of lines recorded by the film. As an aid in determining the reduction ratio, the line above is 100 millimeters in length. Measuring this line in the film image and dividing the length into 100 gives the reduction ratio. Example: the line is 20 mm. long in the film image, and 100/20 = 5.

Examine "T-shaped" line groupings in the film with microscope, and note the number adjacent to finest lines recorded sharply and distinctly. Multiply this number by the reduction factor to obtain resolving power in lines per millimeter. Example: 7.9 group of lines is clearly recorded while lines in the 10.0 group are not distinctly separated. Reduction ratio is 5, and 7.9 x 5 = 39.5 lines per millimeter recorded satisfactorily. 10.0 x 5 = 50 lines per millimeter which are not recorded satisfactorily. Under the particular conditions, maximum resolution is between 39.5 and 50 lines per millimeter.

Resolution, as measured on the film, is a test of the entire photographic system, including lens, exposure, processing, and other factors. These rarely utilize maximum resolution of the film. Vibrations during exposure, lack of critical focus, and exposures yielding very dense negatives are to be avoided.



This frame is intended as a guide in determining film quality. The resolution charts in the corners and center serve as an absolute measure of camera performance in terms of lines per millimeter.

The lines of type below will serve as a guide to the legibility of type of various sizes reproduced at the reduction ratio used on this film.
